Stunning Defeat For Nixon Choice

88 Killed In Osaka Explosion

OSAKA, Japan (CP) — At least 88 persons were killed and 154 injured, many of them severely, when a series of explosions ripped through a subway construction site in a densely populated area of Osaka today, police reported.

The blast touched off a fire which swept through some 30 private homes before firemen brought it under control.

Osaka's pride, the Expo 70 world's fair, was not damaged. Police said the explosion site was 10 miles from the fair grounds.

Many of the injured were in serious condition.

The explosions, blamed on leaking gas, occurred beneath a roadway where construction men were working on the subway. They hurled heavy steel plates covering the roadway into the air, lifted parked cars feet off the ground, shattered windows over a wide area and flattened people on sidwalks.

Flames shot 100 feet into the air as the gas fumes caught fire, spreading quickly to the closely-packed wooden homes lining the street.

RESIDENTS MOVE

Police said a gas leak in the construction area was repoted late today and evacuation of residents in the area had started.

The subway extension was being built beneath a busy street. Japanese subway builders often use an open cut system, digging down from the roadway and then covering the open cut with steel plates.

Carswell Vetoed For Court Post

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The Senate rejected today the Supreme Court nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell, handing President Nixon a stunning second defeat in his efforts to name a Southern judge to the United States' highest court.

The vote was 51 to 45. The outcome of the long fight over the nomination of the 50-year-old Tallahassee, Fla., judge, now on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, remained in doubt to the last.

Nixon became the first president in this century—and only the fourth in U.S. history — to have more than one Supreme Court nominee voted down by the Senate.

President Nixon was "disappointed" by the senate's rejection of the Carswell nomination and will select another candidate for the supreme court in due course, the White House said today.

"The president said he will submit a new nomination to the senate in due course and there are, of course, no candidates in mind at this time."

Nixon made it known two weeks ago, as opposition to Carswell mounted, that he considered the issue of the Carswell nomination as transcending "this or any other appointment."

In a letter to a wavering Republican senator who subsequently supported Carswell, Sen. William B. Saxbe of Ohio, Nixon said criticism of Carswell was baseless.

RELATIONSHIP

What was at stake, Nixon said, was "the preservation of the traditional constitutional relationship of the president and the Congress."

Centrally at issue, the president contended, was the constitutional presidential responsibility to appoint members of the Supreme Court—"and whether this responsibility can be frustrated by those who wish to substitute their own philosophy or their own subjective judgment for that of the one person entrusted by the constitution with the power of appointment."

Nixon nominated Carswell Jan. 19, after the Senate's rejection by a 55-to-45 vote last November of his first choice for the court post, Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of Greenville, S.C.

Today's vote was a dramatic reversal of the Senate's 52 to 44 vote two days ago rejecting a motion to return Carswell's nomination to the Senate judiciary committee.

CHARGES REJECTED

ISRAEL BOMBS ARAB SCHOOL

CAIRO (Reuters) — Thirty school children and an adult civilian were killed today when Israeli Phantom jet aircraft bombed a primary school in Egypt, an official source at the interior ministry here reported.

The source said 46 civilians, including 36 school children, were wounded in the raid on Bahr al Bakr school in Sharkia province, about 50 miles north of Cairo.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli military spokesman, replying to correspondents' questions following the Cairo report, said: "Our air attacks were aimed strictly at military objectives."

The school was a primary level co-educational school, meaning the children were in the six-to-12-year-old bracket.

It was the biggest reported Egyptian civilian casualty toll from an Israeli air raid since Feb. 12, when more than 80 workers were killed and 90 wounded in the bombing of a scrap metal factory northeast of Cairo. The Israelis said that raid was an accident.

B.C. Civil Servants To Vote on Pay Offer

Victoria-based provincial government employees will vote Monday on acceptance or rejection of salary increases, averaging 7½ per cent, awarded Tuesday by the cabinet.

Ratification meetings for 35 locals of the entire 14,000 B.C. Government Employees Union membership will be held next week, said union general secretary John L. Fryer.

It will be the first time government employees have been given the opportunity to express their opinion on a wage offer.

But the BCGEU executive will make no recommendation to guide the membership, Fryer said. The offer will be presented as is and each member will make his own choice, said the secretary.

Raises recommended by the Civil Service Commission apply to all civil servants, of which there are 26,000 in B.C. government jobs.

They are retroactive to April 1 and instead of representing a flat percentage increase applicable to all categories, the raises favor those in low-paid jobs.

Fryer said the "consideration shown by the government to its lower-paid employees is a response to special representations made by the union earlier in the year."

WELFARE BETTER

He recalled a survey made public a few months ago that showed some government employees would be netting more income by being on welfare—tax-free—than by drawing a government salary and paying income tax, medical bills and other necessaries.

"A few of them now are a little closer to a decent standard of living."

But while commending the government, Fryer also drew attention to the fact that the increases still leave salaries short of what is needed to bring civil service pay to parity with equivalent jobs in municipal government, large private firms and the federal civil strvice.

Fryer noted that there are many increments of 11 per cent, reflecting the favor shown to lower categories.

Should union members accept the increases, the wage isue will be closed for this year, he said, but should they reject it, "then the union's negoting committee will seek to reopen salary discussions with the Civil Service Commission."

He said members will not be asked to consider strike

New Violence Flares In Postal Dispute

MONTREAL (CP) — Three trucks were damaged and one driver injured today in violence connected with the Montreal postal dispute. About 95 rented vehicles continued to transport mail to the city's postal substations.

A post office spokesman said the driver was struck in the eye by glass when the windshield of his mail truck was smashed. He was taken to hospital but his condition was not immediately known.

The spokesman said two other trucks, not involved in mail transportation but belonging to companies renting vehicles to the post office, had windshields broken when bricks and bottles thrown from an overpass struck them while they were parked in a downtown parking lot.

SOYA BOMB THROWN

OTTAWA (CP) — A soya sauce bottle containing kerosene oil or some other liquid was tossed from the third floor of the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings to the basement this afternoon, causing a mild bang but no injuries.

Royal Fright For Hunter

MELBOURNE (AP) — A 21-year-old Australian who went hunting Tuesday fainted when he encountered a posse of policemen instead of a warren-load of rabbits.

No one told Terry Reilly the quiet spot seven miles south of the country town of Mansfield was off-limits because Prince Charles and Princess Anne would be riding there.

Rifle in hand, he stepped from his car. Then, he said later, "from under the ground, down from the trees and from behind bushes" swooped the law.

Reilly, a Melbourne apprentice, said the police ordered: "One move and we shoot. Just hand over the gun and tell us what you are doing."

POLICE SAY NO IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal policemen voted 596 to 4 in a secret ballot Tuesday against accepting the city's latest contract offer.

The city had offered a 5.1-per-cent pay increase in a one year contract.

Arctic Protection Bills Introduced

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave first reading today to government bills aimed at preventing pollution of waters adjacent to the mainland and islands of the Canadian Arctic and to extend Canada's territorial sea to 12 miles from the present three.

Before the bills were introduced, Prime Minister Trudeau announced that Canada has entered a new reservation against the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice as it applies to the pollution legislation.

The prime minister said there is no existing international law to protect coastal states against pollution. Existing law favored oil-exporting and oil-shipping states, he said.

There was an urgent need for the development of international law establishing "that coastal states are entitled . . . to protect their marine environment and the living resources of the sea adjacent to their coasts."

Meanwhile, scattered fields of ice chunks about 50 feet wide were encountered by the U.S. tanker Manhattan and a Canadian icebreaker Tuesday as they headed through the Labrador Sea en route to the Northwest Passage.

The ships were sailing east of the ice pack off Labrador and planned to avoid ice as far as possible.

CUSTOMERS TAKEN FOR A RIDE . . . . IN A SHOPPING CART

Guerrilla Warfare Only Way to Survive Supermarket Jungle

By JACK SCOTT

It's no longer enough for Milady to hippity hop to the market secure in the knowledge that the ancient philosophy of caveat emptor — "let the buyer beware"—will keep intact the shrivelling family budget.

Now, in a day of unprecedented soaring food costs, the market must be viewed as an enemy-occupied jungle full of snares to trap the unwary, a place where only an expert's knowledge of guerrilla infighting can ensure survival.

This is the grim estimate of the president and executive of the Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada who have committed their 400-member organization to a frontal attack on the continuing spiral of prices.

Tonight at eight o'clock at the Institute of Adult Studies they'll join with the Greater Victoria School Board in telling it the way it is to a public consumers' forum dealing with marketing gimmicks, legislation and enforcement of grades and standards and allied purchasing perils that, in the words of Mrs. Helen Forrest, president of the local branch, have left consumers "just about absolutely helpless."

Direct target is the operation of the chain-owned supermarkets — described by nutritionist Mrs. Norma Morriss, a member of tonight's panel, as terribly wrong in their set-up, taking their customers for a ride in a shopping cart" — and the lack of activist involvement by the silent majority of Victoria's housewives.

Evidence from studies conducted by the CAC's headquarters as well as surveys and comparative shopping expeditions provincially and in Greater Victoria demonstrate in the opinion of the local members, that supermarkets systematically exploit a gullible, unquestioning clientele.

Item: Victoria surveys confirm the results of a study conducted by a University of Alberta research team that different prices are charged in different stores of the same chain for the same items at the same time, but that prices are uniformly higher in low-income areas where shoppers without cars are unlikely to patronize alternative, distant markets.

Item: A cost check of supermarkets demonstrated that prices are higher on the first and 15th pay days of each month and on the date (usually the 19th) when Family Allowance cheques reach recipients.

'Gullible, Unquestioning Clientele'

Item: Advertising of "loss-leaders" persists. Sample shopping at certain stores advertising the largest number of "price specials," in some cases, resulted in higher costs when an entire grocery list was purchased.

Item: The supermarket price structure employs psychological means to increase sales and profits. Bargain-hunting shoppers readily rise to the deceptive bait, for example, when a 20-cent product is offered at five for 99 cents rather than two for 39 cents.

Item: "Hypnotic packaging" and the adroit placement of articles at check-out counters for impulse-buyers cause shoppers to purchase unwanted goods. Supermarkets are confirmed in their estimate of the compulsive fascination of "the impulse item" by statistics indicating that some 80 per cent of sales in frozen items is impulse-motivated.

Item: Confusing weight-price structures create a "credibility gap" that bewilders even careful, knowledgeable shoppers. One lynx-eyed shopper asks, with a shrug: "How are you supposed to compare a 10-and-a-half ounce can of peaches at 37 cents with a 15-ounce can at 46 cents?"

The women of the Victoria branch of the CAC take the position that such anomalies can only be corrected by government legislation and that legislation comes only through organized public pressure.

Mrs. Barbara Rolls, formerly provincial president, cites a typical "small victory" in recent regulations that the weight must be stamped on bars of soap.

"You could never tell whether you were getting the best buy for, let's say, three toilet-size for 45 cents or two bath-size for 43," she says. "That's the kind of thing, all down the line, that means we're not able to fight on equal terms with the markets."

One answer for the dedicated shopper is the Econo-Meter, a patented, Victoria-produced disc for computing prices by the ounce, supplied by the local branch of the CAC for members and non-members at 50 cents each. More than 1,000 have been sold locally.

. . . NIXON

As the time for voting approached, two of those who had been publicly uncommitted—Senators Quentin N. Buddick (Dem.—N.D.) and Charles McC. Mathias (Rep.—Md.) announced they would vote against confirmation.

Four senators were absent, two through illness and two on an official trip to the Far East.

The vote against the Florida judge was higher than even the most optimistic anti-Carswell forces had predicted.

The opponents needed 49 votes to win.

In the final debate before the Senate vote, Senator Robert J. Dole (Rep. Kan.) a Carswell supporter, said that if the nomination was rejected, he hoped Nixon would wait until after the next election to submit another appointment.

Gasps echoed through the Senate chamber when three key senators answered "no" to the rollcall.

The chamber broke into applause when Senator Mike Mansfield, the majority leader, announced final voting figures. The vote was the climax of an uphill fight against the judge by liberal and moderate Senate opposition over the last three months.

Carswell came under increasing attack for what was called anti-black bias, a mediocre legal record and lack of candor in testifying before the Senate judiciary committee after his nomination.

Carswell, who served 11 years as a federal district judge for northern Florida before the Nixon administration elevated him to the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, was nominated to fill the high court seat vacated nearly a year ago by the resignation of Justice Abe Fortas, a liberal.

Thirteen Republicans voted against Carswell, two more than had been predicted by Senator Edward W. Brooke (Rep. Mass.) the Senate's only Negro and one of the leaders of the anti-Carswell campaign.

GATES GUARDED

In Tallahassee, Carswell could not be reached immediately for comment. He watched the voting at his lakeside compound eight miles north of Tallahassee. Private police at the two entrances to the heavily wooded home kept reporters out.

The party breakdown showed 28 Republicans and 17 Democrats for confirmation and 13 Republicans and 38 Democrats against.

138 WAILS A MINUTE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The world's population is growing at a rate of 8,292 an hour and 138 a minute and by the middle of this year will reach 3,632,000,000 people.

These statistics were announced Tuesday by the Population Reference Bureau, a private non-profit organization which issues an annual world population data sheet among other publications.

'Anti-Hate Bill Disguises Ills'

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's anti-hate bill wouldn't have stopped the Nazi slaughter of Jews during the Second World War and can only disguise the uglier symptons of real social ills, Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) said in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Saltsman, his party's financial critic, is a Jew and, as a Canadian air force corporal, visited the German concentration camp at Belsen shortly after the end of the Second World War.

He spoke as the bill, which would outlaw advocacy of genocide and promotion of hatred against groups, faltered through the report stage against stiff but scattered opposition.

Under debate is an amendment by Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) that would delete from the bill provisions to make it a crime to incite hatred of identifiable groups. The amendment would leave only the anti-genocide section intact.

Preferring the amendment Monday, he said the bill is crisis legislation that duplicates law in the Criminal Code and may boomerang against minority groups with legitimate grievances.

The debate continues today.

Mr. Saltsman, 48, said that bigotry in Canada has moderated since he was a boy in Toronto. He felt that better living standards are responsible for the improvement.

He didn't feel hate propaganda should be banned. It was a thermometer of underlying social ills that should be treated. Refusing to take the temperature wouldn't solve the illness.

Meanwhile, a government back-bencher, John Roberts (York-Simcoe), attacked the bill. He said it is contrary to the principles of liberalism.

The moment a government suppressed the views of one group, others would be endangered. Mr. Roberts said that Socrates, Christ and Galileo were among those killed because of their views.

Among those supporting the bill was Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West), Canada's first Negro MP.

DIGNITY FIRST

The dignity of man had to transcend freedom of speech, he said, speaking as one who knew how it felt to be a member of a minority group.

What does a mother tell a child who comes home in tears after a racial slur? "Does she say to him 'Freedom of speech is paramount?' "

Mr. Alexander said he has experienced rejection and hate but is fortunate compared with others.

"I don't want to point to any particular province but it doesn't take me long to point east," he said. The majority of Canada's Negroes live in Nova Scotia.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood), James E. Walker (York Centre), parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, and Mark MacGuigan (L—Windsor-Walkerville) were among those supporting the bill also.

Mr. MacGuigan was, with Mr Trudeau, a member of the Maxwell Cohen committee that four years ago recommended legislation to make hate propaganda a crime.

Cambodians Lose 4 Districts to Reds

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — The advance of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong communist forces into Cambodia is continuing, despite reports of armed collaboration between Cambodian and South Vietnamese authorities to halt the incursions.

The Cambodian government lost military control Tuesday of four districts on the eastern border as the front shrank seven miles toward the capital under communist pressure.

Official sources in Saigon report that South Vietnamese troops, fighter-bombers and gunships have been engaging communist forces inside Cambodia with full approval of the Cambodian authorities.

The area of fighting is in Svay Rieng province, due west of Saigon, along Highway 1, where the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have major base camps.

Sources in the field said South Vietnamese paratroops swept several miles into Svay Rieng province and pulled out today after two days of clashes with the North Vietnamese.

One source said South Vietnamese infantry fought the North Vietnamese in the same area Saturday and killed 62 of them.

The dramatic collapse of government authority in the face of the newly-intensified communist attacks suggests that North Vietnamese military objectives in Cambodia may be larger than anyone in Phnom Penh had anticipated.

Bribery Admitted

Dowdy, reached by telephone at his Capitol Hill office, refused to comment on Clark's action but repeated his earlier assertions that he is "absolutely not guilty of any wrongdoing."

FOOD GIANTS 'MAUL' PUBLIC INTEREST

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has permitted itself to be shackled to a chemical and genetic time bomb by the food industry, a report by investigators working under consumer advocate Ralph Nader said today.

"Nader's Raiders" charged the agency with wasting time on senseless campaigns of harassment while the food industry develops techniques "for manipulating the content of food products as dictated by corporate greed and irresponsibility."

"Until the FDA recognizes the food business for the profit-making giant that it is, this public agency will continue to be the vessel of an industry which through callousness, ignorance, or greed routinely mauls the public interest," the report said.

More Talks Slated On Cost Sharing

A $3,000 review of Victoria's service charges to other municipalities needs another vetting before being translated into action.

The report, prepared by Thorne, Gunn, Helliwell and Christenson, was blasted by Ald. Cecil Parrott as being "misleading . . . as I read it it looks as though the city is chiselling other municipalities."

J. N. Bond, representing the firm of chartered accountants, said his company possibly failed in not publishing background for the findings and he admitted that possibly they had not taken into full account the cost of expert special services such as the use of city experts for advice and guidance on many issues.

City Treasurer James Bramley bluntly told the committee that the report had not provided a solution to charges that the city's service billing is too high.

"This report has not given us a solution," Bramley said. "It just poses the problem. I want somebody to tell me just what special services are as a matter of policy. And I want somebody to tell me what the costs of those special services should be."

Bramley stressed that if all the time spent by city department heads on intermunicipal business was added up the total would be surprising.

For years other municipalities have hinted that they were unhappy with the city's service charges. But none of them have volunteered to take over the job as accountant, comptroller and provider of expertise.

In the five-page report the accounting firm lists 1969 costs and suggests what more accurate charges should be in 1970. The proposed rates are more than 50 per cent below the figure now charged by the city.

Bond said a direct comparison between the figures should not be made.

"We overlooked services such as those provided by the comptroller and the city manager," he said. "They were in our mind but they were not brought out as they should have been."

Bramley said he was complaining more about the specific lack of direction than anything else.

Cambodians Release Arms Ship

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — The commandeered American munitions ship Columbia Eagle was released today after 25 days of detention in Cambodian waters.

The ship sailed off with Capt. Donald Swann and 12 crew members.

The craft, carrying munitions en route to Thailand, had been held in Cambodian waters since March 14. It was hijacked as an anti-war protest the previous day by two crew members from California.

Diplomatic sources said the United States gave Cambodia assurances the boat would not take the cargo to Thailand or Vietnam.

The ship was seized at gunpoint by Clyde McKay, 25, of Escondido, Calif., and Alvin Golatowski, 20 of Long Beach, Calif., who were granted asylum in Cambodia.

Hope Boy, 16, Charged in Death

HOPE (CP) — Clinton Brian Ash, 16, of this community 100 miles east of Vancouver, Tuesday was raised to provincial court on a non-capital murder charge.

Ash was charged after Roland Kamimura, 9, was found hanged by a belt tied to a tree near his home in Hope early in February.

action, at least at the ratification stage.

The commission said special adjustments had been recommended in the cases of positions at the lowest salary levels — including clerks, typists, stenographers, ward assistants and nurses' aids in hospitals and security and correctional offficers in provincial jails.

Under the new agrement, a junior clerk would have his salary range increased to $292 psychiatric nurse's pay range $353 from $262-$317 and a psychiatric nurse's pay range would be increased to $553-

CP Admits Design Error; New Harbor Plan Soon

A Marathon Realty spokesman Tuesday admitted the company erred in its fifth submission to the city for a CPR harbour development on Belleville Street.

General Manager J. David Mooney said Marathon still intends to put $1 million into tourist-oriented facilities on the CPR docks, but the design outline rejected by the city two weeks ago will undergo revision.

He also said CP had no intention of ending its Victoria-Seattle ferry service, upon which the concept is founded.

EARLIER START

The threat of withdrawal was made by another Marathon representative following discussion with aldermen on the so-called final submission, and apparently was voiced in the heat of the moment.

"It was most unfortunate that this comment was circulated," said Mooney.

"The service to Seattle is to start earlier this year and our steamship people are hoping their extensive promotion and advertising campaign in the U.S. will attract more tourists to Victoria than ever before."

Mooney also said he was puzzled that the controversy with city hall had resulted in reports that the scope of the original project had been reduced.

"Our original project was to cost $1 million and it hasn't decreased," Mooney said.

City hall officials and alderman expressed deep concern that what had been originally conceived for the harbor project had degenerated into a series of nondescript boxes, judging from the sumbission presented by Marathon representative Lance Jefferson.

"We were wrong," Mooney said. "The thing got off the beat."

He said architect John di Castri had re-entered the picture, commissioned to develop the original concept on a broader base.

Mooney expected a new concept would be ready for presentation within six weeks.

Marathon is prepared to create a design for the eventual development of land reaching further west, up to Bapco Paint property and inclucing some city-owned land.

MILLION-PLUS

Total expenditure in the area will be in excess of $1 million, Mooney predicted, suggesting that work may be done in phases over three years.

While new plans are being drawn, all work on the facilities other than ferry requirements has been stopped.

A new berth for Princess Marguerite, west of her former landing point, is being constructed and is expected to be ready for the tourist season. Other construction may not meet the start of the summer trade, but Marathon does not intend to rush a design that is not compatible with Victoria, Mooney said.

Part of the new dock will be geared to float plane service into the Inner Harbor, which allows for Air West, and may eventually include Victoria Flying Services, it was suggested.

Man Found Guilty Of Illegal Possession

A Victoria man was found guilty Tuesday of illegal possession of seven $1,000 B.C. Hydro bonds stolen from the Vancouver firm of King and Scarfe Ltd.

Rene Talon, 36, of 110 Government Street, was convicted by a jury of seven women and five men at the conclusion of a two-day trial in county court. He will be sentenced Thursday at 10 a.m.

The jury took only 35 minutes to consider its verdict.

Crown counsel Cecil Branson said Talon cashed the stolen bonds at four Victoria banks on Jan. 13 and called various bank employees who testified to this effect.

Early in the proceedings, defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood conceded that Talon was in possession of the bonds. But he argued that Talon did not know the bonds had been stolen whn he cashed them.

"He had no criminal intent," counsel said.

Owen-Flood said the crown had failed to submit evidence proving just who did own the bonds at the time of the offence on Jan. 13.

Branson said the bonds were stolen between Jan. 9 and 12—just before Talon cashed them in Victoria.

BEARER BONDS

They were bearer bonds, he said, and could circulate freely "like dollar bills." Talon's statements to two bank employees, when he cashed the bonds, indicated they had been in his possession for some time.

"Furthermore, his method of cashing them was unusual," Branson said. "If the bonds were truly his, he would have proudly taken them to one bank, submitted them, received the $7,000 and left.

"Instead, he took them in lots of $2,000 each to three banks and the remaining $1,000 bond to a fourth. What other inference could be drawn than that this man knew he was dealing in stolen bonds?" Branson asked.

At one bank, counsel said, an accountant called Talon's attention to the fact one of the bonds submitted was way past maturity.

NOT NEEDED

Talon said he knew that, but didn't cash the bond on maturity because he didn't need the money at the time.

Tuesday's hearing opened with argument before Judge Montague Drake as to the admissibility of certain evidence. The jury was excluded, but returned after Drake made his ruling.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Benjamin Franklin was greatly disappointed back in 1743 on the night of Oct. 21. He was waiting in Philadelphia for the eclipse of the moon, which for many months he had been planning to observe. He had hoped the weather would be clear, but when the time arrived, clouds gathered and a storm blew up, Franklin could see neither the moon nor the stars.

Some weeks later, he read an account of the eclipse as it was observed in Boston, about 300 miles to the north. Until then Franklin had thought that the storm must have blanked out the eclipse in Boston, too, before it swept on south. His curiosity prompted him to write letters to acquaintances up and down the coast.

The correspondence informed him that while the surface winds were from the northwest on Oct. 21, 1743, the storm on that day had actually drifted to the northeast from the southwest, thus reaching Boston after the eclipse. Franklin had charted the prevailing drift of Atlantic coastal storms.

CAMBODIA SHIFTS ITS NEUTRALITY---

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, whose brand of neutrality seemed to bring Cambodia in close alliance with Asian Communists, has been ousted by a triumvirate with a definition of neutralism further to the right. Whether either is neutral remains to be seen.

Erratic 30-Year Political Career

By Associated Press

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, who was ousted as Cambodian chief of state recently, has announced from his part-time home in exile in Peking that he plans to return to Cambodia—possibly with the aid of North Vietnamese troops.

The triumvirate who replaced him in Phnom Penh, Provisional President Cheng Heng, Vice-Premier Siswath Sirik Matak and Defence Minister Gen. Lon Nol, have announced that if Sihanouk tries to return he will be tried for treason.

Sihanouk was ousted while he was in Moscow, after having interrupted a vacation in France to try and get Soviet and Chinese Communist leaders to urge North Vietnam to get its troops out of Cambodia.

His trip to Moscow was preceded by a week of unrest and demonstrations in which thousands of Cambodians attacked Viet Cong and North Vietnamese embassies and sacked them throwing their secret files to the streets.

In addition, the Cambodians invaded Vietnamese neighborhoods in Phnom Penh and burned Vietnamese residences and stores.

While the Communist world has been busy denouncing the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency for allegedly inspiring the coup that ousted Sihanouk, and the prince has been cosy with Communist neighbors lately, his political career of nearly 30 years has been erratic.

Sihanouk succeeded to the throne in 1941 as an avowed anti-Communist, eight years before Cambodia was granted independence from France.

During the early '50s when Vietnamese Communists were fighting the French, forces from both sides encroached on Cambodian territory. At the conclusion of the Geneva conference in 1954, the adversaries agreed to withdraw their forces.

In the early '60s, Cambodia's relations with neighboring Thailand and South Vietnam deteriorated as a result of border disputes and incidents. Those countries accused Cambodia of secret Communist activities.

In 1963, Sihanouk accused the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency of fostering rebellion in his country, and later that year renounced all American economic, military and cultural aid.

Although he broke relations with the United States in 1965, Sihanouk expressed misgivings about Communist China, which he claimed was being drawn into Southeast Asian affairs by American policy. Also in 1965, he issued a stern warning to Cambodian Communists to stop campaigning against his government.

Noble Dream for China Ended With Red Guards

By STANLEY KARNOW

HONG KONG (WP) — Mao Tse-tung's ambitious goal when he launched the cultural revolution four years ago was nothing less than the eventual creation of a new species of selfless individual prepared to sacrifice himself for society.

It was a noble dream, implying as it did that Maoism would liberate China and ultimately the world from egotistical politicians and Kafkaesque bureaucrats as well as class oppression and the tyranny of technology.

Now that the convulsions of his revolution have subsided, however, current events in China indicate more clearly than ever that Mao has not only failed, but that his defeat has been inflicted by the very brand of base human behavior he sought to eradicate.

This suggests that China will, like any large, underdeveloped country, be compelled in the years ahead to settle for slow, incremental progress rather than great leaps forward.

And it may prove to rebels elsewhere that Maoist ideaology, though captivating in theory, lacks a real cutting edge in the face of hard reality.

Mao and his supporters succeeded during their last revolution in shattering the Chinese Communist Party machine that, corrupted by privilege, had come to fit Milovan Djilas's description of a "new class."

But the Red Guards and other radicals who ousted the party bosses quickly became as corrupted as the officials they had overthrown. Moreover, their eagerness to acquire authority prompted them to squabble among themselves in often devastating factional fights.

Anxious to restore order, especially as the threat to a Soviet attack loomed last summer, the Chinese army started a series of crackdowns that has since grown to large proportions.

As a consequence, China at the moment is very much a military state in which power stems from gun barrels in ways Mao never envisaged.

Hardly a day passes here without reliable reports from over the border of "people's trials" and mass executions or jailings of "counter-revolutionary" murderers, arsonists, spies, embezzlers and other criminals.

According to informed sources, more than 100 alleged "reactionaries" were executed in nearby Kwangtung Province in the first half of last month. Hundreds more were sent to "labor reform" camps.

European diplomats who were in Shanghai not long ago say that huge city, the scene of bitter tensions, evokes Paris during the "reign of terror" — except that army trucks have replaced tumbrils, and the firing squad rather than the guillotine is the instrument of death.

Among those being rounded up for "economic crimes" are peasants and petty merchants who took advantage of the breakdown of controls during the cultural revolution to speculate in food and consumer goods.

Many include youths sent to the countryside for "proletarian education" who have escaped back into cities. Lacking any legal status, they have organized virtual underworld gangs that survive by robbery and black marketeering.

The repression, particularly against overseas Chinese visiting their families, also reflects the army's nervous fear that China is being infiltrated by American, Soviet and Chiang Kai-shek agents.

Most significant, though, are the numbers of Mao's so-called "revolutionary rebels" of yesterday who are being indicated as "counter-revolutionaries" today.

For Chinese whose relatives were humiliated or killed or who suffered themselves at the hands of leftist militants during Mao's campaign are now repaying "blood debts," as Oriental vengeance is termed.

In Peking recently, for example, a group brought to trial featured members of a radical organization—the leaders, Wang Li, Mu Hsin and Chi Pen-yu, were among Mao's closest associates at the start of the cultural revolution.

Besides staging trials and carrying out public executions, usually in sports stadiums, the army appears to be tightening its grip on the country either by organizing or actually sitting on new Communist party committees being formed.

Only a few low-level committees have been established since a Communist congress a year ago called for the reconstruction of the shattered party. The slowness is due to the understandable reluctance of veteran cadres to risk their necks after repeated purges.

So soldiers are filling the vacuum, and the Chinese Communist party, whenever it is rebuilt, is bound to be only a transparent facade for military rule.

Despite all of Mao's ideological rhetoric and utopian visions, therefore, China could well turn out like Pakistan or Egypt or Indonesia—to be run by its army. And that prospect may, in retrospect, make Mao's dream seem even more attractive.

Overhead Costs

BRITISH COLUMBIA HYDRO Chairman Shrum's offer to put a controversial power line in the Burnside area underground if the local protesters would pay for it, has a vestige of logic —but no more than a vestige. Obviously, consumers are going to pay for any power installations the Hydro commission makes, but there is little justice or reason in assessing capital expenditures on a mile-by-mile basis so that everyone pays for—but only for—the lines or substations within his local neighborhood. On that principle, who would pay for the Bennett Dam? It is surprising that Dr. Shrum would make such a suggestion except in a spirit of cynicism, and the situation hardly calls for that.

The latest proposal that a slice be taken off Tom Francis Park to widen the power line strip, is despicable, not only in its shameful disregard for a priceless public recreation area but for its desecration of a memorial to a fine old pioneer who devoted his life to safeguarding this sylvan gem and gave it to the public on the understanding that it would be preserved. Thetis Lake Park, adjacent to Tom Francis Park, has already been hacked through for a 104-acre easement and the understanding when it was done was that this would be the one and only demand of its kind. Now, only eight years later, they are back again.

The engineering concept that the best line for any transmission is a straight line is an understandable one, and the use of cheaper overhead wiring rather than underground transmission is also plausible. But such judgment considers only the logistics of the problem; equally valid are considerations of environment, effects on humans, and the hidden costs. It is one thing to say that overhead wiring costs only $80,000 a mile compared with $303,000 for underground installation. But a proper appraisal must also take into account the costs involved in scenic destruction, in diversion of land from other uses, in the effects on future needs, and in general all the disadvantages that will accrue to human beings as a result of the pole line.

It has been customary in most cases in the past to ignore the latter considerations and be governed by the bare-bones engineering factors. But this is becoming increasingly less acceptable to people today as they see their planet being ripped and torn and polluted in the name of progress. On two occasions in recent years, to its discredit, Victoria city council has given in to B.C. Electric and Hydro pressure and permitted invasion of parts of Thetis Lake nature sanctuary. The cash cost of avoiding this would have been absorbed long ago in Hydro operations, but the intangible permanent cost of powerline right-of-ways will be born in perpetuity by all who use the park.

Now Hydro plans to run another power line through territory on the edge of the city in a move that would destroy a large acreage for future development, and place a blot on the scenery of the route which Hydro accountants will not include in their costing.

The corporation itself has achieved an almost untouchable status, aloof from public desires or distress, for local government is apparently powerless to oppose its bulldozing tactics. The Social Credit provincial government is notorious for its dollar-criterion of almost any question, and the Hydro organization is in any case a special favorite of Mr. Bennett. Only the solid protests of people with votes is likely to carry weight with the provincial government. At the moment, Hydro appears in the guise of everything this age is against.

Tyranny in Brazil

UNTIL THE 1964 MILITARY take-over Brazil was one of the least violent of Latin American countries, but five years, three presidents and three constitutions later it ranks as one of the most repressed countries on the face of the globe. In recent months diplomatic kidnappings and an active guerrilla movement have forced the present dictatorship under General Garrastazu Medici to tighten its grip on Brazilians.

It is a familiar story: the generals blame unrest on Communism while those with less vested interest in the status quo attribute the violence to a popular revolution. Taking into account that the regime holds an estimated 10,000 political prisoners and that only 15 of the country's 245 Roman Catholic bishops support the generals, the "popular revolution" concept seems more valid than hysterical cries of "Communism."

The generals look even worse considering their tacit support for right-wing para-military organizations that mutilate their victims, not sparing priests, and death squads of off-duty police who dispatch random criminals. With this level of semi-official terror it is surprising that the guerrillas have managed 200 raids on barracks and banks in the last year to finance their movement.

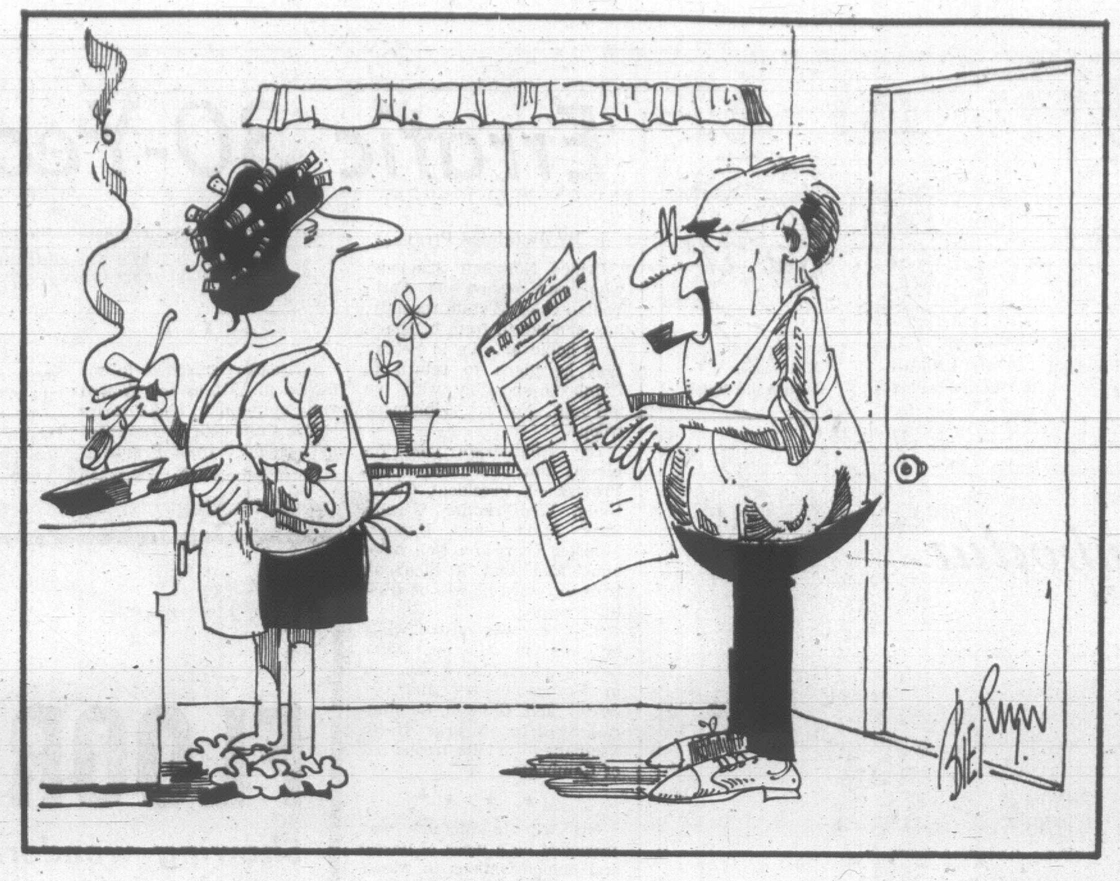
If there is a way out of Brazil's violent turmoil it may lie with the Roman Catholic Church. The country occupies half a continent and its 100 million inhabitants—nearly all of them Roman Catholic—make it the largest Roman Catholic country in the world in terms of population. To date 40 bishops have joined in outright opposition to the regime and the Vatican is said to be watching the situation closely. Meanwhile the violence mounts and the population increases three per cent each year. As is usually the case when freedom is cauterized, most of the changes have been for the worse since Brazilian democracy underwent surgery in 1964.

Is the ICC a Dead Issue?

THE RECENT FRENCH REquest that Canada help revive the International Control Commission on Cambodia will fall on deaf ears unless the Commission is given the power to be more than an impotent onlooker. External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said as much to the French government. Canada would entertain the idea of reviving the Commission in Cambodia provided there was agreement that Commission personnel could have considerably wider investigative powers, if there was cooperation from the Cambodian government and if there was provision for minority reports by Commission members.

These three constitute large "ifs," considering the near civil war in Cambodia and the plethora of antagonists that seem to be involved. A member of the ICC, along with India and Poland, since it was set up in 1954, Canada has been hamstrung and continually frustrated in efforts to make the Commission meaningful. In 1969 the government gave notice that it was removing its delegation from Cambodia. About the same time the now-deposed Cambodian leader, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, asked the Commission to leave.

But interest in restoring the ICC in Cambodia has increased following the coup and greater military activity by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops, not to mention the United States Central Intelligence Agency. Despite the tragedy that may take place in Cambodia it is difficult to see what a small team of ideologically divided observers could do at this time except get shot at by various factions. Knowing that Canada's conditions for a Commission revival in Cambodia are well nigh impossible at this time, it seems like a diplomatic way of saying, no, at least not now, to the French request.



"... make up your mind ... what movie are we going to see ... the one with excessive brutality and suggestive scenes ... or the one with coarse language and nude scenes ... or the one with frequent swearing and coarse language ...?"

Ducking the St. Clair Pollution Rap

Greer

AT this writing, the federal government has decided it is not safe for foreigners to eat any fish taken from Lake St. Clair or pickerel, perch and suckers taken from Lake Erie. They may be poisoned by mercury if they do and therefore the export of such fish has been banned by the federal fisheries department. But the Ontario government has decided there is no danger if such fish are eaten by Canadians, and it has not, therefore, banned fishing in the lakes in question.

Admittedly, this legal absurdity overstates the actual situation. Since most of the commercial fishing catch from the lakes is exported to the United States, and export has been banned, the fishermen have stopped fishing and no contaminated fish are going to the Canadian market either. But is is still possible for sportsmen and others to fish in the lakes and eat their catches no matter how much mercury they may contain.

The efforts of the Ontario government to explain this anomaly away have bordered on the ludicrous. At various times Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr has been heard to say that the federal safety level for mercury concentration — .5 parts per million — is too low, but that fish containing that much might be dangerous if consumed daily for two or three weeks. He has said the Ontario Health Department's recommendation — one part per million — is safe for the "average consumption of fish", whatever that may mean. He has even suggested the federal export ban may have been precipitous and unjustified since it was taken on the basis of findings of 1.36 parts per million in catches — a strange non sequitur even accepting the Ontario criterion and a blithe ignoring of findings as high as seven parts per million in other catches.

To Avoid Compensation

There is, however, a simple if crass explanation. The Ontario government has been reluctant to ban fishing in the two lakes because it wants to avoid responsibility for compensation to those who could legitimately claim loss of income as a result of such a ban. Its view is that compensation should be paid by those responsible for the mercury pollution and secondly by those who have been doing the banning — i.e. the federal government.

Mr. Kerr has been beating his breast and swearing that the commercial fishermen are entitled to compensation but he has tortuously avoided saying that, all else failing, the compensation will be paid by the Ontario government.

Considering that several millions of dollars may be involved, this approach — Mr. Kerr would deny it is a policy — is perhaps human: it is always nicer to have the other fellow pay if possible. But it raises some perplexing questions as to just who is responsible—questions which no one can answer at this time and illustrate dramatically just how inadequate and out-of-date our political and legal systems are for dealing with the modern problem of pollution.

Traditionally, of course, it may be said that the fishermen and other harmed persons can sue Dow Chemical Canada Ltd., which has admitted leaking mercury into Lake St. Clair and is the only known source of mercury pollution on the lake. But this is by no means as easy as it sounds.

The issue could go either way. Mercury, of course, can be a deadly poison when consumed in food but it has only been recently established that it can somehow be taken up from the bottom of lakes (it is insoluble in, and heavier than, water) in the food chain of fish. Dow might therefore claim, legimately, that given the state of knowledge when the pollution was occurring, mercury did not fall into the category of dangerous things in law and that the defence of reasonable care was available to it, since in theory at least, the technological process used by the company at Sarnia did not permit mercury to leak out into the lake.

Furthermore Dow's mercury pollution does not carry a company label on it, and while it is the only known industrial user of mercury on Lake St. Clair, it is quite possible there is mercury in the lake bed from other sources — for example, from mercury fungicides used in the agricultural area drained by the Thames River, which flows into the lake.

Could either the federal or Ontario governments, then, he held legally reponsible? This would seem to be even more complex, since it flows from the strange division in jurisdiction over fisheries which has evolved in Canada since Confederation.

Jurisdiction

The British North America Act clearly assigns the legislative power over inland fisheries to the federal parliament. But a series of Privy Council decisions at Westminister beginning in 1898 created, in effect, a dual capacity, with Ottawa responsible for fisheries and fishing per se and the provinces responsible for the property and civil rights associated thereto. In some provinces, the federal authority has remained complete but Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta undertook, with Ottawa's consent, to administer the federal regulatory power.

One weird result of this is that the Ontario fishing regulations, which say where, what and when fishing may take place, are actually federal orders-in-council. They are drafted by Queen's Park but they do not become law until passed by the federal cabinet.

Cannot Ottawa, then, ban fishing in the province? Apparently not, since the federal fisheries department has asked Ontario to ban fishing in Lake St. Clair and Ontario, up to this writing, has refused. All the banning which has been done so far, as Mr. Kerr never tires to point out, has been federal banning — under the federal Fish Inspection Act. The implication is clear: if the fishermen have been damaged by what has been done, talk to Ottawa. But it hardly seems likely that Ottawa can be held liable in law for taking action to protect public health and safety.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission, which is responsible for preventing pollution, could be sued and held liable if it could be shown it was grossly negligent in its watch-dog duties. But again, Dow's mercury pollution had been going on for years before the O.W.R.C. had reason, cause or means to be aware of it, and the worst that can be said against the Commission is that it pussyfooted around after becoming aware of it.

One or all of the parties involved, of course, can and probably will accept a moral or political responsibility and pay compensation regardless of legal considerations. But moral and legal responsibilities should be the two sides of the same coin and not strangers separated by the vagaries of a horse-and-buggy system.

Letters to the Editor

Erroneous Statement

I am disturbed by a totally erroneous statement in the leading article in your April 3 paper entitled "To be or not to be."

I refer to the statement "It became more evident in the United States cutback in the amount of Alberta oil to be admitted south of the border."

In fact the previously agreed quota of oil to be admitted from Canada to the U.S. has actually been raised by some 50,000 barrels a day. The previous agreed quota has been very much exceeded over the last year by excess amounts shipped particularly to Chicago, without hitherto any protest from the U.S.

Since "fair is fair" I hope that you will correct the unfair impression which you have given your readers. — E. F. Whittingdale, 4957 Lochside Drive.

Congratulating the Police

I recently visited the demonstration held at the Hudson Bay Co., sponsored by the Victoria Police Dept. I was certainly impressed, as were thousands of other people at the calibre and amount of thought and preparation necessary to arrange and put on this very excellent show.

The day I was there, there must have been a hundred youngsters of all ages milling around, and showing marked interest in all exhibits. The constables and other ranks are to be congratulated upon their knowledge of their respective units, traffic control, etc., also the patience exhibited in answering all questions put to them.

The drug and poison sections were very informative and to quote an old saying 'A picture is worth a thousand words.' I believe much good was accomplished by this exhibition, and it should in my opinion be made an annual affair. Great credit is due to Chief Gregory and all other ranks for the very evident amount of thought and preparation for this very worthwhile event. — V. F. Fuller, Staff, St. Joseph's Hospital. Looking Back

From the Times of April 8, 1910:

Six hundred laborers for construction work on the Grand Trunk Pacific in the West are to be brought in to Edmonton from Winnipeg on Saturday. There are almost 10,000 needed in this district for such work. The scarcity of labor is the greatest experienced in years. Grand Trunk officials are concerned that the lack of labor may curtail their expansion plans for some time to come.

Bertrand and The Wild Men

By RICHARD PURSER
from Cowansville, Que.

Purser

PREMIER Jean-Jacques Bertrand was the only one of Quebec's major party leaders to reveal anything of importance as all four over the weekend officially opened their campaigns for the April 29 election. What he had to reveal was dismaying, considering that as the party of the outgoing government, his National Union is as likely as any party to form the next government. The NU platform turned out to be nationalistic and anti-Ottawa to the point of quasi-separatism.

The platform was nailed together at a day-long, closed-door session Saturday of party representatives from all over the province, meeting in a Montreal sports arena. In the evening, Premier Bertrand revealed the results to the press. That they were what they were was perhaps not surprising, considering that the policy-making session and the preliminaries to it were managed by Inter-Governmental Affairs Minister Marcel Masse, the Quebec government's chief Ottawa-baiter.

What is damaging is that Mr. Bertrand has gone along with the wild men of his party who have been making separatist noises for the last several weeks. Many Quebeckers had hoped that Mr. Bertrand, generally regarded as a sincere and decent man and hitherto a proclaimed believer in Canada, would in due course put down the extremists. He had earlier demonstrated his goodwill in pushing through the famous Bill 63, guaranteeing English language rights in education, despite opposition from the more nationalistic members of his cabinet.

Hopes Dashed

But when Mr. Bertrand broke his relative silence on separatism over the weekend, hopes were dashed as he delivered his party's chief campaign proposition: an ultimatum that Canada must have by 1974 a constitution suitable to his government, if re-elected, or he will put Quebec's status in Canada to a referendum.

Following the press conference, Mr. Bertrand formally opened his campaign at a Sunday afternoon rally in the packed sports arena here in Cowansville, 50 miles east of Montreal in his own riding of Mississquoi. Surrounded by his entire cabinet and all but one of the other 107 NU candidates, he allowed Mr. Masse to introduce him with one anti-Ottawa tirade, and then followed with another of his own.

There is a large English-speaking population in Mississquoi, among whom Mr. Bertrand is personally liked. He has customarily won more English votes here than NU candidates can usually expect. On Sunday, he interrupted his speech in French for the usual few ritual remarks in English to those of the English-speaking community, most of whom were absent: "... To my English-speaking friends, I tell them I have remained the same — faithful to those of my language, but without having any discrimination to others who do not have the same belief, who do not speak the same language."

Risking the English Vote

This won applause from the French-speaking audience, but whether, in view of what else he said, he will retain his large personal English vote is an interesting question.

The National Union platform calls for setting up a presidential system. Exactly what that means remains unexplained.

The one certain point —it is a companion plank in the party platform — is that Quebec would have elections at fixed dates. This would automatically end the next National Union mandate, if any, in 1974. This was the date recently mentioned by Finance Minister Mario Beaulieu for possible separation if Quebec did not by then get its way with Ottawa. There have been repeated appeals to Mr. Bertrand and other ministers to disavow Mr. Beaulieu for the sake of Quebec's economic future. But now Mr. Bertrand has joined the call himself.

The vindictiveness of the NU campaign against Ottawa and the Quebec Liberal party as its stooge will now know few bounds.

And now Mr. Bertrand has given his seal of approval to this sort of thing.

Masse Tone

Mr. Masse established the elevated nature of the campaign at Sunday's opener when he said that Liberal leader Robert Bourassa was not a chief at all but a puppet of Ottawa and his master Trudeau. The Quebec Liberal party, he said, was totally attached to Ottawa and might as well have the slogan "Ottawa first."

(The National Union in the 1966 election had the slogan "Quebec first." This year it has been toughened to "Quebec more than ever.")

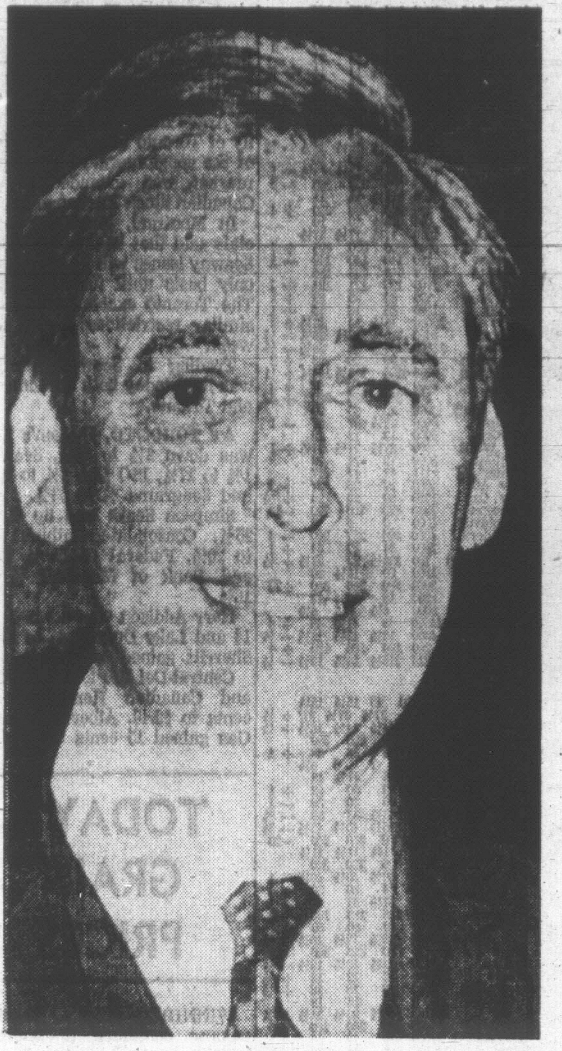
Mr. Bertrand proved as capable as Mr. Masse of distorting the position of the provincial Liberals. "The Liberal party," he said, "proposes passive obedience to Ottawa, a policy of submission, and a Quebec just like the other provinces." It was the party of servitude, he said.

One wonders whether Mr. Bertrand is trying to compete with the Liberals or the Parti Quebecois.

Burden of Inflation Rests on Poor?

By SENATOR MAURICE LAMONTAGNE

As the record shows, we have not been able yet to forecast one recession during the whole postwar period. We may well repeat the same mistake now. And I want to emphasize again that we are not the only ones in the world to be in that situation. We do not seem to be able to learn. What is fundamentally wrong in my view is that too many economists interested in business cycles nowadays suffer from the same disease and have become decadent Keynesians. They have adapted the Keynesian analysis to the framework of the national accounts and are using it in that modified version as a tool to forecast short cycles. In my view, the Keynesian model was not built for that purpose.



LAMONTAGNE

Lord Keynes was quite properly impressed by the Great Depression and developed, perhaps unconsciously, an explanation and remedies for medium-term business fluctuations. Somehow, these cycles seem to have disappeared from the scene. In spite of this, many concepts and prescriptions introduced by Keynes are still valid and useful. This does not mean, however, that they are directly applicable to short cycles. Moreover, the framework of the national accounts is not very useful to detect and measure fluctuations of short duration.

GNP and its major components move rather slowly and cannot be used as an early warning system for turning points, because they reflect all the conflicting tendencies which are always present in a national economy, including those economic phenomena which do not or only slowly react to short-term changes. We have here, I believe, the fundamental reason why our forecasting system has been wrong so often or right too late: we have been using the wrong analytical basis and the wrong measurement framework to anticipate short-run fluctuations.

Out of Balance

Basically, these variations can be described as inventory cycles. Inventories can be accumulated for various reasons. But when they begin to rise involuntarily and on a broad basis, it usually means that the economy is temporarily out of balance, because production has grown more rapidly than demand. This process of inventory accumulation cannot go on indefinitely which means that eventually production and employment have to slow down. When involuntary inventories can be liquidated, the economy is back on the road to discovery. This whole process is faithfully reflected in the manufacturing sector by the ratio of inventory owned to shipments.

I suggest that we have to look much more carefully than we have done in the past in this general area of leading indicators if we want to develop a more sensitive warning system to forecast cyclical turning points. Short-term forecasting will always remain a risky venture but I am convinced that we could quite easily make it less uncertain. The Economic Council has made recommendations to that effect which have not yet been implemented.

Whether or not North America is now experiencing the emergence of another recession is largely a question of semantics which is better left to practising politicians. It is more significant to say that the economy has been slowing down and that this movement will continue at least until present government policies in the United States and Canada are reversed. This slowing down of the economy began even before the government announced its austerity program last summer and it is now recognized by everybody. The governor of the Bank of Canada wrote in his annual report published last Friday that:

Expansion Slowdown

"For the balance of the year or during the last three quarters of 1969, the underlying trend—if one looks through the distorting effects of the important strikes that occurred—was that expansion was proceeding at a distinctly lower rate."

The Minister of Finance admitted in his recent budget speech that the Canadian economy in the fiscal year 1970-71 will be, and I quote "operating at a lower percentage of capacity than during 1969-70."

The Minister went on to add: "If we could be concerned only with the pressure of total demands upon our productive capacity and markets, further action would not be necessary." But then, he announced his intention to curtail consumer credit which will hit only poorer people and further weaken the already softest spot of the economy, the sector of consumer durable goods. The Governor of the Bank of Canada, in his report, made a similar statement when he wrote:

"The purpose of restraint is not, however, to slow down the economy for its own sake but as a means of slowing down the price and cost increase in order to provide a solid base for sustainable economic expansion."

Such statements and similar ones made in the United States by Arthur Burns in particular, bring me to my second and more fundamental concern about the conventional economic wisdom which developed in the postwar period with respect to fiscal and monetary policies designed to combat inflation. In my view, we are now witnessing in this policy sector and in several countries of the western world, especially perhaps in the United States, the worst aberration since the Great Depression. Before the New Deal, governments tried to fight massive unemployment by increasing trade restrictions, reducing public expenditures, raising taxes and monetary restraints. The hope was to restore the state of confidence of business and, through so-called responsible public financing, to induce producers to start the economy rolling again.

Lord Keynes refuted this deeply rooted aberration very convincingly. He clearly showed that deficient aggregate demand, not the lack of supply, was the real source of trouble and that easy money and systematic deficit financing were the only effective cure for massive unemployment.

Economic Heresy

Keynesianism was seen at first as a heresy; it soon become a dogma after the Second World War. The new school of economics did not only accept the proposed remedies for unemployment, it reversed the prescription to apply it to inflation. Thus, reduced public spending, higher taxes, budget surpluses and monetary restrictions became part of the new dogma and were designed to be used against rapidly rising prices. This approach contained a very important implicit assumption which was not noted by the new doctrine: it supposed that inflation was essentially of a cyclical character and came from excessive aggregate demand. It worked well in the early 1950s when that assumption fitted our situation. This greatly contributed to strengthen the new dogma.

Increasing Prices

During the 1957-58 depression, however, the amazement was great when prices continued to rise. How could we possibly have at the same time rising unemployment caused by a deficient aggregate demand and increasing prices resulting from excessive over-all demand? Indeed, demand could not be both deficient and excessive at the same moment. Puzzlement led to confusion: during the fiscal year 1958-59, we had a huge budget deficit by accident and tight money by purpose, at least in relative terms.

I was almost like St. John the Baptist preaching in the desert when I said at the Liberal Thinkers' Conference in Kingston in 1960: "Rising prices can also originate from the supply side, more precisely from sectors where monopolistic controls predominate. The use of market power can lead to a rise in prices which is not proportional to increasing costs or which is not associated with a rise in demand. Initially, such a rise in prices is limited to those sectors of the economy characterized by administered pricing and monopolistic controls, but ultimately, it tends to be transferred to other sectors in the form of increased costs."

The reality of cost-push inflation is now more generally recognized at least in theory. This kind of inflation is structural, not cyclical in character and it originates from the use of monopolistic controls on the supply side, not from excessive over-all demand. Thus, it is quite possible to have at the same time cost-push inflation and deficient aggregate demand, rising prices and recession. What happens is that a monopolistic supply adjusts itself to a slow-down in demand by raising inventories, reducing employment and production while attempting to increase or at least to maintain prices. This is precisely what is happening now.

In this connection, it is interesting to observe the behavior of the wage-profit cycle. Labor income per unit of output does not decline any more with our present system of collective bargaining. Its rate of increase merely tends to slow down during the last stage of a recession and the first phase of recovery. This lack of sensitivity to cyclical variations is reinforced by longer-term labor contracts which are now becoming the general pattern.

Corporate Profits

On the other hand, corporate profits per unit of output react much more violently to short-term fluctuations but they move in a direction opposite to that of labor income. They increase much more rapidly in the early phase of recovery and continue to rise more slowly at the peak of prosperity but they begin to go down early during a recession. The result of these complementary movements is that the sum of labor income and corporate profits per unit of output rises throughout the short-term cycle, although at a slower rate in the midst of a recession and accounts directly or indirectly for most of the overall increase in prices. Profits make their biggest contribution to cost-push inflation during recovery while labor income is mainly responsible for it at all stages of the cycle, partly because of the greater weight they have in the price structure.

It would be possible, of course, to sufficiently weaken overall demand so as to bring prices down. This was achieved during the Great Depression, but even then, of the 42 per cent drop in GNP which occurred between 1928 and 1933, less than 30 per cent was attributable to price reductions while more than 70 per cent was in volume or production terms and unemployment reached 19 per cent of the labor force in 1933. During the four years between 1967 and 1962, the consumer price index rose by almost 6 points while unemployment remained at an average of close to 7 per cent. These figures give us an idea of the level of unemployment that we would have to tolerate today in order to halt prices by reducing overall demand.

(Partial text of an address by Senator Maurice Lamontagne to the annual meeting of Canadian Corporate Management Company shareholders in Toronto in which he charges that monopolistic sectors in our economy are responsible for inflation. Senator Lamontagne is a Harvard-educated economist.)

Lack of Realism

But this is not the whole story. Some public statements made recently lead us to believe that if we could stop price increases through fiscal and monetary restrictions during the next few months, then we could go back to a stable situation and forget about inflation. Even the Prices and Incomes Commission, at its meeting with business representatives in February, asked for temporary price restraints.

This again reveals the lack of realism of prevailing attitudes which still assume that inflation is cyclical and therefore temporary in character. A temporary halt in prices cannot put an end to the wage-profit cycle; it is evident that as soon as the causes of the halt will be removed, the structural forces leading to cost-push inflation will reappear.

I do not hesitate to say that cyclical fiscal and monetary policies designed to discourage demand constitute a rundabout, clumsy and inefficient method of combating a structural and permanent source of inflation on the supply side. Given the imperfection of our markets, the negative effect of that approach will always be much larger on employment and production than on wages and prices. Moreover, its impact on prices can at best be temporary while the solution required must be of a continuing nature. Finally, it has most undesirable social implications.

In his last report, the Governor of the Bank of Canada listed five reasons why inflation is a bad thing. I certainly agree that it is the most regressive type of taxation and that it hits first and mainly the weakest sectors of our society. However, Mr. Rasminsky did not mention that the fiscal and monetary cures used at present have about the same undesirable effects as inflation, at least in social terms. Since their main effect is to reduce employment and curb the development of the weakest spots in our economy, rather than halt prices, it may well be that the poor will be hit twice, both by inflation and its so-called cures, while the stronger sectors of the economy, which are mainly responsible for cost-push inflation, will continue to enjoy rising incomes. In this way, what we are trying to achieve, unconsciously I am sure, is to make the poor so poor and the weak so weak that the rich and the strong will not be able to exploit them any further by pushing prices up.

Unconscious Cynicism

It is hard to believe that this unconscious cynicism has come to represent orthodoxy and that those who favor a more straightforward attack against the real source of cost-push inflation and who propose to directly curb the power of the rich and the strong to increase prices unduly are viewed as heretics and perhaps even as lunatics.

And yet, it is in this general direction that we have to move, if we really want to minimize inflation without creating greater human misery. It would be wonderful if voluntary controls could work effectively. Unfortunately, I do not think they will, at least in the long run. How could we expect self-restraint to work in a situation of collective irresponsibility. I am afraid that compulsion will have to be used in some form and in some areas to curb the power of bigness in business and in labor unions.

I do not like public controls more than anybody else; I know their limitations and their administrative difficulties. I am aware that it will take a great deal of political courage and leadership to impose them. But they do not really deserve the anathema which has been pronounced against them after the Second World War, especially when they are used to replace excessive private controls.

Blame Monopolies

There are also other measures less drastic than price and wage controls, such as perhaps special excess profit or payroll taxes which could be taken to discourage the wage-profit spiral in the monopolistic sectors of our economy. Moreover, our choice is rather limited: either we persist in forcing the poor and the weak to bear the burden of inflation and of the so-called cures that we are now using or we decide to go directly and squarely at the root of cost-push inflation and to place the burden of fighting it where it belongs, that is on the strong monopolistic sectors in our economy. It is more difficult of course to fight the powerful on the business and labor fronts than to punish the weak but the long and arduous battle against inflation will not be won otherwise. This is one of the most complex challenges that governments have to face at the present time in the Western world.

In conclusion, I want to re-emphasize that we should now concentrate on the direct approach to combat structural inflation, dissociate general fiscal and monetary policies from that fight and reorient them towards the purpose of short-term stability and long-term growth. In order to achieve this goal under present circumstances, we should have easier and cheaper money, abandon the idea of consumer credit restrictions and eliminate the surplus contemplated in the recent budget, through selective tax cuts. This may sound heretic from the point of view of the conventional wisdom. But for me, this is just plain common sense.

Attractive Plan for the Gorge

By ART STOTT

Stott

When we were boys at the "Free," and later at the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club's Gorge quarters upstream at the foot of Inez Drive, low tide was a problem. When the water was out, any decent dive from boards at either place landed you wrist deep in mud and clam shells. You could stand up and walk around in the VASC enclosure if you didn't mind the uncomfortable bottom. And the smell was bad.

The new plan prepared by Frank E. Neate, Saanich's senior design engineer, for the Gorge waterway would provide a solution, at least during the summer months. It would dam the inlet just downstream from Banfield Park.

The plan has several attractions for old Victorians who have been wondering what to do about the Gorge for the last 40 years or more. It sounds practical. It takes into consideration modern developments and up-to-date techniques to protect health. It would preserve the area and bring it into further use as a water park. It would ensure warm swimming in summer, with depth enough to reduce diving hazards by eliminating low tide. It would provide a recreation area for those who like to walk in parkland, to canoe and row on safe water, and it would remove, during hot weather at least, the noisome odor of mudflats.

The gates in the dam would be open during fall, winter and spring to permit the spawning runs of herring, trout and salmon. If continually high salt water in summertime did not injure bankside trees, the proposal would favor filling from the incoming tide. Should the saline content be too high for tree survival, then fresh water drainage would be trapped instead.

This isn't a scheme you can look at and say, "Swell. Let's do it," just like that. There are problems. A change in ecology would occur and the benefits of the change would have to be weighed against the disadvantages. Arrangements would have to be made in connection with the navigable waters' act. Some property would have to be acquired to round out the project, with park provisions near the Gorge Road Hospital. Certain advantages would accrue to residents on the shore and from them certain concessions would be expected. Studies would have to be made of algae growth. And a number of old concepts would be discarded.

The historic proposal to cut a canal through to Esquimalt harbor would be abandoned, partly on grounds of costs, partly because this flushing device, if it worked, would introduce cold water too regularly. Dredging of Portage Inlet, also a suggestion widely publicized in former years, might be feasible, but highly expensive in the opinion of the planner.

Moreover, the pollution problem as it is generally understood would be regarded in different perspective. Modern testing methods have indicated that more pollution goes up the Gorge on the tide from Victoria Harbor than runs in from drainage in Saanich. The latter source, it is noted, would be reduced by sewer projects now in the works.

Most appealing to me is the philosophy inherent in the report. Frank Neate has been realistic, but he has blended realism with an appreciation for the advantages of a water park within walking or bicycling distance of a densely populated section of our community—and he wants to keep it as natural in appearance as possible.

Mr. Neate harbors no dream of a revival of the Gorge as the one and only major swimming hole for the entire community. That idea lost validity in the 'thirties, with expanded ownership of automobiles. Many swimmers will prefer to go to Elk Lake, Thetis and other regions within comfortable driving distance—as they were beginning to do in the last days of the old VASC at the Gorge.

At the same time, he sees the virtues of the easily accessible region, with swimming facilities to meet the desires of city, Saanich and Esquimalt residents in relatively close proximity. Right in town, he points out, we have a recreational asset that many cities would give their eye-teeth to possess. And we're going to need more recreational assets of this type as the population grows.

He sees a regional authority as the most effective jurisdictional administrative unit—with representation from the city, Esquimalt, Saanich and the provincial government, all of whom have foreshore on the proposed enclosed water.

We've been talking about Gorge improvement for several decades now. The Neate report seems to offer a way of effecting it with fewer obstacles than others I've read or heard about. There are admittedly bugs in the concept and a lot of red tape to cut. It won't recreate the Gorge of my youth — but then I'm finding it increasingly difficult to recreate that youth itself.

The man who designed a feasible and attractive plan for the basin from Elk Lake to Portage has, in my view, come up with another feasible and attractive plan for the downstream reach. It should arouse enthusiasm.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Ban Extended on Seaway

Ban on short selling in the shares and warrants of Seaway Multi Corp., which has moved sharply higher in recent weeks as Argus Inc. and the Levy family of Toronto fought for control of the conglomerate in the open market, was extended to the Canadian Stock Exchange today.

In Montreal, exchange officials said that beginning Friday Seaway issues will be on a cash-only basis until further notice. The Toronto exchange imposed similar restrictions earlier this week.

Trading in Seaway common was light today both at Montreal and Toronto.

AT TORONTO, Hudson's Bay was down 2½ to 45½, Seaway 1¾ to 17¼, ISO Ltd. 1¼ to 10⅜ and Seagrams ¾ to 53¾.

Simpson Sears was up ¾ to 25¾, Consolidated-Bathurst ⅝ to 20½, Federal Grain ¼ to 7 and Bank of Montreal ⅛ to 16⅜.

Kerr Addison was down ½ to 14 and Lake Dufault ⅜ to 18½. Sherritt gained ¾ to 21⅝.

Central-Del Rio lost ⅜ to 12¼ and Canadian Homestead 30 cents to $9.40. Alberta Eastern Gas gained 15 cents to $5.95.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn futures declined from 1 to 1½ cents on the Board of Trade today but rallied late in the session and early losses were halved.

Soybean oil advanced to new highs for the season in the two options, and meal and beans also closed on a strong tone.

The selling of corn futures was influenced by a favorable turn in the weather which would make field work more accessible, and to a report that the U.S. government has sold a large amount of barley, which could be used as a feed grain. Trade sources noted that the wheat crop was progressing well and this tended to have a bearish influence on prices. Oats and rye prices generally trended lower.

Canada Steamship

Canada Steamship Lines Ltd. reports 1969 net earnings of $8 million, up $650,000 from 1968, or $2.50 per share on 2.99 million outstanding shares, against $2.61 on 2.59 million shares in the previous year.

Net gain from capital transactions, not included above, was $3 million, compared with $1 million in 1968.

Revenue was a record $166.9 million, up $37.6 million.

Home Oil

Home Oil Ltd. had net earnings before extraordinary items in 1969 of $5 million or 73 cents a share compared with $4.45 million or 83 cents a share in 1968.

In its annual report, the Calgary-based company said net earnings including an extraordinary net loss of $466,000 resulting from security transactions, amounted to $4.55 million or 66 cents a share.

President R. A. Brown Jr. said gross income for the year of $27.7 million compared with $25.4 million in 1968 was the highest ever recorded by the company. It was offset by higher interest costs due to home's substantially increased investments.

Canadian Western

Canadian Western Natural Gas Co. Ltd. had net income of $3 million or $1.44 a share in 1969 compared with $2.78 million or $1.32 a share in 1968.

The Calgary-based company said gas sales increased by 4.2 billion cubic feet to 71.4 billion cubic feet.

Revenue in 1969 was $25 million compared with $23.4 million in 1968.

Western Mines

In an end-of-the-year report based on the last three months of 1969, Western Mines Ltd. reports earnings of $2.4 million or 47 cents a share compared with $479,052 or 10 cents a share for the same period in 1968.

The company, which changed the end of its fiscal year from Sept. 30 to Dec. 31 last year, said the reasons for the big increase in earnings in 1969 were higher tonnage milled, improved metallurgy and substantially higher copper prices.

Western Mines' working capital increased from $5.45 million at Sept. 30, 1969 to $6.7 million at Dec. 31, 1969.

Dividends

Divident payments by Canadian companies during the first four months of 1970 are 10 per cent ahead of the same period a year ago and 6 per cent higher than in the previous record period in 1968.

April payments also are substantially better, reports Bongard Leslie and Co. Ltd.

In the four months of this year a total $502.19 million was earmarked for distribution, compared with $456.46 million last year and $471.89 million in the first four months of 1968.

April will see disbursement of $114.4 million, up from $103.2 million a year ago. The most improvement is shown by the mining section, which was more than double at $5.75 million.

Resistance Builds in U.S. Against Japanese Imports

By HOBART ROWEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — The debate on trade restrictions between this country and the Japanese, and between us and the Common Market is reaching an unpleasant stage. Nasty things are being said on all sides, and even harsher things threatened.

It all focuses on the fact, as Nixon economist Hendrik Houthakker put it the other day, that "the ancient fallacy of mercantilism, which holds that exports are good and imports are bad, continues to have a distressing amount of influence."

Thus, strong resistance has built up in this country against a flood of Japanese textile imports; at the same time, the Japanese (despite their very large export surplus) have crippling quota restrictions against American manufactures — automobiles, for example.

The European Common Market, which has strong protectionist leanings, has a complicated agricultural policy which acts as a senious obstacle to our exports of farm and food products. The EEC also has made a number of "association" agreements with smaller countries, notably in the Mediterranean area, that violate the most-favored-nation principle.

OBNOXIOUS SCHEME

Our hands are not clean, either. One especially obnoxious scheme is the American selling price system, which levies duties on chemicals at the equivalent price here—no matter if the real imported cost is cheaper. In addition, we have very specific quotas, some "voluntary" on many important commodities, notably oil, steel, textiles, beef, and dairy products.

The issue has become particularly touchy in the case of Japanese textiles. President Nixon made clear during the 1968 campaign that his commitment to free trade didn't go all the way—textiles were a special case.

There is an obvious link to the fact that the problem is acute in South Carolina, whose distinguished senator, Strom Thurmond, was instrumental in moving much of the moderate, middle-class southern vote into the Republican column.

It's not a new issue. A well-heeled textile lobby has been fighting for restrictions for many years, claiming the loss of business and the loss of jobs. It has picked up powerful allies in the trade union movement.

STRONG SUPPORTER

Moreover, they have acquired a champion in commerce secretary Maurice Stans, who insists that Japanese textile exports must be steadily trimmed back—or at least forced to grow more slowly—over a 5-year period, or legislation will be inevitable.

That there has been a deterioration of our trade balance with Japan is not arguable: in the past eight years, a favorable ($100 million export surplus has turned into a $1.5 billion deficit—and some $900 million of that is attributable to textiles.

The problem is what to do about it, and how. Stans has been in charge of getting an agreement with the Japanese, and he himself is about to score the effort a failure.

How to proceed at this point is a source of bitter argument withing the administration.

Our problems with the Europeans also seem to offer no easy solutions. In the Nixon trade bill now before Congress, the administration offered to abolish the ASP system, in return for relaxation of some of the European trade barriers.

So far, it has been no dice. As a matter of fact, assistant commerce secretary Kenneth N. Davis, Jr., pointed out, at the very time Europe shows its outrage against ASP, a tripartite accord among France, Germany, and Britain is about to impose new discriminatory inspection standards against imported electronic components.

Facsimile Newspaper Produced

TOKYO (AP) — The Asahi Shimbun unveiled Tuesday an experimental home facsimilie newspaper printer which prints both sides of a page simultaneously.

In a demonstration, two sides of a specially-developed paper, midway in size between an ordinary newspaper and a tabloid, were printed legible in five minutes 40 seconds.

The development, the Tokyo newspaper said, was a continuing experiment to collect technical data for evaluating the feasibility of servicing homes with a facsimile newspaper on a commercial basis.

This model is called AT3. It and an earlier AT2 were developed jointly by Asahi and the Tokyo Shibarura Electric Co. Ltd. Toshiba.

An electrostatic recording system uses two recording heads equipped with multiple, needle-shaped steel electrodes. It has three selector buttons marked "general news," "stocks," and "sports" to permit selection of any of the three reports.

Asahi said the AT3, if mass produced, could be sold at a cost of a color TV set. It added that many technical and other problems remain to be solved before the facsimile system can be used for home reception.

Additional Loans Seen For Home Building

By A. B. KENT

Substantially more lending money for the housing industry will result within two years if a prediction by a Canadian pension authority comes true.

Donald R. Anderson, senior actuary for Canada and partner in Kates, Peat, Marwick and Co., was in Victoria as part of western tour to organize growing interest in pension trusts.

He is president of Canadian Pension Conference, a Toronto-based organization of industrial, financial, insurance, professional, labor and government bodies, and his visit to Vancouver this week was to establish a western branch of the organization.

He predicted, in an interview, that pension trusts which now are heavily invested in common stocks will swing toward mortgages and real estate investments in an effort to obtain maximum fund performance.

With heavy demand for mortgage money, the yields are excellent and mortgages are relatively risk-free. "No one ever heard of losing on a mortgage," Anderson remarked.

He said one major Canadian pension fund already is benefiting from real estate revenue, and he noted that the biggest trust company in the country has a mortgage fund.

FOLLOW TREND

Canadian funds follow American funds, Anderson said, and when U.S. pension trusts were noted to be 50, 60 or 70 per cent invested in common equities, rather than the traditional bonds and fixed income securities, several years ago, the Canadian funds finally followed.

But in the last two years, stock market performance has fallen off, and a countermovement to shift pension investment emphasis to mortgages and real estate is growing.

The conference is helping to finance a doctoral thesis by Richard Brooks-Hill, who is using a computer to analyze Canadian vs. American pension fund performance. His report is expected to be ready this summer.

Anderson said the interest in pensions is growing with the realization that $12 billion is invested in trusteed and insured pension funds in Canada, not counting Canada Pension Plan and government employee pension plans. An estimated $1 billion a year is being added, Anderson said.

Many companies have pension funds containing $100 million, to which an improved yield of 1 per cent means another $1 million a year. Pension trustees today are talking about improvement of 5 per cent or more, he noted.

Another trend, which is established in the larger industrial centres of the East, is toward companies paying the entire sum toward pension and retirement funds of their employees, representing a move away from the traditional shared contributions.

And unions also are negotiating cost-of-living increments for their retired members as a means of combatting the erosion caused by inflation. Very few have these, but United Auto Workers is one of the leaders, Anderson said.

"There's a very lively interest in pensions and the way they provide for the legitimate needs of people. The conference is a way of providing them with a forum, but it must have a national impact, coast to coast," Anderson said.

Howard Forrest, B.C. superannuation commissioner; a representative of William M. Mercer Ltd., consulting actuary, Vancouver; the Royal Trust Co., and University of B.C. academic planner Dr. Robert M. Clark, will be among those attending the Vancouver meeting. Anderson said a May convention in the west may be arranged.

The Toronto meeting, April 23 and 24, will discuss how to provide security programs, both public and private.

$400 Million Hike in Cost Of Pipeline

CALGARY (CP) — The Trans Alaska pipeline system is going to cost $400,000,000 more than originally expected, Home Oil Co. Ltd. of Calgary says in its annual report.

Home, which has entered into a commitment to participate to the extent of two per cent in the system, says the initial cost of the 800-mile project now is estimated at $1,300,000,000 in United States funds. This compares with estimates of $900,000,000 in February.

The 48-inch pipeline would move crude oil from the North Slope to Valdez on the Gulf of Alaska. Completion is scheduled for mid-1972 with initial planned capacity of 500,000 barrels a day. The system is capable of being expanded to 2,000,000 barrels a day.

R. A. Brown Jr., Home president, says the results of major companies on the North Slope indicate that earlier estimates of oil reserves must be raised substantially.

He says that the recently published report of the U.S. oil task force said that although precise projections are not available, North Slope reserves will amount to between 50,000,000,000 and 100,000,000,000 barrels and could easily support production of 3,000,000 barrels a day by 1980.

Until recently the main concentration effort has been in the Prudhoe Bay area but indications now point to expansion of exploration in other directions.

New electronic devices have revolutionized accounting techniques and have enabled the Chartered Accountant to spend more time on the analytical and interpretive aspects of his profession. Whether serving in an advisory capacity, or as a company executive, a Chartered Accountant is a key man in the modern corporate function. The breadth of his training and experience, in a wide variety of businesses, qualifies him to make an intelligent appraisal of a company's overall operations, to recommend changes in accounting procedures, to set up an entirely new system of accounts, and to advise on any financial problem.

POLLUTION WAR WARMING UP

By KORKY KOROLUK

DETROIT (CP) — Pollution is growing as a source of public concern.

Bombarded with pollution stories in newspapers, on radio and television, the public has become not apathetic, but more aware.

An indication of this is two recent polls in the state of Michigan.

In July, 1968, a poll taken by the state Democratic party, showed pollution 14th as an area of public concern. Six months ago, a poll taken by the Republican party showed pollution had climbed to fourth place, behind law and order, race relations and the Vietnam war.

Seminars on pollution are springing up. There was one at the University of Michigan in nearby Ann Arbor last weekend; another is planned in Sarnia, Ont. this weekend.

The talk at these seminars is tough.

John E. Kinney of Ann Arbor said the "agitated malcontents and genuinely concerned citizens don't know the facts, have no specific and realistic concepts of environment they want and thus, without knowledge, indulge their frustrations in violent symbolic acts against 'the establishment' as proposals for correction."

FORECAST CLEANUP

There are also glowing predictions.

James Kelly, an executive with Dow Chemical in Midland, Mich., predicted that Michigan would have clean air by 1974. He didn't say how much that clean air would cost.

Yet Dr. Ralph A. MacMullan, director of the state department of natural resources, said recently it would take $1,250,000,000 to eliminate all the state's water pollution problems, and expressed fear that the public would lose its enthusiasm for the anti-pollution crusade when people realize the huge costs involved.

People are quick to impute political motives.

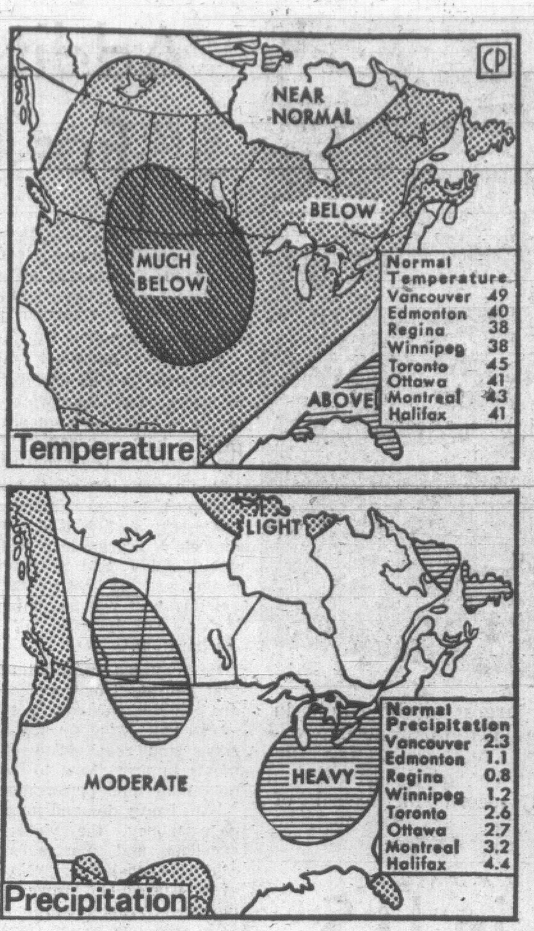
Democratic State Senator Sander Levin has a bill before the legislature which would make it possible for ordinary citizens to take polluters to court for damaging the environment. If passed, it would make Michigan the first state to give the individual such a hefty legal club.

POINT TO CANDIDACY

But Sen. Levin's critics point out that this is an election year, and Sen. Levin has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor.

If Sen. Levin is accused of being an election-year conservationist, he's not alone. Republican Warren Goemaere, co-chairman of the house conservation and recreation committee, has estimated that about 70 anti-pollution bills will be presented at the present session of the state legislature.

Action is taken in spite of objections from industry. The sale of DDT was banned last June over objections from the chemical industry after it became clear that its use endangered commercial fishing and the tourist industry.



BELOW NORMAL TEMPERATURES are expected to cover the country during April according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. Moderate to heavy precipitation is expected to cover the country. (CP Newsmap).

Fair Depends On Computers

By JACK TRACY

OSAKA (CP) — Without computers and electronics, Japan's well-run $2,300,000,000 Expo '70 could collapse in chaos.

Canada pioneered world's fair handling with its electronic central operations room at Expo 67 in Montreal which controlled crowds and transport, but the Japanese, who have built a huge industry on the American-invented transistor, are completely dependent on it here.

The first time it hits the visitor is in Festival Plaza, Expo's central meeting place of nations and setting for all formal events and public entertainment.

Two giant robots, Deme and Deku, move silently over the 129,000 square feet of the plaza, controlling lights, sound effects and even the surrounding fountains.

Deme, a 50-ton giant, is the performance robot which controls sound and illumination and even emits perfumed fog as it moves about at 30 yards a minute. Technicians connect it with inch-thick cables, like umbilical cords, to plugs in the floor. Its operators sit 42 feet up in two plastic bubbles.

IN THEIR HANDS

But long before the visitor gets to Festival Plaza he is in the hands of electronics.

Coils laid underground at exits and entrances to parking areas flash the number of vehicles to central control. If one area is crowded, the computer starts highway signs flashing and drivers are directed around an outer loop road to an empty lot.

Moving walk-ways, literally human conveyor belts moving in opposite directions within plastic, air-conditioned tubes, fan out from the central area to the four compass points of the fair. Computer data enable guards to change directions as they did when dense crowds headed for the moon-rock display at the American pavilion, making both walkways move in the same direction.

All 100 guard boxes around the fair are equipped for electronic data reporting. At 18 spots around the 815-acre site, information boards show traffic conditions at 140 points.

When the board shows two white lights, a visitor may expect to enter his chosen pavilion in 20 minutes. White and red mean a longer wait and two reds suggest he should go somewhere else.

Even the monorail—six four-car trains which come along every 2½ minutes and stop at seven strategic points on a 2.7-mile route—is automated. The blue-and-white monorail, free to visitors, does the work of the famed Expo Express and Mini-rail at Expo 67, serving both as transport and sight-seeing vehicle.

FINDS LOST KIDS

Computers even keep track of lost children. Free tags issued at the gates have duplicate serial numbers. One is pinned on the child; the parent keeps the other.

A lost child is looked after by a nursery hostess who feeds the serial number into a computer. The parent, at a distant point in the fair grounds, can compare serial numbers at an information booth and even identify the lost child on closed-circuit TV.

Since many early Expo visitors have been country people travelling in groups where the leader carries an identifying banner, stray adults have been giving fair hostesses more trouble than lost children.

Such groups can pick up group serial numbers at 13 booths. The stray adult can punch out his serial number at an information booth along with the time and place he wants to rejoin his group and the information is relayed to other group members who may be looking for him.

This information is in Japanese but multilingual attendants can help people who speak other languages.

Antique Market Going Wild

NEW YORK (AP) — Collectors of antiques are cashing in on their foresight.

In a decade old furnishings have doubled and sometimes tripled in value, and many people are investing in antiques—as in paintings—as a hedge against inflation.

Anyone who bought an 18th century English carved and gilt Chippendale mirror back 10 years a go probably paid $1,450 for it. It now is worth about $3,500. And the little collector's investment of $2 in an ironstone platter has escalated to more than $20 in today's market.

Fine antiques, in particular, are on the upswing; last year a small table once owned by Marie Antoinette sold for more than $100,000. The same is true for American antiques. A Pennsylvania highboy was sold for $65,000 in the opening minutes of last year's Winter Antiques Show in New York.

Such investment potentials have brought more antiques buyers into the auction rooms, sending prices soaring, creating a scarcity of antiques, and all but obliterating the beginner-collectors who formerly could get started on pressed glass, Staffordshire or porcelain oyster dishes at $1.

Auction bidders were confounded recently when a pair of flame-topped brass andirons of the Paul Revere type sold at Parke-Bernet Galleries in New York for $6,000. This was $5,000 more than pre-sale estimates. At a Newport, R.I., sale, a Russian porcelain statuette of a terrier (1840) sold for $1,650, more than four times the price anticipated.

The antiques business in the U.S. is estimated to be in excess of $750,000,000 a year, a rise of $300,000,000 in 10 years.

Some dealers express alarm at prices being paid by beginners for what they consider altered and inferior antiques. One well-known New York dealer says space problems have made smaller antiques more valuable than larger, more important items. This is creating an out-of-kilter market.

British Columbia has its advantages
—We're one of them.

We keep your savings working too

When you put a portion of your salary into a B.C. Banksavings Account you're not only developing good savings habits, you'll be receiving the highest rates of interest — a big 6½%. And, while you're taking care of your individual needs, your savings are being re-invested right here in British Columbia, helping to develop your Province. That's what we mean when we say "we keep your savings working too".

B.C. Banksavings Accounts are pure savings accounts, paying high interest and designed to help you save more money more easily. Withdrawals can be made by you personally, at any time. Here are a few more savings programs that we've developed to fit your personal needs. All of them help you, help yourself.

Chequing-Savings Account

Some of us like to have just one account for both chequing and saving. This account allows you to write cheques on it for a minimal charge and pays 4½% interest.

Certificates of Deposit

If you can leave your savings for a longer period of time, Certificates of Deposit are the ideal savings program. They represent an agreement whereby you deposit money for a specific length of time, on the understanding that we'll pay a higher interest rate for the use of the money. For an example, depositing a minimum of $1,000 and leaving it for one year will earn you 7½% interest; leave it for two years and over and you'll earn a big 7¾% interest. Withdrawal from the agreement is of course permissible at any time, with a small adjustment of interest.

So, like we say, if you're finding it difficult to save... relax, we'll help; after all who better than us understands British Columbians?

Wheel To Deals!

The aroused "Nice Nellies" of the Victoria branch are pessimistic about bringing about meaningful change without the massive organized support of women shoppers—"a dismal failure here," in the words of one of them—but they're convinced that the individual consumer can still exert pressure.

"The large corporations control the whole mechanism of the market, but there is still a choice for the shopper who takes the trouble to inform herself," in the opinion of the branch president.

"Last year, when the price of bacon was so high, a lot of people settled independently on a price beyond which they would not go," Mrs. Forrest said. "People would go up to the bacon counter and it would be $1.29 and so on and they'd leave it, let it just sit there. It did come down to 99 cents within a few weeks. This was by no means an organized effort, but it had the desired effect."

Mrs. Ruth Clay, home economist and an executive member of the organization, gave another example of individual decision.

"Price alone is not the only factor to be guarded against," she explains. "Take the case of a certain toothpaste marked with a weight of 172 grams. With that alone it's impossible to compare values with another product. In that case, if they don't play fair in giving you understandable information, you simply don't buy."

They strongly advocate a hunt-and-seek method for shoppers with wheels, to beat the supermarkets at their own game. A discriminating shopper last week, for example, could have found wide discrepancies in prices within the Victoria area and could have made these among many other savings:

Campbell's chicken-and-rice soup and mushroom soup at 17 cents a can rather than 21-and-a-half cents.

An 11-ounce bottle of tomato catsup at 24-and-a-half cents rather than 29 cents.

"You have to buy as much as you can storage when there's a genuine special," says Mrs. Clay, "because you know it won't be on again for two months or more. Milk powder is a good example. I bought six five-pound packages of it at a special price. That hasn't come on again since and I'm just beginning to run out. This kind of thing only works when you can afford it. I had to juggle things that week. But this is what women have to learn in the name of budgetting."

Mrs. Forrest: "Yes, to shop successfully you have to be flexible within a rigid framework. Last week there was a five-pound bag of soap, regularly priced at $1.49, for $1.29. Those are the things to watch for."

Mrs. Clay: "First you use your brain, then your pencil, then your Econo-Meter to work out your unit price. The whole thing is to know your enemy. If you look at it that way then you'll be prepared."

But they're firmly agreed, too, that the markets retain constant control of "bargains" and limit the range of selectivity to items of their own corporate choice.

"Things that are acceptable to the consumer and widely used often disappear mysteriously from the supermarket shelves," notes Mrs. Rolls. "We are continually receiving complaints about it from our members. For instance, frozen fish. There are fewer and fewer straight frozen fish fillets that you can cook any way you want and more and more breaded fish products with a heavy batter. That means you're paying fish prices for frozen flour and water. Obviously there's going to be more profit in the breaded product and so it is a decision of the producer transferred to the consumer."

Mrs. Morriss, who will pass the information on to the public at tonight's Facts on Food forum, said that there was a suspicious uniformity of "specials" on a province-wide basis.

"Big business decides what will be the specials. It is a headquarters decision, not a matter of supply and demand established by conditions at the local store," she said. "Last week all over the province there were 'flyers' offering pork at low, but similar prices. The week before it was turkey and ham. Everybody had this on. The week before that it was standing rib roast. Chicken will be coming up in a few weeks. We can see by this that the 'specials' are not caused by an excess of products on hand but by a prearranged plan by the major producers. That puts the control in their hands, not in response to the consumer's buying pattern."

The only defence, in the view of the CAC vigilantes, is to understand and resist the supermarket merchandising techniques and, in the uncharacteristically un-ladylike assessment of Mrs. Forrest: "Don't let them sucker you."

They offer a number of general rules to this end:

Stick to a shopping list. Impulse buying can ruin your budget. ("Except," adds Mrs. Forrest, "when you recognize a good buy, take it. Keep in mind that you don't have to be manipulated. After all, nobody marches you to the store and takes the money out of your purse. The ultimate responsibility is with the spender.")

Read labels. Get what you really want. Don't pay extra for fancy packaging, gimmicks or contests. ("There's never something for nothing in a supermarket," says Mrs. Clay. "Every sales gimmick is paid for by the shopper. She should resent it and fight it.")

Compare prices of fresh, canned and frozen foods. Buy the form best suited to your needs.

Remember that cheaper cuts of meat are as high in food value at the more expensive ones. ("Here's the toughest problem of all," warns Mrs. Morriss, "because there's a shocking need for a revision of the standards of grading meats.

Deceptive Pricing

"It's important, too, to compare the cost per serving after the meat has been cooked. They will advertise a blade roast, bone out, and you'll find that the blade was removed, but the rib is still there and the rib is at least a third of it. It's deceptive. You may pay lower prices, but if you're paying for bone and fat sometimes its wiser to spend more. Remember, too, that in buying something like a stuffed pork roast you're paying meat prices for the bread that's in there.")

Packaged mixes and prepared frozen specialties are expensive. Decide which is more important: the time spared or the money saved.

("This is where women who are working wives may have to take a different view," admits Mrs. Leona Mace, an executive member of the CAC.

"They say, understandably, that they're not going to bake if there's a simpler way, that if there's an easier product to polish a floor they'll use it whatever the cost. We recognize that women who are working don't have the time to be selective. That makes it all the more important that the full-time housewife makes her influence felt.")

Choose cereals for their food value, not for the premiums or sweet coatings. Besides, you pay more for those extras. ("This is another case where the word 'new' has a great appeal," notes Mrs. Morriss. "One recent survey showed that a majority of women buy products out of curiosity, hoping it's the magic product they've been waiting for. They buy because it is provocative.")

Large packages may be a good buy — if the cost per unit of weight or measure is less. ("Get that Econo-Meter working," advises Mrs. Clay.)

Skim milk, fluid or powdered, is more economical than whole milk. Make up the vitamin A loss by serving green or yellow vegetables or extra butter or fortified margarine. ("All forms of milk may have vitamin D added, but it's not compulsory," explains Mrs. Morriss. "The majority of the milk products in British Columbia have it added, but some don't. There's no educational program available for consumers on this kind of thing.")

No Magic Product

You need a vitamin C food every day, but it needn't be expensive oranges or grapefruit. If it's more economical, use potatoes, baked or boiled in their skin, or cabbage, turnip or cauliflower.

Looking at the whole complicated problem of the trusting shopper, the Victoria members see it as a kind of harassment of women who, in Mrs. Forrest's words, "get fed up with the continuous struggle, beating their brains out, killing themselves fussing constantly over prices."

Some accept the bitter estimate of one of their strongest supporters, Evelyn Caldwell,

the Vancouver shopping-guide columnist, that "people are fools, they're damn fools, the supermarkets rule them."

"Unfortunately," says Mrs. Morriss, "the consumer can't simply take the view that it is an interesting challenge and a matter of individual discretion and competition with an adversary. It is not enough to accept what is there in the supermarket and battle it within the existing structure. You have to get angry at it organize on an influential scale to change the structure, to stop letting big business and big corporations make the rules. Only then will the supermarket be anything less than a jungle."

COMPARE, don't grab, is the advice of the Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association. Mrs. N. Jackson and Mrs. N. Noble, both of 1850 San Lorenzo, do just this on their weekly safari to what has been termed "the supermarket jungle." (Strickland Photo).

Marijuana Pedlars Reap $850 Million in Business

WASHINGTON (WP) — The House select committee on crime reported Tuesday that three million regular users of marijuana in the United States spend $850 million a year for the drug that "clearly has become big business."

In its first report on its investigation of crime in the United States, the committee joined the administration and the Senate in urging that the penalty for first-time possession of marijuana be reduced from a felony with a minimum two-year prison term to a misdemeaner with a maximum of one year.

TOO SEVERE

While medical authorites differ on the possible harmful effects of marijuana, the committee said that "in the case of simple possession" the present federal penalty appears too severe for the harm done. It noted that 23 states have reduced penalties for first-time possession to misdemeanor status.

The report's principal recommendation was that the U.S. public health service should prepare a definitive scientific report on marijuana as it did for cigarettes in 1964.

The National Institute of Mental Health told the committee it would take two or three years to complete studies now under way to make such a report.

The committee was told by the institute that a marijuana user does not become dependent on it as does a heroin addict, and that use of marijuana does not necessarily lead to use of more dangerous drugs. But it puts the user in association with narcotic addicts and may thus lead to more dangerous drug use, the committee was told.

The committee, headed by Rep. Claude Pepper (D—Fla.) said that of the "hundreds of young people" who testified before it only one young narcotic dependent had not started his habit by experimenting with marijuana.

Meter Maids Too Aggressive

STOCKPORT, England (UPI) — The Stockport Chamber of Trade complained in its annual report that the aggressiveness of meter maids has adversely affected business.

"There have been cases where wardens chased motorists into shops and bawled them out" the group said. It urged the ladies to be a bit less zealous in carrying out their duties.

These Kids Are Aware Of Dangers!

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

There are many weapons that can be used in the fight against environmental pollution. One of the mightiest is an educated knowledge and an understanding that physical pollution of air, water and the human scene generally is increasing, not diminishing.

This knowledge should not be confined only to our adult population. It should be inculcated in our young during those formative years when, we are told, children are most receptive.

I've always believed this to be true just as I believe that the child is the citizen of the future and no asset is more important to a country or a community.

Therefore I'm quite in favor of teachers in public schools (and in colleges and universities for that matter) fostering in young people, an awareness of the dangers of pollution at all levels and the right of everyone to a liveable environment just as much as the right of free speech, freedom of the press freedom of religion.

That belief has grown even stronger since a copy of the Doncaster Dateline reached my desk.

It's a mimeographed newspaper published by Grade 7 pupils of Doncaster Elementary School. The pages are neatly columned. There's a cover cartoon, age of Aquarius editorial, a "dear horiscope" column and "suggestions for improvement of the school" section.

Thing that impresses me most however, is the number of pieces that show a good knowledge of the different forms of pollution and the battles that must be waged against them.

For instance, this bit of poetry by Grade 3 Cathy Denson.

"Pollution is ugly

Aand much, much worse
Than an evil spell
Or a wicked curse.
It's something that smells
It's something that stinks
It's all over parks
And skating rinks.
It isn't fit
For man or beast.
And so let's help
And do what we can.

Also this in more sophisticated vien from Gary Stride in Grade 7:

"Shortly ago the skies were blue,
The water from streams were drinkable too.
But now all life will be extremely short
For species of every size and sort.

"Too many people, too much waste,
Not enough brains and so much haste.
We need the answeres, we need the solution,
In order to save our world from pollution."

Janice Duckitt points out . . . "as for pollution that is a problem within a problem. It may never end, but one thing is sure it would never have started without us."

And Kym Clarke gets into print with "astronauts have already polluted the moon, and other planets very soon. So solve the problem we'll have to give to ensure more time in which to live."

This Grade 7 pupil takes a serious look at "our street". The article points to the air as being "so dirty you can hardly see" and blames it all "on industry". It speaks of water pollution . . . "the fish are dying," of pollution on land "the ground is a fright" and then suggests the "only safe moment is asleep at night."

The paper includes stories about pets, the Easter season, jokes and riddles and school sports.

Last article is headed "Age of Aquarius." In part it reads: "What about the world we're living in today? If the so called peace movers would stop fighting and rioting about peace and just take the time to see what they are accomplishing. I think they would then hold their tongues.

"Much more could be done if the young would help the older generation to create a new world. Too much is said about peace and not enough is done about it. Who cares about the color race or background of a man as long as he is trying to help the world."

What do you think of that . . . and from an elemtary school pupil?

Don't tell me these youngsters do not understand what they are talking about. Nor that they should not be given a chance to speak and to write about what they know. What they learn today may lead them to solutions. of continuing problems such as pollution —tomorrow.

Workmen Just Missed Cave-In

Did Earthquake Trigger Construction Wall Crash?

Construction of a $4,000,000 apartment block for Victoria's low-income senior citizens at View and Quadra is proceeding despite the collapse of a 20-foot-high wall Tuesday afternoon.

The collapse occurred when buckling, cribbing and shoring at the edge of the excavation caved in — a few minutes after workmen had left for the day.

A spokesman for Westpark Construction Ltd. said the collapse was due to recent heavy rain, but it could also be due to blue clay on the site.

EARTHQUAKE?

"We are repairing the damage as fast as possible, the spokesman said, "and we're taking precautions against a repetition of what happened Tuesday."

City engineer James Garnett said it was difficult to tell what caused the sudden collapse of the well-braced excavation wall.

"It could be that the earthquake tremor we had a few days ago caused a shift and increase in pressure, but it's very difficult to tell."

Garnett, who was called to the site shortly after the collapse, said the excavation was causing no problems as far as the city is concerned.

"We shall be keeping an eye on things, of course," he said. "And we shall want to make sure there is adequate bracing on the Quadra Street side of the excavation."

BIG PROBLEM

Garnett said he didn't envy the problem facing project engineers.

"They have a problem in cleaning up the mess and then a very technical problem in replacing the piles. I'm sure they'll solve it, but it will be quite a headache."

Westpark is constructing an 18-storey building — the highest in Victoria. Seventeen storeys will be apartments for low-income senior citizens. The ground floor will be occupied by commercial firms.

No estimate of the damage is yet available.

Youth Caught Stealing 26 Jackets

A 20-year-old youth pleaded guilty this morning to stealing nearly $1,400 in clothing from The Men's Room, a boutique at 613 Johnson early today.

Judge William Ostler remanded John E. Lauria, who gave police a Toronto address, to April 16 for a presentence report. Lauria also pleaded guilty to attempting to break into Bill's Smoke Shop, 609 Johnson.

Police testified that the accused climbed up on the roof of the smoke shop about 12:30 a.m., smashed the skylight but couldn't gain entry because of a ceiling below.

About 12:50 a.m., Lauria smashed the front door window of the boutique and stole 26 men's jackets, valued at $1,390, placing them in a car driven by a 14-year-old girl.

The car, police said, circled the block several times and Lauria ran out with a load of clothing each time it passed the boutique.

The vehicle was later apprehended at Johnson and Douglas and Lauria was found hiding on the boutique premises.

Car Park Approved

Downtown property owners Tuesday voted solidly in favor of a $1.5 million parking building.

The cash will provide a 400-space parking building on Johnson Street plus extra floors on the View and Yates Street parking buildings to bring the total of new parking spots to 646.

Of the 165 eligible to vote only 81 cast ballots 73 voting in favor of the project, four against and four whose ballots were rejected.

Total percentage voting was 49.09 per cent of which 90.12 per cent cast affirmative votes.

Mayor Stricken

Now Hospitals Sing Sad Song

By DON VIPOND

An Analysis

The chorus of anguish rising from B.C.'s hospitals this week is an old melody played by a new band.

Conductor of the orchestra, to music he composed himself, is Finance Minister W. A. C. Bennett. He has already made the province's school boards play the same sad song.

Bennett's problem: there is not enough tax money to do all the things people say need doing.

Bennett's, or any other government's solution: a list of priorities.

In B.C., the list reads, basically, this way: hydro development, education and health care.

So, as hospital boards meet in the next few weeks to try to make a dollar out of 15 cents, certainly some of their problems can be traced to the Peace and Columbia rivers. There's something around a billion dollars tied up in power development there.

That enormous commitment is load enough. But compounding financial woes of government (and others) is an interest rate which has reached the point of usury.

The government, understandably, does not like being grilled for being tight-fisted with schools and hospitals. Those are establishments close to motherhood.

Two logical steps in strategy have followed.

The first is a clarion and oft-repeated call for economy, better utilization of schools, teachers, hospitals and staffing. It's a sound appeal because whatever the agency, it can be made more efficient.

Not surprisingly, the call for economy hasn't been enough, at least according to the government. So the next step has followed logically — arbitrary spending limits — with the clearly-implied message to the school and hospital systems:

"You haven't co-operated by cutting your costs enough. So now we'll make you. It's your fault."

The government case is helped by the enormous complexity of both hospital and school systems. How do you measure how much better they could be?

The measure of the pressure on Bennett becomes apparent when you examine some of the ludicrous prohibitions which have followed.

School libraries have been branded as not essential, for example, when the whole philosophy of learning is being shifted to using libraries as a base for instruction.

And now, with an announcement Friday by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, hospitals have been told they can't have all of the money needed to meet their current staff salaries.

The bizarre aspect of this policy is that the provincial government, for all practical purposes, is the sole source of funds to operate the hospitals. These institutions simply have no place else to turn.

The choice for hospitals is painful but simple. Cut services to the amount of money available.

There's irony in the timing because local hospitals at least have carefully-prepared, detailed plans for making themselves more efficient. But to save money in the long haul requires spending some now.

Loffmark has told the hospitals that how they save is up to them. But maybe, he suggested, the chopping should come first with staff who got the biggest pay gains.

The implication is clear—they are overpaid and some of them are redundant. But a great many hospital employees are paid about $450 a month. Overpaid? If you think they are underworked, ask them, or patients, or hospital administrators—and stand back.

The government has developed a fascinating talent for coping with its money woes—a talent for delaying, postponing and otherwise putting off projects which require money being spent.

At times it is able to enmesh other levels of government and sometimes apparently shift the blame for delays to them. The hassle over developing St. Joseph's Hospital on the St. Ann's Acadamy site is a classic example.

The jungle of red tape surrounding hospital construction approvals lets the government control the timing of spending, divorced entirely from need, to the day.

An example of the two faces of politics:

For less than $10,000, 22 beds could be added to the capacity of Royal Jubilee Hospital. They would be in the recently-vacated Bay Pavilion.

The hospital sought approval for the money Feb. 24. No approval yet. When it comes, the beds can be in use in a week.

Doctors Join Outcry Against Cutbacks

Victoria's doctors added their voices Tuesday to growing criticism of government policy on hospitals.

In a meeting of the Victoria Medical Society, which continued until 12:30 a.m., about 60 doctors heard a review of the local situation and then unanimously passed motions:

Deploring Health Minister Ralph Loffmark's recently announced cut in hospital spending which could only result in a reduced standard of patient care;

GET ON WITH JOB

The doctors went on record as imploring politicians and the regional hospital board to overcome their difficulties and get on with the job.

The provincial government and the hospital board are currently stalemated on how best to develop the St. Joseph's Hospital site.

"We really are all very distressed to see the lack of progress," society president Dr. John Higgins said today.

MOVING BACK

And in supplying needed acute care beds, "we're moving rapidly backwards, it seems," he said.

The society's executive was asked to establish a series of press releases to help put physicians' views on local developments before the public.

Citizens Start Protests Over High Wire Through Park

Citizen groups today strongly opposed a suggestion that B.C. Hydro run its proposed lines though a part of Francis Park as an alternative to expropriating the homes of five Munn Road families.

The suggestion was made by John Tisdalle, MLA for Saanich and The Islands, who received a letter from Hydro officials.

He said Hydro may take a slice of Francis Park between Thetis and Prospect Lakes instead of running the overhead line though the five properties.

Hydro plans to establish a 400-foot right-of-way for a 138,000-volt line. This, strung on 75-foot poles, would run from Jordan River to Munn Road to Interurban and along Burnside to a substation in the 2900 block Douglas Street.

John Harris, president of the Victoria Outdoor Club, said he deplored the B.C. Hydro policy of running their transmission lines through parks wherever possible.

He said Hydro had already sliced off the southern part of Goldstream Park for the line.

"Hydro is also using 104 acres of former Thetis Lake property which was acquired from the city in 1960," he said. "And now they are thinking of Francis Park."

Harris said the trouble is that Hydro operates under an expropriation policy which is not in "keeping with this age."

"When you ask them why they don't take an alternate route, they said they haven't got the money," he said. "That is they don't budget — they don't set aside any funds for acquiring property."

Harris pointed out that, according to a foresty report, park acreage in B.C. had decreased since 1952. The population, on the other hand, had doubled.

(In 1952 the park acreage was 9,015,867, while as of Jan. 1, 1970 it was 6,479,659.)

Robert Kennedy, president of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, said the line should be placed underground.

"We should find some other alternative" he said. "Public parks are not set aside for this purpose."

Shrum 'Missed Point'

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today B.C. Hydro Chairman Gordon Shrum has "missed the main point" of the long-standing debate over underground versus overhead hydro transmission lines.

He was commenting on Shrum's remarks to petition organizers opposed to the Interurban-Burnside overhead electrical line, which B.C. Hydro plans to carry on 75-foot-high steel poles.

Shrum said if local residents are prepared to pay the added costs of underground wiring the problem would be solved immediately, but that preference couldn't be granted to one area over another for underground service.

Curtis said the Interurban-Burnside line is not a specific case of "put this line underground and everyone else pay." It is an example of the general municipal attitude in British Columbia about installation of underground electrical services in urban and developing areas.

Curtis said if residents of a city in the interior, for example, were distressed about a proposed overhead transmission line "my attitude would be the same. Again, B.C. Hydro should have such standards as to place that line underground.

"So whether it is Victoria Street in Kamloops, or Burnside Road in Saanich, is beside the point."

Arthur Mayse . . .

ON MONDAY EVENING I listened at the back on an Institute of Adult Studies classroom while a Canada Manpower team shook up whatever notions a job-hungry audience held about job-hunting procedures.

But Doug Yearwood and Ed Hudson did much more than dispel illusions. In a slambang 90-minute session, they dished out a brand of instruction that has helped many a Victorian find work.

What we absorbed was the first half of a two-session course titled Creative Job Search Technique.

The title chosen by Oregon state employment officer Ray Ziegler for his brainstorm of seven years ago may strike you as high-flown. However, the content is very much down to earth, and the results have proved impressive.

The course, sponsored locally by Kiwanis, Greater Victoria School Board and Manpower, was launched last September. By the end of March, 73 per cent of the workless who enrolled had found employment.

Since employers haven't precisely been dragging job recruits off the streets in recent months, that's a startling figure.

I said as much to Bill Rapanos, assistant manager in Victoria for Canada Manpower.

"There's no magic involved," Rapanos assured me. "Just what you might call applied common sense." He then suggested that I sit in on this week's go-round.

The 36 who turned up tapered in age from boys and girls in their high teens to a well-dressed man who looked to be in the low fifties. It was a quiet, watchful audience—not the sort to be impressed by a Polyanna approach.

Question: Had anyone present helped anyone else find employment in the last week?

Hesitantly, one woman raised her hand.

Lesson, pointed out by one of the instructors: The chances are slim that anybody's going to find you a job. This you must do by yourself.

Canada Manpower had no jobs to hand out, he said. It was merely a referral agency, its commission to put applicant in touch with prospective employer. From that point, the job-seeker must rely on his own powers of persuasion.

Also, it's a waste of time merely to ask an employer for work. He is everlastingly being asked for things. Instead, put the shoe on the other foot. Offer him something, which is to say, such skills and abilities as you possess.

Statement: If employed, you expect to be working a 40-hour week.

Snapper: The job-seeker should put in the same work-week on his own account. He can do so by making eight job applications a day, Monday through Friday.

Plainly, this was a new concept to many present. The two women who had been carrying on a whispered conversation of their own hushed up and began to listen.

"If you keep making your calls, you're bound to run into something," said Yearwood. "Use all the resources available to you, but most of all, use yourself."

Hudson, pointer in hand, took over.

What resources are open when a job needs finding? He listed various audience suggestions in a blackboard scorebox. Then, with survey results for his authority, he put the guessers right.

In all job classifications from professional to unskilled labor, he announced, the "walk-in" application is by a wide margin the most effective producer.

But you don't simply walk in cold. In pocket or handbag, you carry an aid emphasized in the course. This is a one-page resume, or job qualification sheet.

It lays you on the line . . . name, approximate age, previous jobs held, special abilities, references, and even a brief breakdown on the kind of work you believe you'd be good at.

Course-takers are also bolstered by confidence-building information.

Item (to me, an eye-opener): About 2,100 jobs, new on the market or old ones vacated, come up for grabs in the Victoria area each month.

There's also that success-percentage I mentioned at the start.

At the end of the evening, we gathered up a generous issue of specimen resumes, also a guide to be used in preparing such a form, and a six-question sheet headed "My Personal Inventory."

That one calls for stern self-sifting—about 20 hours of it, we were told.

As we left the classroom, students who had advanced to the second phase of the course were filing in. For them, personal counselling based on their answers to those questions.

A useful course, and one that deals in blunt and positive fashion with a basic problem. It will take time out at the end of April so that results and findings to date can be closely analyzed. Then, in September, it will resume on a continuous basis.

As Rapanos points out, there's no closed season on job-hunting.

Alcohol, Not Marijuana, Causes Concern in Africa

By JIM HOAGLAND

KINSHASA, The Congo (WP) — Small trucks carrying large bundles of green leaves come whistling out of the Ethiopian highlands early in the morning, racing down hairpin turns under a blistering sun, which threatens to dry out and ruin their precious cargo.

The cargo is called kat in Somalia, where southerners chew the leaves.

In Kenya, along the Indian Ocean coastline, a foreigner drives up to a gasoline station. He mentions a friend's name to the attendant, gives him the equivalent of five dollars and drives away a few minutes later with a tank full of gas and a rolled up newspaper full of marijuana.

In The Congo, they call it shanvre. It grows in the forest on seven-foot tall stalks and people in Kinshasa assert that you can buy a shoe-box full for a dollar.

One thousand miles to the east, in The Congo's dense and dark Ituri Forest, four and one-half foot tall pygmies sit crosslegged and slowly puff on long thin pipes full of the plant.

Americans tend to think of the smoking of cannibis and its natural variations as a recent and socially dangerous phenomenon.

This may be due to the considerable differences that exist between drug use patterns in America and Black Africa.

For one thing, Africa's young people seem to assert their independence from their parents by not smoking marijuana. The social pressure on them is to abandon the habits of the old and poor, uneducated village people, who have long smoked.

"Smoking marijuana is about the last thing my students would do," says Adam Kuper, professor of sociology at Makerere University, considered by many as the Harvard of East Africa.

"It would identify them with the social context they most want to escape," Kuper related several weeks ago in Kampala, Uganda.

Another important factor seems to be the absence of a feeling of illcitness or political action for those who turn on. Although most African governments have outlawed marijuana use, they largely ignore it or treat it as not being serious.

In Kenya, for example, a villager named Adalla Ochieng pleaded guilty to posessing about 600 pounds of marijuana — called bhang by Kenyans — in his house. Ochieng said he had been selling bhang for six months at 2 dollars a pound "to people to mix with tea and use as medicine for chest and aching stomach." He was fined 135 dollars and jailed for six months in what the judge called the biggest drug case in Kenya's history. "My students don't smoke it," Prof. Kuper said, "they get drunk all the time. That seems to be more sophisticated. But smoking? No, not at all."

Assert Independence By Not Smoking Pot

Alcohol, in fact, seems to be the chief "drug" used in sub-Sahara Africa, by both young and old. Zambia, which had a ratio basis of twelve times as many automobile accidents as the United States last year, is just one of a number of African nations that has begun to plead with its citizens to cut out drinking and get back to work.

There seems to be almost no use of LSD or other manufactured halucinogens, and probably little heroin use, law enforcement officials report.

Warrior tribes, such as the Masai in Kenya, often chew or eat plants that allegedly stimulate their battle instincts. But this is far removed from the purpose and effect of marijuana smoking and from modern life in Africa.

In Nigeria, the federal ministry of health recently said that students had begun to take amphetimines to help them stay awake for exams. This was viewed seriously, the ministry said. As was the fact that farmers were feeding the same pills to cattle to pep them up on the long drive to market.

Only one country below the Sahara seems to be concerned about marijuana use, and to employ the same police tactics as the United States. The country is South Africa.

Teams of police using helicopters and Alsatian dogs dagga, the local name, have been swooping down on fields of marijuana in the remote Drakensberg Mountains in Natal Province in recent months.

They have destroyed hundreds of tons of the weed. "We aim to wipe out every marijuana plant growing in South Africa," a Natal police official was quoted as having said.

Although most of the marijuana smoked in South Africa reportedly is consumed by African tribesmen in their villages, the police say they are concerned that white teenagers in the cities may have begun to use it.

The abundance of marijuana on the continent does not seem to have produced any large migrant hippie communities, as it reportedly is the case in Laos, Nepal and other countries.

Individual young "Europeans" (whites are lumped together in Africa under the label Europeans) with long hair and beads and other hippie regalia are beginning to turn up in Nairobi, and in Kinshasa.

"The only thing resembling a dope problem we have here," says a Nairobi police official, "could be among the young white foreigners. That doesn't seem to be too serious in itself. But because of what it says about family relations, it is disturbing."

He related how the teen-age son of an important official in the western diplomatic community in Nairobi had been arrested recently when, after an accident, he was found to be carrying a small packet of marijuana.

"That surprised us," the official said. "So we thought we'd give him a good scare, have the magistrate give him a good dressing-down and let him go. I called up the father and told him we had his son at the police station.

"He said that he couldn't come down, he had a big cocktail party to go to, and he'd try to make it some time that night.

"That shocked me even more than the boy having the stuff."

Gas Smell, Lighting Problems Preceded Fatal Kiln Explosion

LAKE COWICHAN — A Lake Cowichan mill operator told an inquest jury Tuesday the firm had frequent difficulty lighting its dry kiln prior to an explosion Jan. 23 in which a workman was killed.

An explosion destroyed the kiln and the enclosing concrete block building and killed George Marchment 32, of Lake Cowichan.

David Svendsen, 22, and Michael Matskiw 23, were sent to hospital with extensive injuries. The inquest had been adjourned to allow the men to recover.

Norman Rooke. partner in Island Shake and Shingle Co. Ltd. testified under protection of the Canada Evidence act that his firm had made a number of calls for service to the kiln to Cigas Products Ltd. of Nanaimo.

Cigas supplied propane fuel and some of the equipment to heat the $40,000 kiln which was installed by the Burnaby firm of Dickinson's Ltd. in November, 1968.

STRONG SMELL

Every time the electricity failed the kiln fire would go out and have to be restarted, Rooke said. The kiln also was stopped for unloading and reloading of shakes.

Rooke said the company had to call two or three times and wait four or five weeks before the Nanaimo firm sent someone to check the kiln after a strong smell of propane was noted early in 1969.

"It was a leaking valve," Rooke said.

Two more problems in starting the kiln arose, one in October, and on Dec. 22, 1969, following a power failure.

Rooke said after two attempts to start the kiln in the prescribed manner failed, he called Dick Watson, a Lake Cowichan electrial contractor who handles all electrical work for the company.

'HOT WIRE'

Rooke told the jury the contractor tested the equipment and suggested the use of a "hot wire" to light it but stressing that it was to be regarded as a temporary measure.

Rooke said the Cigas firm promised to have a repairman out to check the kiln early the following day but no one showed up and they were not called again.

He said other employees were shown how to start the kiln with the "hot wire" but were told that he (Rooke) would be there each time.

To his knowledge the kiln had been lit four or five times using the wire and he was on the scene everytime but once, the morning the explosion occurred. Rooke said he did not know there had been a power failure between 3 a.m. and 5 a.m. that same morning.

FRACTURED SKULL

Cpl. Scott Coxen, in charge of Lake Cowichan RCMP detachment, testified that he was on the scene about seven minutes after the explosion at 8:03 a.m. and accounted for all the men who were to be working that day.

Dr. James Morrow of Lake Cowichan testified that Marchment, 32, died of a compound fracture of the skull with cuts to the brain after being either hit on the back of the head by an object or being forceably pushed against an object.

Boycott Threat Gets Action

DUNCAN — Cowichan District School Board will apply to the department of education for permission to call tenders for $20,000 in additional lavatory facilities at Crofton elementary school.

The move came after a group of Crofton parents paid another visit to the school board meeting Monday night. They had threatened earlier to boycott the school if facilities were not improved by Easter and the board had made about $800 in improvements to the boys' washroom.

The proposed addition, outlined by Trustee David Bradbury, would contain three toilets, four urinals and three wash basins for the boys and five toilets and three wash basins for the girls.

BY SEPTEMBER

No provisions were made for the girl's washrooms earlier although after a confrontation with Crofton ratepayers and the parents the board decided to allow the girls the use of the teachers' facilities.

Bradbury said the board would try to have the additions completed by September. He said the accommodations would be more than sufficient for the present but plans were to expand the school "so it is worth putting them in now."

Mrs. Pat Fetchko, spokesman for the parents who threatened to sit in on every board meeting until something was done to alleviate the problem of overcrowding facilities, said the parents would be satisfied, "if the expansion is carried out."

Malaspina Plans Summer Session

Antidote Supplies Planned Along Nerve Gas Route

By The Associated Press

Shipment of nerve gas from Okinawa to the Umatilla Army Depot near Hermiston, Ore., seemed a near certainty Tuesday.

The last real barrier was removed when the department of health, education and welfare gave taciturn approval to the defence department's plans for transferring the huge stores of gas through Washington and Oregon.

In Oregon, even as governor Tom McCall reaffirmed his determination to seek presidential intervention and as a citizen's group pursued its court effort to block the shipment, state health authorities were preparing plans to ensure emergency medical facilities along the transfer route in the event of disaster.

Dr. Edward Press, state health officer, confirmed that the defence department and HEW had asked him to coordinate medical facilities along the route.

Principal emergency measure, he said, would consist of planting large amounts of nerve gas antidote along the train route from Bangor, Wash., to Hermiston.

The HEW directive would also require that Press ensure hospitals along the route be equipped to handle the large number of casualties likely in the event of a major gas leak.

In Portland, Dr. Gordon Kilgour, chairman of Portland State University's chemistry department and head of People Against Nerve Gas (PANG) said Tuesday he had wired Governor McCall asking that gas transfer plans being made by the public health service be made public.

U.S. District Court Judge Gus J. Solomon ordered lawyers for both sides of an anti-gas suit to appear before him next Monday to discuss an injunction against the shipment.

The suit was brought by a group of Oregon and Washington residents who claim their constitutional rights to safety of life and property would be violated by shipment of nerve gas through the states.

ADJUSTABLE CHIP DOCK APRON

Anti-Pollution Step Taken by Crofton Mill

CROFTON—Crofton Pulp and Paper Limited will install a second adjustable apron at its chip unloading dock to eliminate wood chips falling into the water.

Complaints were made recently about the chips causing pollution of the sea bed and beaches and the company promised to install the aprons to eliminate the problem.

'VERY PLEASED'

"The three or four types we tried were not completely effective because of the difference in sizes of the barges," company representative Gordon Cameron said Tuesday.

Cameron said the latest design was installed at one unloading site and after inspecting it Monday a fisheries department official said "he was very pleased with it."

The huge chip barges, which bring sawmill waste from the BCFP plant in Victoria, also are affected by the changing tides when they are unloaded by shoreside scoop shovel cranes.

Harold Ollenberger, in charge of the company's chip supply department, said the second apron will be ready in about two week's time.

Class Crawls With Animals

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Jack Owen has snakes in his room—and lizards and fish and birds and mammals.

The room is at O'Neill collegiate here, where Mr. Owen, 28, teaches biology and ecology under the concept that if a class is interesting enough the students will want to learn.

What he does is to expose his students to the animals about which they are learning.

Several years ago he began buying live animals to use in classroom demonstrations. His collection now includes 18 varieties of tropical birds, fish, reptiles of all kinds—including an iguana and a boa constrictor—and interesting little mammals such as groundhogs and muskrats.

SET OWN QUESTIONS

Whenever he has a class studying about any of these animals, he carts his menagerie from his nearby farm to the school to liven up the action. The results, he says, have been "fantastic."

"We've done away with the idea of learning it all from a textbook. Instead, the students research for themselves. They even set their own homework questions and they're taking themselves where they want to go."

And it's not just the students who learn. Once when Mr. Owen decided to add an anaconda to his collection, the students went out to learn all about the South American snake. What they found was enough to convince Mr. Owen to change his mind.

"I never knew they grow up to be 37 feet in length," he said. "When they came back and told me that it was highly recommended that no one person alone try to handle an anaconda; I cancelled the order."

Mr. Owen's farm now is a frequent visiting spot for many of his students, and some hitch-hike out during the summer vacation. They help with the chores and get food and housing in return.

And the students enjoy having animals as classmates. Last year they raised a pair of cottontail rabbits from infancy and "every year they manage to find some orphaned animal to bring along," Mr. Owen says.

STUDY POLLUTION

His Grade 11 students are carrying their studies to a broader plane. They are starting a pollution survey of Oshawa Creek, the results of their study will be charted and an animal population survey will then be carried out. When both studies are correlated the students will be able to see how man affects the animal ecology and learn the dangers of upsetting the balance of nature.

"We think it will be a very professional survey," Mr. Owen says.

His concept of teaching is being used in Grades 9 and 11 at the school. By far the best results, he finds, have been experienced at the Grade 9 level.

Struggle of Greek Against Greek May Decide Cyprus Future

By BERNARD MELUNSKY

LONDON (Reuters) — Talks between Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots have resumed in Nicosia against a background of continuing crisis on the Mediterranean island.

Although talks have been going on for 20 months, they have not yet produced any significant achievements.

Greeks and Turks generally have been on opposite sides of the fence in the last two decades, during which there was a terrorist campaign against the British and bitter inter-communal strife.

But the assassination attempt earlier this month on President Makarios and the murder shortly afterward of former interior minister Polycarpos Georgadjis threw into sharp focus another aspect of Cypriot life—the struggle of Greek against Greek in shaping the island's destiny.

The motive for the attempt on the life of the 56-year-old bearded archbishop, leader of the Greek Orthodox Church in Cyprus as well as head of state, appeared to be opposition to his policy of independence for the 630,000 Cypriots. The Greeks outnumber the Turks by about four to one on the island.

SOME WANTS ENOSIS

Opponents of this policy want Enosis—the union of Cyprus with Greece—which has been a rallying call of Greek-Cypriots since the island was annexed to Britain in 1914.

The archbishop supported the Enosis demand during the troubled 1950s under British rule, when Greeks and Turks were bitterly divided. But he has come to reject it as a solution to the island's problems.

For the last year, his administration has battled to control extremists campaigning for a return to the Enosis policy, and in August it banned the pro-Enosis National Front Organization for using terrorist tactics in its campaign.

Last month, Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil warned that a coup against the Cyprus government was imminent.

He said Turkey would be faced with a fait accompli after a successful coup in Cyprus and a declaration of Enosis with Greece. He warned that Turkey would use all the resources at his disposal to oppose the attempt. Greece and Turkey are both members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

For all the long-standing animosity which has kept a United Nations peacekeeping force on the island throughout the last six years, the two sides may well come closer together in the face of pro-Enosis extremists.

Canada is among the countries contributing forces to the UN contingent.

PLAYOFFS '100 PER CENT HOCKEY' . . . . . . ALL FOUR SERIES START TONIGHT

Goaltenders First to Face Stanley Cup Pressures

By The Canadian Press

Tonight the real pressure starts for the National Hockey League's top goaltenders as the 1970 Stanley Cup playoffs open on four fronts.

Netminders like Tony Esposito, who collected a record 15 shutouts in regular season play, will find stopping pucks a little more difficult with the opposing forwards trying for the $7,500 prize money that goes to each member of the cup-winning team.

Esposito and his Chicago Black Hawks team-mates play host tonight to Detroit Red Wings in one of four best-of-seven quarter-final series.

The Red Wings will likely have Roger Crozier in goal after his sparkling performance against a 65-shot attack by New York Rangers in the final regular-season game at New York last Sunday.

The Chicago game will be televised nationally by the CBC, beginning at 5:35 p.m. PST.

The other three series see Boston Bruins against the Rangers at Boston in the East while the West has Minnesota North Stars at St. Louis against the Blues and Oakland Seals taking on the Penguins in Pittsburgh.

Second games will be played at the same site Thursday night with the clubs switching home rinks for the third and fourth games Saturday and Sunday.

The Rangers, who last won the Stanley Cup in 1940, are confident they can put up a stronger fight than they did in the last three years when they dropped 12 of 14 playoff games.

Coach and general manager Emile Francis said his Rangers are a better team than they ever were.

"We've got guys who weren't with us during those losses, guys who aren't affected by the past. And we have a Brad Park and a Walt Tkaczuk, who were only rookies in last season's playoffs."

Francis said he has emphasized that his players should avoid unnecessary penalties.

"That doesn't mean we're not going to retaliate," he said. "As long as a guy takes someone with him to the penalty box, that's OK. But if the other guy gets caught first by the referee, then we'll lay off."

New York left wingers Don Marshall and Vic Hadfield are coming back off injuries and may yet see playoff action. Marshall was told by the team doctor Tuesday he will be out another 10 days yet with a shoulder injury and Hadfield will start skating for the first time today after an ankle injury.

Boston defenceman Rick Smith, who suffered a shoulder injury late in the season, worked out Tuesday and will play.

Gerry Cheevers will get the call for Boston's starting goalie against New York's Ed Giacomin.

"No, I don't get nervous," Cheevers said in the Boston dressing room Tuesday. "I'm used to this, after all.

"But things are different than in the regular season. Now it's gotta be 100 per cent hockey, 24 hours a day. Know what I mean? You have to concentrate more."

Bruins coach Harry Sinden praised his goalie as one of the top competitors on the team.

"He's the kind of guy you can count on to make the big saves that turn games around. He'll let the odd softie in but he gets the big ones."

Cheevers has veteran Ed Johnston backing him up while Terry Sawchuk, four-time Vezina Trophy winner, will be ready to step in if Giacomin needs help.

At Chicago, Gerry Desjardins, obtained late in the season in a trade with Los Angeles Kings, will be the Hawks backup goalie. The Red Wings have Roy Edwards who played some of his best games this season while Crozier was out with an injury.

Minnesota could provide tough competition for the Blues with veteran Gump Worsley in the nets. The Gumper has had plenty of playoff experience in the last five cup series with Montreal Canadiens, out of the playoffs for the first time in 22 years.

With Worsley is Cesare Maniago whose flip-flop style makes him one of the more spectacular-looking goalies in the league.

Coach Scotty Bowman of the Blues has three goalies from whom to choose—Jacques Plante, Glenn Hall and Ernie Wakely. Plante is another veteran of the playoffs with Montreal while Hall saw plenty of the same action with Chicago and was with that team when they last won the Stanley Cup in 1961.

The North Stars announced Monday that their fourth game against the Blues will start at 1:45 p.m. PST Sunday at Minneapolis to avoid conflict with a Minnesota Twins baseball game earlier in the afternoon.

Pittsburgh and Oakland are the only clubs whose first-string goalies have seen little or no major-league playoff action.

In the Penguins nets is Al Smith who has never been in a Stanley Cup game. Backup man Les Binkley also lacks playoff experience. This is the first season the Penguins, who finished second this year, have been in the playoffs.

Oakland's Gary Smith saw action in seven playoff games last year. Smith's backup man, Charlie Hodge, is also a former Montreal competitor and played in 16 Stanley Cup games with the Canadiens.

Bill WALKER

Whew! That was a weekend to remember, the National Hockey League's wild windup. But there's more starting tonight, if it hasn't already been officially launched by the dispute over determining playoff positions.

Sure, it was a bit of a fiasco, that pulling the goalie bit, as things turned out. But I seriously doubt the image of the game was tarnished, as charged, just as I doubt the morals and the sincerity of those who took this occasion to jump all over the rules makers.

The rules governing NHL playoff positions have been in existence for some time now. There have been dissenters through the years, but never such a serious condemnation as right now. It was felt the rules were fair to all. So why change?

This season, everyone was well aware of the likelihood of a point tie between teams. Everyone also knew there was the distinct possibility that the number of goals scored by a team could be the deciding factor. But nobody suggested then that the rules be altered to avoid such a chancy situation, or that the possibility of such a happening shouldn't be allowed to exist.

That would have been far more constructive. And too simple.

However, now that the rules are fair game, remember this! Nobody lost solely because of them. That's the important part.

Still, if they are considered too archaic for modern-day use, then change them, surely. But a word of caution. There are several methods of breaking ties, all of them good, but none of them perfect. Otherwise there would be only one.

League president Clarence Campbell has said rule changes will be discussed this summer. That's good. But first why not an orchid to the coaches who opened up the subject by using the only gambit open to them?

Emile Francis and Claude Ruel would have been just as heartily condemned if they had not thought of the goalie ruse, and the situation had called for it.

You'd better believe it!

But on to the Stanley Cup playoffs—but first to the East, the power and, as always, the glory.

There shouldn't really be any fright at the possibility of not repeating what has become a dutiful post-season chore, beating the bejabbers out of the West.

Now to the match-ups.

Chicago vs. Detroit: This has to be as natural as you can get. These two clubs have been head and head all season after finishing that way and out of the playoffs last year. In the last six weeks they can boast the best record of any, and they were definitely the strength in the final push.

Chicago was the hottest of the hot had the best goaltending, the toughest defence, and won the games it had to win to take the league championship. Coach Billy Reay has said that the Pit Martin, Gerry Pinder, Jim Pappin line is the best Hawk threesome. This leaves Bobby Hull, and his unit, and the Stan Mikita line in an unclassified category.

What a problem for a coach to have!

But the Hawks have four rookies, all of whom contributed greatly to the championship. Will they stand up to the playoffs? That is the question.

Detroit, meanwhile, was never that far behind in the final drive. And the Wings have an awesome attack headed by Gary Unger, Frank Mahovlich, Gordie Howe and Alex Delvecchio. They have been playing to the hilt of the potential in recent weeks, and won't give ground willingly. And they did beat Chicago, in Chicago, in that furious final week.

It should be a clash to remember.

The tip here is Chicago in seven.

Boston vs New York: This has to be a puzzler, especially for New York fans. What happened to their bumbling heroes down the last mile? They made it home, but only by a remarkable nine-goal outburst in the final game. They deserved less for having blown the league lead; and when in the doldrums, they were playing scared — scared of losing, which they were doing with almost monotonous regularity at the finish.

Meanwhile, Boston, also had a temporary letdown when the Rangers faltered. The Bruins immediately should have assumed command. But they didn't, and must be faulted for it. Perhaps they were taken by surprise by Chicago, and the others, but there is an inconsistency there that has not been fully explained.

The Bruins can hit, and can hit with power. They have the most feared shooters, the top scorers, and the league's most awesome power play. But are they as good as they think they are? In Boston they are, but outside of Beantown they could be fighting the unknown factor. They won only two all season on the road in the East, and those only in the final weeks.

Meanwhile, the Rangers obviously aren't as bad as their recent record. They couldn't be, and be in the playoffs. But they have been bounced around in their insecurity of late, and may have come up short for this important test. Certainly, they do have all of their injured players back in action. In that regard they can offer no excuses, a situation which contributed to their downfall previously.

But they may need more.

In the West, it will be St. Louis over Minnesota, and Oakland to upset Pittsburgh.

Cincy Pitchers Give Anderson Rousing Liftoff

By The Associated Press

Right-hander Gary Nolan kept Anderson, Cincinnati Reds' new skipper, in orbit by following southpaw Jim Merritt's three-hit opening-day triumph over Montreal Expos with a two-hit 4-0 conquest of Los Angeles Dodgers.

The world champion Mets, winless in all eight of their previous season openers, tripped Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3 on Donn Clendenon's two-run pinch single in the 11th inning.

In other National League opening games, Norm Miller's three-run pinch homer carried Houston Astros past San Francisco Giants 8-5 and a three-run blast by Nate Colbert helped San Diego Padres stun Atlanta Braves 8-3.

ALYEA SPARKLES

In the American League, Brant Alyea seems to have found a home in Minnesota Twins' outfield.

Up and down in Washington Senators' organization for the last few years, Alyea blasted two home runs and two singles, driving in seven runs, as the Twins opened their campaign with a 12-8 romp over Chicago White Sox.

Elsewhere in the American League, California Angels welcomed Milwaukee back to the majors with a 12-0 shellacking of the Brewers, Baltimore Orioles slugged Cleveland Indians 8-2, Boston Red Sox tripped New York Yankees 4-3, Oakland Athletics defeated Kansas City Royals 6-4 and Washington pounded Detroit Tigers 14-4.

BACK FROM OPERATION

Short, who pitched just 10 innings last April before undergoing surgery for the removal of a herniated disc, launched his comeback with a five-hit performance against the powerful Cubs. It was his first victory since Sept. 29, 1968, and his third openingday shutout in 11 years with the Phils.

"It's a lot to miss a year out of your career," he said.

Nolan, 21, checked the Dodgers on two singles, both by Willie Crawford, and permitted just four other runners to reach base, three on walks and the other on an error. Crawford's scratch single off shortstop Dave Conception's glove in the fourth inning was the lone Los Angeles hit until he singled to right in the ninth.

Clendenon drilled a single off reliever Joe Gibbon's first pitch with the bases filled in the 11th, giving the Mets their opening-day breakthrough.

Canucks Open With Easy Win

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Canucks launched their Western Hockey League best-of-seven semi-final series Tuesday night with a convincing 7-1 victory over San Diego Gulls.

A sparse crowd of 6,781, one of the smallest of the season, saw the Canucks score two unanswered goals in the first period and two more in the second en route to the win.

The second game of the series will be played here Friday night.

Murray Hall's two goal performance paced Canucks and singles were added by Mark Reaume, Gerry Goyer, Ted Taylor, Paul Andrea and John Arbour.

Willie O'Ree was credited with the San Diego goal at 15:26 of the third period. It spoiled a shutout bid by Vancouver netminder George Gardner who lost sight of the puck in a scramble in front of the net.

The goal came while Vancouver was playing a man short.

Gardner was called on to make 26 stops during the game while Jack McCartan turned aside 33 for San Diego.

Gull coach Max McNab said the results would not dampen the spirits of his club.

"We feel we can beat Vancouver, and during my 25 years in hockey I've seen many things happen," he said. "We go into the series as the underdogs but know we have a fighting chance against them."

GROUP TO PROMOTE . . . . . . 'B' CIRCUIT

B.C. Horsemen Unite

Breeders and owners of thoroughbreds, standardbreds (harness) and quarter horses in British Columbia are moving into a single "stall."

Formation of a B.C. Horse Racing Association and establishment of a provincial class "B" circuit was announced today following a meeting in Kamloops.

The new group will supervise and promote harness, thoroughbred and quarter horse racing throughout the province.

The meeting at Kamloops, which attracted horsemen from Princeton, Williams Lake, Prince George, Vernon, Kamloops and Victoria, elected Kamloops lawyer Dennis Coates as its first president.

Prime supporters of the new association is the Vancouver Island Quarter Horse Racing Association. The group will introduce quarter horse racing to Victoria, including pari-mutuel betting, on Aug. 22, 28 and 29.

Other quarter-horse meets are scheduled for Williams Lake (June 29, 30 and July 1), Princeton (July 11-12), Vernon (July 24-25), Prince George (Aug. 19-22) and Kamloops (Sept. 2-7).

Present Pact Ample for Orr

(Times News Services)

Boston Bruins' Bobby Orr is not seeking a $2 million, 10-year contract with the National Hockey League team says a lawyer who represents the brilliant young defenceman. And, anyhow, Orr seems to be doing quite well.

Alan Eagleson, who is president of the National Hockey League Player's Association, chuckled when the $2 million figure was mentioned.

"It's news to me. Orr has another year to go under his present contract. Under no circumstances will we attempt to scrap that year for a new contract," the lawyer said.

In addition to winning a bonus for Bruins' second-place finish, Orr picked up $2,000 for winning the league scoring championship.

Chicago Blcak Hawks' rookie goaltender Tony Esposito also proved a big winner, accepting $2,500 for the team's first-place finish and an additional $2,000 for winning the Vezina Trophy as the league's top netminder.

Esposito undoubtedly is the leading candidate to pad his bonus account when results of the rookie-of-the-year balloting is made known.

Stuffy Masters Has Aloofness, Also Greatness

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A couple of weeks ago, a reporter-photographer team, bent on doing advance coverage on the Masters golf touranment, phoned to advise the Augusta National Club of their plans.

"Do you have authorization?" a woman's voice asked icily.

The visitors were stunned. Authorization for what? They were not going to probe for atomic secrets. They didn't intend to check the files or rip up the 10th green. They only wanted to look at a now virtually idle golf course that in a few days would be the sports spotlight.

"You still need authorization," came the firm reply.

After penetrating the Green Curtain, where security is tighter than that of the CIA, the uninvited guests were ushered into the inner sanctum to be received with cordiality and warmth.

"Have a slice of cake," offered Clifford Roberts, the bespectacled New York financier who runs the tournament with an iron hand.

"I'll give you a tour in my car," said Col. Horace Shields, the executive director who nurtures the Masters as he would a spoiled child for 12 months of the year.

Such is the dual, contradictory personality of the Masters, which tees off for the 34th time Thursday with the whole golfing world watching.

Stiff, Stuffy, Haughty and Cold

It is stiff and stuffy. It is haughty and cold. As a tournament test, it is over-rated, perhaps the weakest event on the pro tour. Yet it is golf's greatest, most glamorous spectacle—watched, talked about and envied as no other tournament.

It is more than just a sports event. It is a carnival, a sports extravaganza comparable to the Kentucky Derby and the Indianapolis 500.

Golfers criticize it because of its exclusiveness and call it an unfair test, yet all of them would bust a blood vessel to get in. The green jacket of the Masters champion is said to be worth $1,000,000 in endorsements and side benefits.

Fans from all over the world seek tickets—limited and meticulously rationed to an estimated 30,000. Masters officials scrupulously refrain from disclosing either the size of the galleries or the gate receipts—"It's nobody's business," they say.

People swarm into the little Georgia mill and military community—population 75,100. They choke the roads, overtax the hotel and motel space and queue up for meals at the limited number of top eating places. It's a week of push, shove and bustle—but they always come back.

Attraction Traced Back to Bobby

What is the Masters appeal?

"It's the mecca of the golf world," says Gene Sarazen, who has been a regular on the scene since the tournament began in 1934.

"Every important figure in the game—player, official, manufacturer and devotee—can be found there."

"Much of the attraction can be traced to Bob Jones," says Fred Corcoran, executive director of the International Golf Association. "Bob is a great name in golf—everybody loves him."

It was Jones, Atlanta's Grand Slam immortal, who conceived the tournament, helped lay out the course and, with his good friend Roberts, built it into an imposing giant.

Despite its rapid growth, the tournament has remained aloof from big time pressures. It has spurned electronic scoreboards and Madison Avenue publicity techniques.

Negroes bustle around the place, serving as waiters and other help, and Negroes, in green-and-white overalls, do all the caddying, yet this is the only tournament in which a black man has never played.

Roberts says the Masters is not segregationist, that he would welcome a Negro who qualified under any one of the 14 qualifying requirements.

Padding Irritates Tour Players

It's the padding of the Masters field with old champions, foreigners and amateurs that irritates tour players. In the projected 83-man field this year, there will be 17 foreign players and 13 amateurs.

"I doubt that half the Masters field could qualify for one of our tour tournaments," says former PGA champion Lionel Hebert.

Another ex-winner, Byron Nelson, supports the format.

"It is strictly an invitation," he says. "That's the way Mr. Roberts wants it—he doesn't want it to be just another tournament."

Roberts, who rigidly controls every facet of the event, says preference in ticket reservations is given those who have been attending the tournament for years.

"We have 365 acres out there. We could accommodate 100,000 comfortably but it would choke the hotels and the city of Augusta," he says.

Many wonder why people are so anxious to attend the event. Although the tickets are reasonable, $20 for the season, and the tournament is superbly organized, the spectator is not allowed freedoms granted at other tournaments.

Rules for Spectators Stringent

It's against the law to carry a periscope or stand on a portable seat for better vision. Swarms of uniformed guards enforce the restrictions. Most fans bring a lunch and park on one of the hillsides for the entire day. It's almost impossible to follow one golfer and see many shots.

The Masters is the only tournament in the world in which reporters and cameramen are not allowed inside the ropes. As a result, it must be the poorest covered of all tournaments.

Roberts and his Masters staff are sensitive to criticism. A few years ago a nationally syndicated writer was barred for making uncomplimentary remarks about the event at a press party.

Then there's the umbrella room—a niche in which 89 umbrellas and foot-lockers are lined side by side.

"Every official who works on the tournament is given an umbrella, a rain coat and a pair of overshoes," explained Roberts.

Green Started Ill-Fated Fight

OTTAWA (CP)—Boston Bruins defenceman Ted GVreen struck winger Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues first in a a high-sticking duel in an exhibition game here last Set.p 21, Ron Finn, a linesman at the game, said Tuesday.

Finn was testifying in the trial of Green, 25, on a charge of common assault arising from the stick fight in the National Hockey League exhibition game. The trial resumes today.

Green pleaded not guilty.

Maki, now playing with Buffalo of the American Hockey League, was acquitted Feb. 5 on a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Maki and Green were charged by Ottawa police after the fight. Green suffered head injuries in the fracas and underwent three operations. A plate has been inserted in his skull.

DELAYED PENALTY

Finn said he saw Maki and Green in the corner with the puck to the left side of the Boston net. Referee Ken Bodendistel had raised his hand to indicate a delayed penalty.

Then Maki and Green skated out level with the goal and raised their sticks.

"Before I got to the players I saw Green's stick come down and it looked as if it hit Maki to the left side of the face," Finn said.

Maki moved back and the two men waved their sticks back and forth in the air.

"Then all of a sudden Maki's stick came down and hit Green."

Earlier, defence counsel Edward Houston had attempted to have the charge quashed because of a technicality in the wording.

But Judge M. J. Fitzpatrick of Cornwall, Ont., ruled the charge was worded correctly.

Judge Carter withdrew from the Green case because he had heard the evidence in the Maki trial.

Patriots Preparing To Build New Home

BOSTON (AP) — The homeless Boston Patriots of the National Football League have announced they will build a 57,000-seat stadium in Foxboro and play there in 1971.

Patriots' president Billy Sullivan said the only condition to the plan is voter approval by the town of Foxboro, which has a population of about 17,000. A special town meeting has been scheduled for April 13 for the vote.

However, a survey in the town several weeks ago is incated that citizens were overwhelmingly in favor of having the Patriots.

Under the merger arrangements of the American and National Football Leagues, the Patriots, who have played in various stadia during their 10 years in Boston, needed plans for a 50,000-seat stadium this year.

Foxboro is 30 miles southwest of Boston.

Seek Something New Delegates Advised

Delegates to the provincial chapter IODE annual meeting were advised by national citizenship chairman Mrs. R. J. Skippon to "keep looking for something new, don't get used to the 'comfortable pew'."

In an address following the banquet Tuesday at the Empress Hotel, Mrs. Skippon said that, with television bringing the world into our living rooms, "everything seems to have priority . . . we are apt to become confused, frustrated and somewhat depressed with our inability to cope or be effective.

She said the IODE program "is geared to prmoote unity . . . to ensure unity it is necessary for us all to understand and appreciate each other's history and cultural contributions."

Possible projects in this field, she suggested, might include sponsoring "international nights" when ethnic groups could meet and achieve greater understanding, or helping young people to travel, both within Canada and abroad."

Safety in all its aspects is included in citizenship, and this includes concern about pollution in all its forms. Mrs. Skippon said.

"Women across Canada can play an active roll in prevention of pollution. Let's start vigorous and determined clean-up and safety campaigns in our communities across Canada.

"You must seek in your own community for the particular need and the right direction," Mrs. Skippon concluded.

SISTERS RECEIVE PRIZES

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Women may be involved in issues outside the home to a greater degree than ever before, but in Britain their magazines still tend to promote a domestic image because this is the only "selling climate" favored by advertisers, says a new book surveying two centuries of women's publications.

"The consequences for society are potentially serious, for women's magazines are far from being the innocuous purveyors of light entertainment they are often made out to be," says Dr. Cynthia White in Women's Magazines 1693-1968, published here by Michael Joseph.

"They are the nation's most powerful sales force to women, not merely of consumer goods, but of a feminine image and desirable standards of female achievement. That is where their social significance lies."

Dr. White notes that, historically, whenever women's rights loomed large on the national horizon, women's magazines retreated to a cosy domesticity. In 1861, when the "woman question" began to exercise Victorian minds, the new journal The Queen declared its editorial policy:

"When we write for women, we write for the home. . . . Women have neither hand nor heart for abstract political speculation, while as for our own liberties, or our political principles, they may be safely left to men."

IMAGE SHAKEN

In the previous century, however, magazine editors were ready to assume a lively intelligence among their readers. In 1770 the editor of The Lady's Magazine conceded: "The minds of the (female) sex when properly cultivated are not inferior to those whose honor it is to be protectors and instructors of the fair."

The cosy little-woman image persisted, despite falling sales in post-war years, right up to the mid-1960s, when a fresh breeze of realism began to ruffle the time-honored formula of romantic fiction, knitting patterns, agony columns and the "make potatoes a party treat" type of cookery feature.

One man was virtually responsible for the change—the New York psychologist Dr. Ernest Dichter, who had performed many magazine-doctor operations including the restyling of the Canadian monthly Chatelaine.

Called in to analyse the ailing Woman's Own weekly in 1964, Dichter's findings became the basis of a whole new philosophy in the magazine empire of Britain's International Publishing Corp. The most striking result of the new approach to "the thinking female" was the glossy monthly Nova, designed as a serious magazine acceptable to both sexes.

OLD FORMULA LINGERS

Nova has survived through five years of wavering circulation, though it has had to modify its original starkly intellectual content of heavy social and political topics towards more traditional subjects treated in a new way.

But other journals which were revamped with the new social realism—including Everywoman, Housewife and Woman's Mirror—failed to regain ground and either folded or were merged. Dr. White suggests that publishers may have over-estimated the pace at which British women were widening their horizons.

American magazine publishers, on the other hand, have succeeded in moving their readership—and their advertisers—with them in shaping a new mood of social involvement, "helping women to function effectively in a complex and demanding social environment" rather than providing escapist fodder.

Nevertheless, in her somewhat contradictory summing-up, Dr. White concludes that the old-established British formula, having withstood two world wars, the emancipation of women and an entire social revolution, "indicates that the majority of women find in it certain ingredients which satisfy their deepest needs."

Police Nun Fights Crime in Washington

By ALFRED E. LEWIS

WASHINGTON — Because she does not wear a habit, 25-year-old Sister Eleanor Niedwick probably does not look like a nun to persons she meets in the high crime area in downtown Washington.

And, because she usually keeps her badge and gun in her purse, Sister Niedwick does not look like a full-time policewoman either.

She has been both since last October, when she was sworn in as an officer of the Washington Police Department.

Each day, Sister Niedwick, who is now a plainclothes officer in the department's police-community relations division, rides in a scout car.

After going off duty at 4 p.m., she returns home to the Daughters of Wisdom Convent on the grounds of Catholic University, arriving in time to attend the daily mass with other nuns.

Often in the evening, she attends civic meetings, trying to improve communication between the citizens and police. Soon, she will be visiting schools in the area.

This kind of work is not new to Sister Niedwick. As a novice, following her graduation from the College of the Seat of Widsom in Litchfield, Conn., she taught school on Long Island and worked summers as a counsellor to drug addicts' wives in the Negro and Puerto Rican ghetto neighborhood of Brownsville in Brooklyn.

She came to Washington last August to become a social worker (while remaining a nun), but could not find an opening. Two months later, she took the police exam and passed.

Her "main reason", for joining the police force, she said, "is that the church belongs everywhere, not just in churches, schools and hospitals.

"The church should be involved in everything in all walks of life and types of jobs. "Indirectly," she added, "I'm bringing the church to the people."

At first, she feared that police work "was not my cup of tea," but now she finds it rewarding. She also thinks the experience will be valuable in eventually pursuing a social work career. She intends to study later for a master's degree in psychiatric social work.

Sister Niedwick was one of six policewomen, all college graduates, in a rookie training school class. She was one of the group's top marksmen with a service revolver.

Sister Niedwick lives with seven other nuns at the Daughters of Wisdom Convent. Most of the others are students at Catholic University. Each night, she said, they eagerly ask her questions about duties that day.

Before she went to rookie school, she worked as a clerk in the sex squad detective bureau in police headquarters. That, she said, "was an eye-opening experience."

(The Washington Post)

ON THE JOB

ALBION, N.Y. (AP) — Mayor William Monacelli hired his second cousin's wife, Joanne Monacelli, as a meter maid in this western New York village. When Mrs. Monacelli began her new job, the first car she tagged was the mayor's. "I'm pleased she's on the job," the mayor said, "even though it cost me a buck to find out."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Rains Come Down But Hose Fixed Up

By PENNY SAVER

My husband settled down into his easy chair, snapped his paper down to an easy to handle size and glanced contentedly out of the window at the rain-soaked yard.

"Wonderful," he said. "Just the kind of weather I wanted."

The children, moping around with books and games, glared at him, and he grinned back.

"After all, this will give me a chance to fix the hose. Why should the plants thirst just because someone carelessly left it under the wheels of the car?"

Between the paper and the comfortable chair, he didn't get the hose fixed that very day, but he did get stirring in time to make it to the hardware store to get the necessary supplies so he could do it Sunday.

What had happened was that late in the fall, someone (we never did find out who) left the hose lying across the driveway. When my husband went to roll it up and drain it for the winter the coupling was completely flattened and the plastic split at the end.

Kits which included instructions for those who have never tackled such a chore before begin at 99 cents for the female end (honestly, that's what they call it) only. Both couplings are $1.35 in the kit.

For $1.19 there is a coupling unit that will adjust to fit hoses from nine-sixteenths to three-quarters in diameter.

I thought the bag he brought home was a bit big for a hose coupling or two so I peeked and found a length of Y-shaped green hose and a mysterious green plastic roll.

The roll of plastic, I learned by reading the label, is designed to fit over a drainpipe. It rolls up out of the way, but when heavy rains begin it automatically unrolls from water pressure and disperses the water the way a soaker hose does.

The advantages of this setup are obvious. By taking the runoff water away from the house and dispersing it through the garden, the device prevents washouts at the base of the pipe and consequent leakage into the basement.

My husband promised to install this when the current rains stopped (though he didn't get a chance over the weekend) so we can find out how well it does work, but the principle looks so simple, I don't see how it can fail. These items cost $1.05 each.

The Y-shaped hose is a water mixer and can be used in many places inside the home (washing machines, for example, or even for mixing the water coming out of the tap).

My husband, however, bought this one, made of reinforced plastic and costing $1.89, for quite a different reason.

"We'll probably go on watering schedules sometime this summer. Since most of the watering we do then consists of keeping certain plants that can't bear drought alive, I thought that with this I might have two sprinklers going from a single tap. The pressure might be lowered a bit, but since the water would be needed on only a small area that wouldn't matter."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Fighting Back

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I've been married 22 years. We have five children, three are away at college. The two at home are boys, 11 and 15. I want to put the boys in a very fine summer camp and go to visit my mother for six weeks this summer. I have never done this before and my husband is having a fit! He says I can do it only over his dead body. (What a temptation!)

Every vacation we visit his mother, and that's where he wants to go again. The boys say they don't want to go to visit Grandmother (his mother) again this summer and I can't blame them as there is nothing for them to do there.

Only one summer since I've been married have I visited my mother. I have no objection to my husband's spending his summer vacation with his mother, but I want to spend mine with my mother. How can I persuade my husband to let me go? — Dominated.

DEAR DOMINATED: After 22 years of admitted "Domination" it won't be easy to "assert" yourself, but you can try. Appeal to his sense of fair play and logic. If he doesn't budge, ask him to put the question to an impartial third party. And if he still gives you that "over my dead body" routine, before you leave for your mother's, ask him to sign a statement stating that when you left he was alive and kicking.

DEAR ABBY: Have you heard about the new doll they are going to put on the market? It is called the Mamma Doll, and this is how it is described in the newspaper advertisement:

"When the doctor lifts the mama doll's skirt, a baby doll will slide out. On the baby doll's chest is written, "I am the result of love."

It says in the ad that a child psychologist approves of this doll.

Abby, this is about the worst thing I have ever heard of! When they made dolls that walked, talked, and danced, that was fine, because the whole idea of a doll is to give a child something to play with, but I really thought they went a little too far when they made a doll who could wet her pants. And now this! I think the idea of making a doll who can "give birth" is sick!

I would like your opinion. Maybe it's still not too late to stop it.—Horrified.

DEAR HORRIFIED: I am not as horrified as you, since toys today are being made to educate as well as entertain children. If such a doll is made, you don't have to buy one. Or would you like to impose your sense of propriety on other parents?

DEAR ABBY: You recently compared the unpleasant odor of an unwashed man to that of a mountain goat! You surely must have meant a barnyard billy goat." Mountain goats do not smell bad, but barnyard billy goats do.

The mountain goat is one of our finest and cleanest big game animals.

DEAR KNOWS: If there is an International Brotherhood of Mountain Goats, to them I hereby offer my most humble apologies. And in the future, if I ever decide to get anybody's goat, I shall first determine whether it's Mountain or Billy.

CONFIDENTIAL TO J.M.: "He who cannot forgive others, breaks the bridge over which he himself must pass if he would ever reach heaven; for everyone has need to be forgiven." (Herbert)

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

DISCRIMINATION CHARGED

Women Reporters Often Paid Less

OTTAWA (CP) — Discrimination against women as employees persists in Canadian newspapers and broadcasting, the special Senate committee on mass media has been told.

Eleanor Dunn, assistant women's editor of the Ottawa Citizen, said in a written submission that sex discrimination exists in pay, working conditions and opportunities for employment, advancement and assignments.

The submission, released for publication today, was among those for which the committee has not scheduled personal appearances at its public hearings.

A survey last fall by the Canadian Women's Press Club, which obtained 36 responses, showed that women's page editors generally are required to be administrators, editors, layout experts, columnists and reporters. Women's page reporters likewise often are required to do layout and headline writing—tasks newsroom reporters generally are not required to perform.

RECEIVE LESS PAY

"In spite of the spread of skills required of them, close to half who answered receive less pay than male editors," the survey found.

A social writer on the Oshawa Times was getting $69.55 weekly a year ago, at a time when the rate for news writers was $123.05.

Toronto, Vancouver and Victoria newspapers have pay parity. The Ottawa Citizen recently granted pay parity with men for some women's page staff, but women's page reporters with less than five years' experience get less than newsroom counterparts.

"Most Canadian women employed in the media work for newspapers, although breakthroughs are now being made in the field of television journalism," said Mrs. Dunn. "Few radio stations will hire female reporters."

MISS TOP JOBS

Women are working in all fields in newspapers, but "to my knowledge there are no women in senior management positions—news editor, city editor or managing editor—on any of the major Canadian dailies. . . ."

Even the women's page editor's job is not safe:

"There are at least two papers in Canada, the Hamilton Spectator and one Calgary daily in which this position is filled by a man."

Discrimination existed despite the fact that women staff often have higher qualifications than male counterparts—nine of 11 women on the editorial staff of The Citizen have university degrees.

Citing other forms of discrimination, Mrs Dunn says few women are assigned to the Parliamentary Press Gallery in Ottawa and she attributed that to "the preponderantly male management" of newspapers.

Women reporters in Ottawa also are at a disadvantage because they are barred from membership in the National Press Club, a facility used by male reporters as a source of information as well as for social relaxation, Mrs. Dunn said.

By Florence de Santis

Lots of American Indians these days get pretty annoyed at being portrayed by non-Indians in movies, but at least Corinna can claim authenticity for the costumes she wears.

"The time of the film is 1825, when there had not yet been much contact between Europeans and Indains, so the Indians still lived their full native life. Or so I am told," she added with a langh.

Corinna Tsopei is Greek, a former Miss Universe, and her only contact with the American Indian has been in Western movies.

"We are trying to re-create very carefully the exact way the Sioux of South Dakota lived. Indian themes are very popular in fashion today, but we wouldn't want to make them the way they do today. My dresses were made of animal skins and embroidered in the patterns the Indians have passed on from one generation to another."

According to Clyde Dollar, historian-archaeologist of South Dakota's Rosebud Sioux Reservation, each Indian family made all its own clothing. As there were no facilities for cleaning or storing, and materials were limited to skins, the clothing had to be adaptable to all seasons.

"The dresses stopped just above the ankles," said Corinna, "and were loosely cut. There were no sleeves, the garment being cut rather like a kimono, broad enough for the sides to fall over the arms. Knives cut the skins, and the Indian women put in hours and hours of work scraping and kneading the skins to make them soft."

As there were no sewing implements, the Indians punched holes along the edges of the garment. A thin strip of skin, often another kind from that of the garment, to create a decorative effect, was placed along the edge. Then another strip was passed through the holes and in a loop around the straight strip of skin.

"I was amazed to find what intricate effects they could achieve," said Corinna.

"The Indians used buffalo, bearskin, moose, deer, beaver, otter, wolverines marten foxes and mountain lions. I know, because they were all used in A Man Called Horse. Then there were pheasant and other feathers, which were used for decorations. They made jewelry from colored stones."

Mini-capes were used for warmth in winter, usually of fur, and, of course, mocassins were carefully cut and put together with the hide strip method.

As the Indian heroine of the film, Corinna Tsopei has a number of these costumes, which she admired greatly. But just as real Indian clothes are difficult to make, so was playing an Indian.

After having studied English for two years, Corinna spent most of her first important film speaking Sioux! Authenticity went as far as that.

Coming from Greece, where clothes still are strongly influenced by tradition, Corinna Tsopei instantly took to the ethnic appeal of Indian clothes. She's known the Western glamour route, too, in her year as Miss Universe, in 1964. At 19, she went round the world and was given jewelry, furs and clothes.

Muslims Vow 'Fight to End' Over Mosques

By PAMELA DIAMOND
The Manchester Guardian

CAPE TOWN — Leaders of South Africa's 200,000-member Muslim community have warned the government that they will "fight to the end" to defend their holy places against demolition by the latest apartheid move.

Tension among the Muslims is rising as the government prepares to pull down mosques situated in areas that have been proclaimed "white."

Sheikh A. Najaar, vice-president of the Muslim Judicial Council and Imam of the Zinatul Islam Mosque in Cape Town, said: "We will go to court if necessary. Our people will never accept financial compensation."

Most of the mosques have been threatened by the governments "group areas" plan which aims at segregating the races into white, black, colored and Asian communal areas.

Muslim religious leaders have sent a strongly-worded petition to Prime Minister Johannes Vorster and to provincial administrators.

The petition protests against "such irreligious acts" and denounced "this injustice against a law-abiding minority."

It concludes: "We are a helpless people who can only resort to supplication to the almighty for guidance and protection."

Sheikh Najaar said: "We will fight to the end. We have no alternative. On religious grounds mosques can never be abandoned. Even if a mosque building is destroyed, the ground itself remains sanctified as a mosque until eternity and Muslims are always entitled to pray there at all times."

The government has offfered generous compensation for the real estate value of the mosques it wants to remove, but these offers have been rejected.

Moslem leaders recall "broken promises" made by the nationalist government that religious places would never be disturbed in the application of the group areas plan.

"We believed this, because whatever you might say of Afrikaners, they are a deeply religious people themselves, and we felt that this was a matter they would understand," Shiekh Najaar said. "Now we are shocked to find they are prepared to break their promises and destroy our places of worship."

MP SALARY PROBERS SEEK PUBLIC MOOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Here's your chance to sound off by letter about your $18,000-a-year member of Parliament.

And to have your letter officially read.

The advisory committee on parliamentary salaries and expenses is seeking the opinion of citizens on whether MPs should get pay increases.

Establishment of the committee was announced by the government March 2. Its address is 2 Rideau St., Ottawa.

Committee chairman T. N. Beaupre, president of Domtar Ltd., said Monday in an interview that his group will get the opinions of all senators and members of the Commons through a questionnaire and private meetings.

Banish rear view worries with Casbah*

When you reach up, do your panty hose reach down?

New Casbah panty hose bring you three solutions to the ugly panty line problem.

First: Casbah's sheer-to-the-waist panty hose. The look is all nude, but the wear is all there. A specially-twisted nylon provides exceptional strength, plus a shape-hugging stretch that never bags. And the seams are sewn with stretch thread, a cure for nasty splits and tears.

Solution #2: wear regular Casbah panty hose. Yes, there's a panty line, but it's very short. Two inches shorter than the average, in fact.

Or, try a little of both worlds: Bikini Casbah. It's less covered up than the regular style, but more covered up than the nude.

So enjoy your mini skirts. And feel free to move as you please. With Casbah panty hose, you always know what's happening behind your back.

Absolutely nothing.

Fiddler May Beat Musical Jinx That Has Been Plaguing Films

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Norman Jewison was assigned to produce and direct Fiddler on the Roof, it seemed like strange casting. He had made such films as The Cincinnati Kid and In The Heat of the Night, but never a musical.

"What people forget is that I directed mostly musicals in television," he explains. "I worked in musicals almost exclusively in Canada. In the U.S., I directed The Hit Parade, the first Andy Williams Show, The Big Party with Goodman Ace, two Harry Belafonte specials, The Fabulous 30s and specials with Danny Kaye and Judy Garland.

"Is is strange that I've never directed a movie musical. But I never found one that excited me. Until now."

HE'S EXCITED

Jewison, a Toronto native, worked his way through the University of Toronto by driving a cab and waiting on tables. After working as an actor and scriptwriter in London, he returned to Canada and made a name for himself in television production with the CBC.

The youthful-looking director is obviously excited about Fiddler. His office at Goldwyn studio is cluttered with such things as research on Jewish life in czarist Russia and sketches of Ukrainian villages. He has been interviewing actors here, in New York and London for cast members to join Topol, the Israeli star who will play Tevye.

Next month Jewison will embark for Europe, where he will spend a year in preparing, filming and editing Fiddler. Exterior shooting will begin in Yugoslavia Aug. 1.

He expects to shoot through December in Yugoslavia, then return to London for nine weeks of interiors. His estimate of the total cost is $9,000,000, including rights to the play.

Fiddler on the Roof appears to be the only musical scheduled for production this year, film companies being wary because of the flops of Dr. Doolittle, Sweet Charity, Star! and others.

People With Ideas PM's Dinner Choice

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — As Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has suggested, Prime Minister Trudeau may curl up with a copy of Hansard some evenings at home.

But he has also thrown more gala dinners than the prime ministerial residence at 24 Sussex St. has probably ever seen.

The bachelor prime minister is a good talker—many politicians are—but he is also a good brain-picker. Most guests are invited for the ideas they can contribute to the conversation.

Mr. Trudeau's luncheon guests tend to be mainly politicians. But the dinner guests come from nearly every field—arts, economics, industry, labor, youth and the municipalities.

QUIET INVITATIONS

No publicity is given to Mr. Trudeau's dinners, though an invitation to any person is hardly kept secret among that person's circle of friends—or enemies.

Probably the most glittering occasion at 24 Sussex since Mr. Trudeau took office was his arts dinner in November, 1968.

The guests included singer Renee Claude of Montreal, poet Earle Birney of Vancouver, theatre director Jean-Louis Roux of Montreal, Canada Council Director Peter Dwyer, Montreal writer Jean LeMoyme, actor Mavor Moore, singers Sylvia and Ian Tyson and musician Andree Desautels of Montreal.

An Oct. 27, 1969, dinner had among the guests Canadian-born John Kenneth Galbraith, an adviser to President Kennedy and former U.S. ambassador to India, and French industrialist Louis Armand.

In February, the prime minister had a dinner for mayors of 15 Canadian cities from Vancouver to St. John's, Nfld., and another in honor of Paul McCracken, economic adviser to President Nixon. The guests at the latter included Dr. Sylvia Ostry of the Economic Council of Canada and Prof. Ed Neufeld of the University of Toronto.

GUESTS NUMBERED 20

Last Oct. 15 he gave a dinner for leaders of the public service unions.

The Trudeau dinners are noted more for their talk than the food and drink. Guests seldom get more than one cocktail. Wine is served. But the prime minister never lets the meal get in the way of the conversation.

Reporters Can't Board Manhattan

HOUSTON (CP) — Humble Oil Co. and the Canadian transport department have worked out arrangements so that Canadian reporters on an icebreaker accompanying the supertanker Manhattan can be briefed, a spokesman said Tuesday.

But Humble said it does not plan to permit reporters to board the tanker during its "working" voyage to the Eastern Arctic.

The spokesman was asked to comment on the refusal of the tanker's captain on Monday to permit reporters on the Canadian icebreaker Louis S. St. Laurent to visit the tanker. No reason was given for the refusal at the time.

The Humble spokesman said that the decision not to permit reporters to board was taken in March. The reason was that the trip did not have the historic aspects of last year's voyage of the Manhattan through the Northwest Passage.

At the same time more scientific experiments were being conducted on this voyage, which the company described as fairly routine.

The spokesman said the company was not discriminating against Canadian reporters as there were no American reporters on board the tanker either.

Arrangements had been made for the Canadian transport department representative on the tanker to shift to the icebreaker to brief reporters, he said.

The spokesman said that the company is not trying to hide anything in its decision not to permit reporters on board. About a dozen Canadian reporters had visited the ship at Newport News, Va., before it sailed.

Charges Laid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said Monday manslaughter charges have been laid against two 27-year-old men after the death Sunday of Ole Rodd, 63, soon after he was beaten in a skid road rooming house. Charged were Edward James Fenton and Douglas Lloyd Campion, both of Vancouver.

Deeply rooted in antiquity, the "promised land" today is indeed a new Israel . . . dramatically changed geographically, its deserts abloom, schools multiplying, industry booming. Yet problems and dangers remain. Israel's grip is fragile. Not even its own boundaries are certain. It stands surrounded by enemies on all sides, and well beyond. But there are admirers, too.

Doctor Urges Crime Test For Pupils

By ROBERT C. MAYNARD
The Washington Post

President Nixon has asked the department of health, education and welfare to study the proposals of a New York psychiatrist that psychological tests be administered to every six-year-old in the United States to determine their furture potential for criminal behavior.

Dr. Anold Hutschnecker further proposed massive psychological and psychiatric treatment for those children found to be criminally inclined. He said such a program was a better short-term solution to the crime problem than urban reconstruction.

Teenage boys later found to be persisting in incorrigible behavior would be remanded to camps under the proposals submitted to the president last December.

Dr. Hutschnecker, a consultant to the former national commission on the causes and prevention of violence, advised the president of his proposals in a 1,600-word long critique of the commission's report after it disbanded at the end of last year.

Assistant to the president John D. Ehrlichman, in a memorandum to HEW secretary Robert Finch on Dec. 30, said "the president asks your opinion as to the advisability of setting up pilot projects embodying some of these approaches.

A spokesman for Finch said that no answer has been sent to the White House because the study of Dr. Hutschnecker's suggestions "requires considerable staff work," which is not complete.

Dr. Hutschnecker, formerly an internist, treated Nixon in that capacity when the president was vice-president in the 1950's. He has said that he did not treat Nixon after changing his specialty to psychiatry in 1960.

The determination of criminal tendencies of children 6 to 8 years old would be made by psychologists using such tests as the Rorshach, which depends for its predictive insights on the reactions of the person being tested to a series of ink blot images.

'Focus on the Criminal Mind'

The U.S. violence commission concluded that the solution to urban violence is urban reconstruction, creating an environment that would reverse the trend toward crime.

"No doubt," Dr. Hutschnecker told the president, "there is a desperate need for urban reconstruction but I would suggest another, direct, immediate, and — I believe — effective way of attacking the problem at its very origin, by focusing on the criminal mind of the child.

"The aim is to prevent a child with a delinquent character structure from being allowed to grow into a full-fledged teenage delinquent or adult criminal," Dr. Hutschnecker said.

"The sooner this destructive trend is recognized and reversed, the better the chances for the prevention of crime and the cure of the individual," he wrote.

The early testing of children to detect deviant behavior has been advocated by the doctor before.

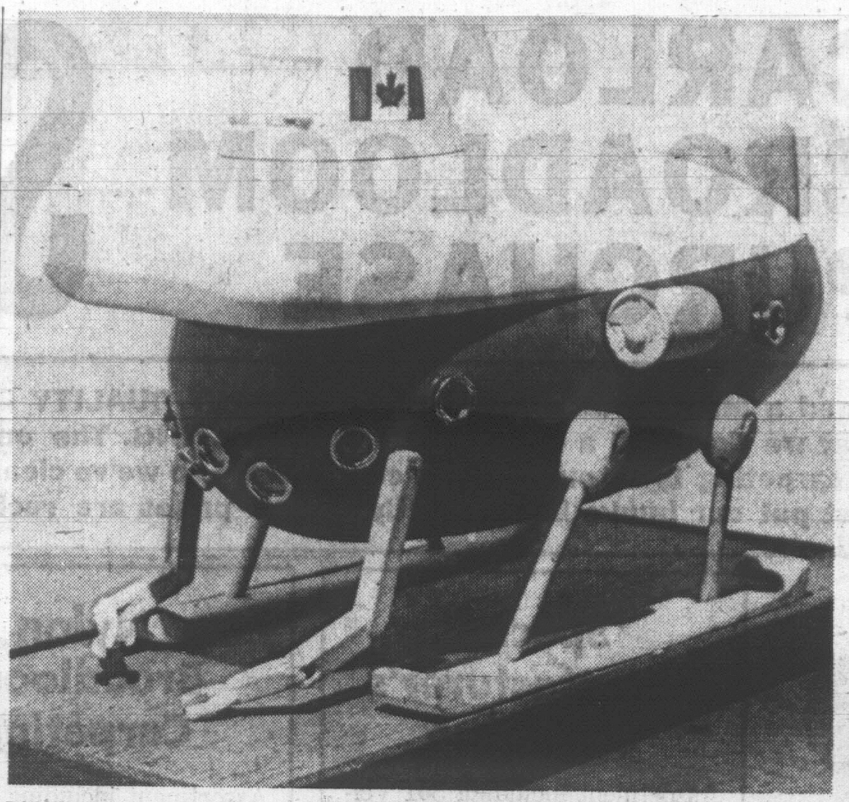
He wrote last year in Look magazine that high school and college students "should be obliged to undergo psychological testing." He argued then that aside from detecting mental illness in time to facilitate early treatment, such tests would serve the purpose of "weeding out psychopathic personalities before they reached positions of power."

In the Look article, Dr. Hutschnecker urged "a kind of mental health certificate (that) would be required of all young people as a prerequisite for any job of political responsibility."

Dr. Hutschnecker bases his advocacy of psychological testing on what he believes to be the successful predictive achievements of such tests as those devised in the 1950s by Sheldon and Eleanor Glueck of Harvard University.

Using a combination of social and psychological data, the Gluecks reported that they were able to predict over time that certain children would become youthful offenders as adolescents. Their test is one of those specifically recommended for universal administration in Dr. Hutschnecker's memo to Nixon.

"The more disturbed, the more angry, rebellious, undisciplined and disruptive boys, especially those who show criminal tendencies, should be given aptitude tests to determine areas of interest which should be carefully encouraged. They are Pavlovian methods which I have seen effectively used in the Soviet Union," Dr. Hutschnecker said.



LOOKING for all the world like a science fiction nightmare is a scaled model of a new submersible planned for use by the Canadian Armed Forces in marine operations. An interim version of the submersible meanwhile has been accepted for trials at DND's Nanoose underwater range near Nanaimo. The interim model will be exchanged for a new submersible now under construction by International Hydro Dynamics, Vancouver, this fall.

The submersible is 25 feet long, 10 feet wide and nine feet high. It is air transportable, carries a crew of two and contains a lock-out compartment to permit drivers to leave and re-enter while submerged.

FIRST OSCAR in his long career is accepted by John Wayne (above) for his performance in True Grit as hard-drinking, paunchy Rooster Cogburn (inset), the hard-handed marshal. Wayne appeared to be brushing away a tear as he accepted the award Tuesday night. (AP Wirephoto)

BEST MOVIE of 1969 according to the Academy of Motion Picture Arts is Midnight Cowboy, starring Dustin Hoffman (left)— as a sick Manhattan bum and Jon Voigt as a Texas male prostitute.

MIDNIGHT COWBOY NAMED BEST MOVIE

Bashing, Brawling Wayne Top Star

HOLLYWOOD (CP) — After bashing and brawling his way through more than 100 Hollywood dramas in 30 years of stardom, tough old John Wayne finally made it. He got an Oscar.

Wayne, 62, who started his film career as a prop man, won the best actor Academy Award Tuesday night for his portrayal as the rough, hard-drinking marshal Rooster Cogburn in Tru Grit, a spoof of his usual westerns.

As he accepted the award for portraying the fat, one-eyed lawman, Wayne said: "If I'd have known, I'd have put that patch over my eye 35 years ago."

Wayne once before had been nominated for an Oscar—The Sands of Iwo Jima in 1949—but failed to win it.

Motion picture academy voters awarded best picture honors to a youth-oriented, seamy tale of friendship between a sick Manhattan bum and a Texas male prostitute, Midnight Cowboy, starring Dustin Hoffman and Jon Voight, both in the running for best actor awards.

The film also won Britian's John Schlesinger the award for best director and captured the best screenplay Oscar.

Maggie Smith, also from Britain, fought off some strong competition to win the best actress award for her role as an eccentric Scottish schoolmarm in The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie. She had been nominated in 1965 for a supporting role in Othello.

Miss Bujold, 26, a product of the French-speaking theatre in Montreal, was nominated for her co-starring role with Richard Burton in Anne of the Thousand Days.

She won the best actress award in the Golden Globe presentation of the Hollywood Foreign Press Association for her role in the film, a tale of the tempestuous time of King Henry VIII.

The film, made in England, was named best motion picture by the press association.

GOLDIE HAWN

Miss Fonda was nominated for They Shoot Horses, Don't They? and Miss Minnelli for The Sterile Cuckoo and Miss Simmons for The Happy Ending.

Gig Young bounded on stage as if on springs to accept the best supporting actor award for his performance as the breezy master of ceremonies at a dance marathon in They Shoot Horses, Don't They?

Goldie Hawn, the blonde giggler of television's Laugh In, was chosen best supporting actress. She played Walter Matthau's girl friend in Cactus Flower.

Most honored film was Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, which captured four Oscars in all-best story, best original score, cinematography and best song, Raindrops Keep Fallin' on my Head. The score and song were written by composer Burt Bacharach.

The big budget musical Hello, Dolly! took three Oscars—best score for a musical, best achievement in sound, and best art direction.

The Algerian-made Z took prizes for film editing and as best foreign-language film.

It was also a night for memorable moments:

- Elizabeth Taylor, in a blue gown and wearing husband Richard Burton's gift—$1,000,000 diamond in a necklace. She presented the best picture award.
- A salvo of applause and a 20-second standing ovation for Cary Grant, voted a special Oscar by the academy's governors for many memorable performances.
- Wayne telling the audience; "I'm John Wayne. I work with my clothes on. I have to. Horses are rough on your legs—and your elsewhere."

Comedian Bob Hope, one of 17 stars who presented the awards, said as a joke that the Oscars are "dedicated to the proposition that jealousy and envy shall not perish from the earth."

Commenting on current screen nudity, he said: "It's such a novelty to see actors and actresses with their clothes on. . . They're putting things on the screen that the French wouldn't allow on post cards."

Edmonton Faces Mosquito Blitz

EDMONTON (CP) — The city may be in for a "mosquito summer" unless city council comes up with extra money.

The pests have been held down in the past by generous applications of DDT, but since it has been banned in the province, the parks and recreation department has had to find a substitute.

"We have a substitute, but the trouble is it costs three times as much as DDT," W. A. Gunning, the department's director of maintenance, said in an interview.

He added that unless city council votes more money to the mosquito control program, there will be no money for the traditional second and third sprayings.

This year the department will use the insecticide Dursban which has been approved by the provincial department of health.

Gunning said the substitute has a short life and must be used as quickly as possible.

The budger for mosquito control this year is $57,366.

Direction Given

CALGARY (CP) — The public school board voted 7-to-1 Tuesday to ask city council to pass on all of this year's five-mill saving in school costs to taxpayers.

Trustees adopted Robert Dixon's motion to send a communique to council saying this is what the board expected would happen when it approved a $64,000,000 budget for 1970.

Mary Ellen Johnson voted against the motion.

Dixon said he is concerned that council may use the tax saving, produced by board budget cuts and increased provincial government grants, to pay for additional municipal expenditures.

Housing Problem

SASKATOON (CP) — Inadequate housing is the major problem on the Red Pheasant Indian reserve, an investigating committee reported Tuesday. The investigation, under auspices of the Saskatchewan Association of Human Rights, was asked to investigate living conditions on the reserve, 70 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

Coal Starts Moving

GRANDE CACHE, Alta. (CP) — The first load of Alberta coal destined for Japanese steel mills left this mining town Tuesday on a 655-mile trip to Vancouver. A. R. Patrick, mines and minerals minister, told a group of officials two 60-car trains will leave each week carrying 2,000-000 tons of soft coal a year for shipment from the west coast to Japan.

Plans Changed

WINNIPEG (CP) — Brothers John and Norman Anderson, intending robbery but losing their nerve at three banks in succession, were sentenced Tuesday to two years in penitentiary.

Both pleased guilty to a joint charge of conspiracy to commit armed robbery. They had been tailed by suspicious department store security officers who watched them enter the three Portage Avenue banks, then leave without carrying out their admitted intention of robbery.

Norman Anderson was carrying an air pistol in a shopping bag.

Shortage Cited

CALGARY (CP) — A shortage of jobs for students will create a "desperate summer" for many youths and stretch city facilities, social services superintendent Sam Blakley said Tuesday.

Revisions Opposed

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees will continue to oppose some revisions of the Alberta Labor Act, Les Hewson, president of the 14,000-member Alberta division, said Tuesday. At an executive meeting earlier this week the union decided it could not support compulsory settlement by arbitration in any form.

Scope Restricted

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — F. H. (Bud) Olson, federal agriculture minister, said Tuesday he considers the National Farmers Union representative of the number of farmers who have chosen to join, "no more and no less." He was speaking at a news conference in regards to recent demands by the NFU that it become the exclusive voice for agriculture in western Canada.

Paris Subway Stresses Speed

PARIS (AP) — Paris now has a subway station where you can shake the trunk of an elephant, have a herring sandwich or get your urine analyzed.

It is called La Defense, the terminal of a new subway line that runs very fast, if very briefly. You can go from L'Etoile at the top of the Champs-Elysees to the edge of the suburbs at Puteaux in less than four minutes.

There's not much else to the subway, but the French have turned on the modernity; wide halls, escalators, reds, blues, greys, phoney marble, aluminum, technicians in lab coats at glass-enclosed consoles and a machine that takes your ticket, does something electronic to it, then offers it back to you because you can't get out of the subway without it.

At La Defense station, against the background of some unexplainedly German polka music, Frenchmen explore a shopping centre just the other side of the turnstiles and change booths.

AROUND B.C.

Fire Kills Two In Smithers Shack

SMITHERS (CP) — Two persons died Tuesday in a fire which destroyed a shack and lean-to near this north central British Columbia community.

Dead are Murphy Williams, 30, and Sophie Patrick, 45. RCMP discounted an earlier report that a third person had been trapped in the burning shack.

Forger Jailed

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — James Harry Turner, 20, of Kelowna, Tuesday was sentenced to one year in prison and fined $250 in provincial court in this northern B.C. community for car theft and forgery. He pleaded guilty to both charges.

Man Acquitted

CRANBROOK (CP) — Einer Manuel Sosnowski, 25, of Fernie, was acquitted Tuesday of a rape charge after a two-day British Columbia Supreme Court trial in this southeastern B.C. community. Sosnowski was charged after a Creston teenager claimed she was sexually assaulted Jan. 8.

Baby Beater Jailed

QUESNEL (CP) — Gunnar Robertson Courtorielle, 22, of Quesnel, was sentenced Tuesday to four months in Prince George jail after pleading guilty in provincial court to beating a 15-month-old baby boy. He was babysitting when the incident occurred last Saturday night.

Shop Closing Dropped

LANGLEY (CP) — City council Tuesday threw out its regulations governing store closing hours. The council, following a request from a city shop owner to remain open beyond store-closing bylaw hours, decided it had no business regulating store hours.

GREEN ACRES, 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Oliver is celebrating his birthday but he gets upstaged by another celebrant—Arnold, the precocious pig, much to his disgust and dismap.

ROOM 222. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. "Flu." (Repeat) Pretty good episode about Principal Kaufman's battle keeping classes going with a flu-struck teaching staff. With Pete Dixon and Liz McIntyre among the stalwarts, to say nothing about Kaufman himself and student teacher Alice, classes are covered, if barely. However, the beleaguered school gets a real shot in the arm from a Peace Corps volunteer back from Uganda, a young man whose father (Principal Kaufman) seems to underestimate him.

MEDICAL CENTER. 9 p.m., Channel 12. Writer Anthony Lawrence has back-to-back stories on CBS tonight — here and on "Hawaii Five-O." This one is an interesting drama about a young resident doctor, a talented black who is denied a research grant. The resident suspects Doc Gannon lacks confidence in him and pressures our hero for the chance to perform a gallstone operation. Gannon gives in and then doubts his decision in the climactic surgery scenes. George Stanford Brown plays the resident with competence, having to compete with his patient, scene-stealer Will Geer.

MUSIC HALL. 9 p.m., Channel 5. Eddy Arnold is host again for a relaxed hour of songs and fun, with singer-composer Jackie De Shannon, singer John Davidson, and comic Charlie Callas along for the ride. Highlights include a medley by Eddy, Jackie and John saluting past Academy Award winning tunes, and Eddy's concert spot at the close. Also, Charlie Callas gets laughs with a mangled version of Marc Anthony's eulogy from "Julius Caesar."

HAWAII FIVE-O, 10 p.m., Channel 12. Repeat). Fairly interesting kidnapping story with a different twist. Following the pattern of several kidnapping cases, agent McGarrett discovers that the culprit is a Vietnam veteran with severe psychiatric problems, badly in need of medical help. Newcomer Jeff Pomerantz plays the kidnapper with a flair, and should be heard from in the future.

THEN CAME BRONSON. 10 p.m., Channel 5. "The Old Motorcycle Fiasco." (Repeat) Another deliberately easygoing hour with our attractive cross-country cyclist and the people he meets on his Wednesday night pit stops. In this one, his tank is filled with weed killer instead of gas and he's forced to lay over in a rural community where he meets a man (Keenan Wynn) who's been hiding his rusting old motorcycle from his wife (Martine Bartlett) for 23 years. Seeing Bronson brings out the desire to get it working again, which puts our hero in the middle of a family battle. The performance are fine, and there's plenty of cycling in the last 15 minutes.

COMEDY CRACKERS. 10:30 p.m., Channel 2. Gordie Tapp, who is now making it south of the border as a regular in Hee Haw, is entertained at the B and B pub. Three prairie farmers solve the wheat problem, crime experts meet police experts and a nervous father tells his daughter the facts of life.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30, Channel 12: At Gunpoint (1955 western), Fred MacMurray, Dorothy Malone. Plot concerns a peaceful man who does his duty as a citizen and ends up being stalked by a band of outlaws.

8:30, Channel 8: Stagecoach (1966 western), Ann-Margaret, Alex Cord, Red Buttons. Stagecoach passengers encounter danger as they travel through Sioux Indian territory..

9 p.m., Channel 7: Voice in the Mirror (1958 drama), Richard Egan, Arthur O'Connell. A drama about alcoholism and the long road back to recovery.

12:01: Channel 6: Stagecoach (see above).

THE SALESMAN
Anyone buying or selling a home will give some thought to the purpose served by the real estate salesman. The salesman — the good salesman, that is, and most are — is a hard-working person who puts in long hours to be of service to the buyer and the seller of property.

In the first place he is a knowledgeable adviser as to price, saleability, listing methods, etc., whose advice to the prospective vendor is worth while.

When a listing is given, he takes the responsibility for seeing that the property is advertised to best advantage; that, if desirable, other Realtors are alerted to the possibility of a sale, and works with potential buyers to ensure that each is dealt with in proper fashion. He can often prevent unnecessary concern by the vendor by judicious screening of these potential buyers. Advice on the handling of offers received can be perhaps his most valuable service and is freely between salesman and all the potential buyers gives him a "feel of the market" for this particular property which cannot be equalled.

He will know a great deal about the legal requirements of completing a sale, and can advise how to have these arranged.

Since a good deal is a deal which is advantageous to both buyer and seller, the good salesman works hard to ensure a deal fair to both. Perhaps we can give further consideration to the relation of the salesman to the buyer another time.

PRIVATE SALE, LAKE HILL District. Only five minutes walk to all grades of schools, 10 mins. University. Modern home with full, high, daylight basement, carport and sundeck. Chamber Grant Hopes Dim

It could have a long wait.

Already rejected on the first go-round of grants, Chamber manager Brian Small appeared Tuesday to ask for reconsideration.

He said the $2,500 is urgently needed for replying to business inquiries and prospective settler's letters.

But his plea didn't find too responsive a chord in committee members.

Mayor Courtney Haddock and Ald. Cecil Parrott supported the grant. They both described the $2,500 as a minor amount in the over-all grant picture.

The argument didn't impress other committee members.

Ald. Leslie Passmore, Saanich, said: "We are supposed to be trying to curtail expenditures.

"If we reconsider this application are we going to reconsider all the others we turned down?"

Jubilee's South Wing Renovated

Things will be a little brighter for patients in at least one area of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Tuesday afternoon, a redecorated sun lounge was officially opened on the fourth floor of the hospital's south wing.

It was provided by members of the hospital's junior Auxiliary and is dedicated to its founder, Mrs. Hermann F. Robertson.

As part of a renovation of the entire south wing, the sun lounge completed work on the 26-bed fourth floor area.

Dr. A. C. Pickles, executive director at the hospital, said the auxiliary, formed in 1924, provides more than $3,000 annually to the hospital through its gift shop in the hospital's reception area and its downtown thrift shop.

"The contribution these women make is greatly appreciated, believe me," he said.

One of the patient rooms on the fourth floor, which reopened in January, was furnished by John A. Wenger, a retired jeweller, who was a patient on the third floor several months ago. After enquiring about the clatter upstairs, he decided to equip one of the rooms.

No Evidence Of Cancer In Sheppard

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Coroner Robert A. Evans says an autopsy on Dr. Sam Sheppard turned up no visible signs of cancer.

While exact cause of death will not be determined until completion of chemical tests later this week, Dr. Evans said, there were no indications of injury.

He added that it was "obvious that Sheppard drank a great deal but I found no evidence to indicate he had consumed liquor recently."

Sheppard, whose murder trial more than 15 years ago created headlines, died Monday in his suburban home.

Speculation that he might have died of cancer arose after lawyer F. Lee Bailey, who gained Sheppard's release from prison and a second trial, disclosed that Sheppard told him three months ago he had the disease.

Sheppard served 10 years in the Ohio penitentiary after conviction of the murder of his first wife, Marilyn. He was exonerated in a second trial ordered by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Colleen Sheppard, third wife of the 46-year-old former Cleveland osteopath, said Sheppard became ill late last week with what appeared to have been flu and had been doctoring himself.

Seattle Tries Household Tax

SEATTLE (AP) — City council has adopted a 50-cent-a-month household tax — exempting the poor, aged and handicapped — to buy up Seattle's money-losing transit system.

Voters rejected a $1-a-month household tax meant for the bus system last Nov. 3 by about a 16,000-vote margin.

The ordinance, effective July 1, also taxes business for each person they employ full-time, excluding the handicapped.

Public Hearings Seen On Alaska Pipeline

By GEORGE C. WILSON

WASHINTON (WP) — In what conservationists will regard as a big victory, Secretary of Interior Walter J. Hickel said Tuesday that he now expects to hold new public hearings on the $1 billion pipeline to go across Alaska.

The reason, Hickel said in an interview, is that the latest engineering data indicate more of the pipeline will have to be put above ground than originally anticipated.

If this is borne out, and every indication is that it will be, Hickel said there definitely will be public hearings.

Such hearings would enable conservationists to capitalize on the new national concern about the environment as they detailed their fears about what an 800-mile pipe full of hot oil would do to the delicate Alaskan wilderness.

John L. Buckley, technical assistant in President Nixon's science and technology office, is among those within the government who has pushed for new hearings.

Hickel himself said Tuesday that his position all along has been that new hearings should be held if more than 15 miles of the pipeline had to be put above ground rather than buried. It looks now, he said, as if 40 or 50 miles of the line will have to be above ground.

The line is designed to take oil from the fields on Alaska's North Slope to the port of Valdez, a run of about 800 miles. Several oil companies have banded together to build the line under an organization called TAPS for Trans-Alaska Pipeline System.

William T. Pecora, director of the interior department's geological survey, has filed a report with Hickel outlining the dangers to an underground pipe, such as the shifting Alaskan tundra, which could cause a break in the line.

Fishermen Union Merger Talks Fail

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two days of talks aimed at bringing the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union back into the Canadian labor mainstream failed to accomplish their purpose although some progress was reported Tuesday by Joe Morris, vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress.

Mr. Morris said the talks "progressed quite well" and will be continued in an attempt to have the 7,600-member union merge with the Amalgamated Meatcutters Union and thus rejoin the CLC, from which it was banished in 1954 when its ranks were reputed to be riddled by communist sympathizers.

In recent years, various attempts have been made to have the fisheremen's union, which also has about 700 members in Nova Scotia, brought back into the CLC.

Mr. Morris said the two unions will continue to hold individual talks and will report back to him.

"When they do, we'll be able to arrange further talks," he said.

He declined comment when asked if the merger was a necessary step for the fishermen in their drive for CLC affiliation.

Homer Stevens of Vancouver, president of the Fishermen's Union, said in Vancouver last week that he feared the difference in size between his smaller union and the meatcutters would mean his group would be swallowed up if it agreed to the merger.

Spectral Ship Seen

MONTAGUE, P.E.I. (CP) — Carlton Hume of Little Sands, on Prince Edward Island's southeast coast, says he has seen a burning ship in the Northumberland Strait three times in the last five years. There have been reports for more than 100 years of sightings of a burning ship. Legend says the burning ships are ghosts of ships destroyed by fire.

HOME GARDEN

Attractions for Hummingbirds

By HILDA BEASTALL

When we reach the stage of relaxing in that special garden area being prepared for just that purpose, we shall need birds. These are versatile creatures. They don't come to our garden just because it exists, there must be attractions.

Hilda

Take hummingbirds, those miracles of the bird world. We like to have them around from early spring until late fall but to enjoy more than a fleeting visit we must provide specific attractions suited to the hummingbird's needs.

First to remember is their need for nectar, an energy food compensating for their terrific wing speed, maintained even while hovering at their feeding. Once in a while we catch them perching but these are rare moments.

Their second source of food is small insects, the various aphides bothering young shoots of our plants in spring and at intervals throughout the summer as new growth begins after spring bloom.

If home gardeners use no more insect sprays this spring we may begin to benefit by a gradual return of this natural control of greenfly, white fly and black aphis.

It cannot happen in one season, but with the attraction of a few suitable flowers and a few suitable insects, a chance remains for us to once again enjoy visits from these delightful feathered predators.

Thus we find them in early spring around azaleas. It seems their color sense is well developed as they dash from one red flower to another.

I'm not sure whether it is an ornithological fact that, like the bees, hummers visit only one type of flower on one feeding trip, butonce noticed visiting kniphofias (Redhot-pokers), a hummingbird will go from one of these plants to another all over the property.

Other plants to attract these birds are Columbines, mostly the red shades; Coral-bells (Heuchera Sanguinea); later in summer, the red Weigelas and scarlet Maltese-cross (Lychnis chalcedonica); from summer into fall, the fuchsias, with coral sepals.

Gardeners bothered by aphis attacks on honeysuckles—relax. Once the hummingbirds discover the aphides or the open blossoms, they will make trips each day as long as the supply lasts.

It may take a season or two for gardens not already frequented by the birds, but the benefits of attracting them will be spread evenly between the economic, artistic and the aesthetic.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

In the play of the deal presented today, the reader might get the impression that our South declarer had peeked at the West defender's hand. Such was not the case, however. South's play was perfectly logical, despite its initial appearance of abnormality. The hand came up in a recent National Team-of-Four Championship.

East-West vulnerable. East deals.

♡ A 9 8 4
♢ K 3 2
♣ K 10 8 5

WEST	EAST
♠ K J 7 6	♠ -
♡ K	♡ Q J 6 5 3 2
♢ Q 9 7 6	♢ A J 8 5 4
♣ J 7 6 3	♣ 9 4

SOUTH
♠ A Q 10 9 8 4 2
♡ 10 7
♢ 10
♣ A Q 2

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
2♡	2♠	Pass	2 NT
Pass	4♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

East's two-heart bid was of the "weak" variety, and showed a six-card suit within a hand containing 6-12 high-card points. The rest of the bidding was normal.

After West's opening lead of the heart king had been taken by dummy's ace, a low trump was led off the board, East discarding a heart. Declarer now had two sure losers in trumps, in addition to a heart and diamond loser.

South won the trump lead with his ace, after which he cashed the ace and queen of clubs. Then came a third club, and when West followed suit with the seven spot, dummy's ten was inserted. After it had won the trick, the king of clubs was cashed, South discarding his losing diamond. Thus all declarer lost were two trump tricks and a heart.

The question, of course, is why did declarer finesse dummy's ten of clubs, instead of putting up the king, hoping to catch the jack? The answer is a simple one—for expert players.

Suppose that he had put up the king and (hypothetically) caught the jack in the East hand. The ten of clubs would now be the sole surviving club. But when declarer next played it, discarding, say, his losing heart, West would ruff with the seven of spades. The defenders would then make three trump tricks, in addition to the diamond ace.

As declarer correctly viewed it, the only way he could fulfill his contract was if West had started with four clubs. In this case, declarer could cash four club tricks, and dispose of a red-suit loser without West making his seven of trumps. And so declarer played the hand on the necessary assumption that West had been dealt four clubs headed by the jack.

"How old is your mother?" asked Peter. "I bet she's older than mine."

"She's not, but I don't know her age for sure," replied Harry. "A few days ago I asked my Dad. He said the square of the sum of the digits of Mom's age is twice the cube of their difference."

How old then?

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

U.S. Settlers Crossed Border

By BOB BOWMAN

Although Britain lost the American Revolutionary War, Canada certainly gained. About 50,000 first-class settlers left the U.S. to live in Canada and there was even a possibility that some of the states would break away from the union. Vermont, for instance, relied on Montreal, Three Rivers, and Quebec for transportation. During the war of 1812 , the New England states refused to attack the Maritimes, and a number of people in Maine actually took an oath of allegiance to Britain.

On April 8, 1785, Britain prohibited Canada and the Maritimes from importing goods from the U.S. Smuggling became almost a sport. The most respectable citizens became "free traders" at night from the New Brunswick-Maine border to Lake Ontario.

The prohibition of trade with the U.S. was resisted strongly by leading merchants in Montreal, Three River, Quebec, and the Maritimes. Even Lord Dorchester, Governor of Canada, did what he could to get around the regulations which prevented U.S. goods from entering British North American "ports". Dorchester interpreted the regulation as meaning "sea ports" so inland trade across the border could be revived. His "Committee in Council" even took the extraordinary step of declaring that Vermont was not part of the U.S!

Two years later the British government lifted the ban on inland trade with the U.S. but kept the restriction on sea ports. Merchants got around this, to some extent, by declaring that all trade using the St. Lawrence River was "Canadian". U.S. goods entering Quebec by Lake Champlain and the Richelieu River were able to take advantage of imperial preferences by sailing up or down the St. Larence and being designated as Canadian. The Americans began using this device to restore trade with Britain and the route beeame legal in 1970.

Other events on April 8:

1873 — Parliamentary committee was appointed to examine bribery charges against Sir John A. Macdonald.

1875 — North West Territories Act provided for Lieutenant Governor and Council.

1880 — Grand Trunk Railay began service to Chicago.

More Women Suffer From Rheumatoid

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

One of the worst forms of arthritis is the rheumatoid one, which produces usually much pain, disability and deformity, and seems more often to attack women than men.

We physicians do not know what the cause is, but we do know that the arthritis is one of the so-called collagen diseases, a group of diseases in which one part of the body is attacked, as if it were foreign tissue, by the rest of the body. Other collagen diseases are disseminated lupus erythematosus (in which the skin is usually involved), polyarteritis nodosa (a destructive disease of a few arteries here and there in the body), and scleroderma (a hardening of the skin).

There seems to be a hereditary factor in rheumatoid arthritis, it can appear in several members of a family, or several members of the family can have one of the other collagen diseases, such as lupus erhthematosus.

In some cases, there are typical destructive changes in the ends of the bones in the affected joints. Typical also are nodules under the skin. Often there is an increase in the number of white cells in the blood. Sometimes the red blood sedimentation rate ("sed" rate) is as high as 50 mm. (1 to 20 mm, would be more nearly normal).

Granulomas (little masses of abnormal cells) seem to be typical of reheumatoid arthritis, but occasionall one of them will be found under the skin of a patient with lupus erythematosus.

A peculiar substance has been identified in the bodies of persons with rheumatoid arthritis — the so-called "rheumatoid factor;" and considerable research is now being done on it. A number of observations suggest that some gland of internal secretion is involved.

For instance, in the case of many a woman with the disease, a pregnancy will give a temporary respite from the symptoms. Also, the disease usually responds dramatically to treatment with some of the corticosteroid drugs (originally derived from the adrenal glands, which lie just above the kidneys). Against this idea of a glandular origin is the fact that the giving of sex hormones does not help.

The early diagnosis of rheumatoid arthritis is difficult, because at first the symptoms are so vague. The patients may complain only of symptoms that sound like nervousness or fatigue, or there may be sensory disturbances such as numbness, a loss of appetite, a loss of weight, and mild discomforts in the joints or muscles.

It is not till later that the joints become inflamed and swollen, with thickening, redness, tenderness, pain when the person moves, and increased warmth to the touch. In time, the muscles tend to waste away and shrink, and the joints become markedly deformed and gnarled.

The disease commonly starts with changes in the joints of the hands or feet, but it can come first in the knees or in some one joint. It can also begin in a tendon, or in a shoulder bursa, or as nodules under the skin.

Clubhouse Design Sought for Course

Saanich council will be asked to take the first steps towards a municipally-owned golf course and a new club house at Cedar Hill.

The parks and outdoor recreation committee agreed Tuesday night to recommend that:

1. An architect be hired to prepare preliminary drawings for either the first phase or a complete club house at a cost of about $70,000;

2. That the Barnes family who operate the golf course be notified they can continue until the end of this year.

No location was set for the new clubhouse, but it is expected to be on Derby Road.

Committee chairman Ald. William Noel said a location at this site would lead to a renumbering of the holes, so play would start and finish at the new club house. Redesigning of the golf course could come later.

The present club house is an old house on Finlayson Street which stands in the way of Victoria city planned extension of the road.

No decision was made of the golf couse operation after the end of this year, but it is expected that the municipality itself will become the operator.

The golf course covers 110 acres of the 134-acre Cedar Hill Park, formerly known as the McRae Estate, which Saanich purchased at the end of 1967 for 1.2 million.

Comptroller-treasurer John Tribe said an earlier recommendation that a temporary clubhouse be erected just north of Derby Road should be dropped because the planning department's report on Cedar Hill Park says this site is the most suitable for a permanent club house.

Instead of a temporary building, that should be planned is the first stage of a permanent one, he said.

LIGHT LUNCH

"The type of facility we have in mind is not the somewhat elaborate clubhouse that is located in a private golf club but rather a functional building with facilities for serving light lunches, some lockers, showers and change room," he said.

"It should perhaps also be borne in mind that such a building should be designed to take advantage later on of a liquor licence."

Tribe presented details on operation of public golf courses on the mainland as well as Cedar Hill and said he is "quite sure" that if Saanich takes over operation of Cedar Hill it can do so at a profit.

BEWARE THE VENGEANCE OF WHITE KILLER WHALE!

Beware the vengeance of the white whale, warns Jonathon Hunt, the 93-year-old father of local carver Henry Hunt.

A member of the Kwakuitl tribe at Fort Rupert on the northern tip of Vancouver Island, the venerable Indian reaches back into his childhood for evidence of the white whale's power.

His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Helen Hunt of Victoria, recites the story.

"He tells me that ordinary killer whales are called Makihnuk but not the white one. She is the dihtlekihnuk (Indian for strange one).

"When my father-in-law was about 12 he says the cove at Fort Rupert was filled with whales. They were led by a white whale and the waters churned, there were so many of them."

The Indians weren't sure whether the white whale's presence as she led the whales in their frolickings was to be taken as a sign of blessing—or an ill omen.

They were soon to find out.

"Not too long afterwards a large party of Kwakuitl canoes were returning home. About 40 of them capsized in the waters of the cove and few survived."

Mrs. Hunt reports that the late Mungo Martin shared her father-in-law's awe of the white whale.

"He always used to tell us never to harass the killer whale. To do so meant to bring something bad back to your family.

"He told us we must respect them. That, though we may not understand, they can think as well as we do."

* * *

What of the white killer whale, captured near Race Rocks March 1, and now at Sealand?

Mrs. Hunt doesn't share her elders' misgivings.

"I've become modernized. Things change as the years go by. I can see no harm—or danger."

Chief Edwin Underwood last month related a similar Salish legend regarding the white whale. Like the Kwakuitls, his people were taught to respect the mammal. If ill-treated bad luck was sure to follow.

Council Rejects Sewer Extension

Possible extension of Saanich's sewerage enterprise boundary in one location was ruled out at Saanich council Tuesday night.

A vote to refer the matter to the planning department for a study of land use was defeated 7-to-2. The municipal planning committee had earlier recommended that the planning department investigate the extension in the Arrow-Bow-Cedar Hill area.

Municipal planner Tom Loney said developers have indicated an interest in the area, which lies outside the boundary of the sewered and to-be-sewered-land, although parts of the properties jut into the area while others do not.

He said it "may be justifiable" to relocate the sewerage enterprise boundary to a "more reasonable line."

However, Ald. Frank Waring said he didn't think council should follow developers around and that the primary concern should be planning and he supported a study of land use.

Ald. William Campbell asked why a second look at previously-set boundaries should be taken in one area any more than the other areas.

"We must be flexible," said Ald. Edith Gunning.

Loney, asked to identify the developers, said they are Sherwood Villas, G. H. Wheaton and the company which was involved in townhouses on McKenzie Avenue.

Ald. Foster Isherwood asked if council is going to "bend every time for a developer. We should look at all boundaries if we do this. We are making flesh of one and fish of the other."

Municipal comptroller-treasurer John Tribe said that to be equitable, those already in the sewer enterprise area should be served first. They were already paying for sewers in advance of the service arriving.

Council is committed to sewering 3,400 acres in the coming four years. A contract has already been let in one area and others are following this year and next.

DETENTION HOME EXPANSION URGED

The move followed a report by Ald. William Noel, who said his recommendation will also require the consent of Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

The architectural study, if approved by the four participating municipalities, would be of structural re-arrangements to the detention home to permit expansion of services and separation of first offenders from habituals.

Noel said recent legislative changes have put additional responsibilities on the detention home, its staff and the board.

He said the major problem areas are:

- Housing facilities at present provide no separation of first offenders from the "incorrigible" when not confined to their respective cells;
- Several hours each day, those detained gather in a common recreation room or courtyard;
- Those detained are frequently held for extensive periods placing "an undue burden" on accommodation facilities and staff. One case was nine days ago when two persons were remanded for 28 days on drug trafficking charges.

Noel said the home is frequently used to detain problem cases from the Children's Aid Society pending ultimate dispersal.

"This no doubt is providing a useful service to the society but is beyond the original municipal intent for such a home," he said.

One Month For Taking TV Set

George C. Johnson, 55, of 1319 Broad, was sentenced to one month in jail Tuesday when he was found guilty of stealing a television set.

Johnson, will begin to serve the sentence at the completion of 1968 convictions for theft over $50 and impaired driving. He had been unable to pay the fines for earlier convictions.

Police testified they found a portable television set, the property of the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., in a hall outside the accused's hotel room about 1:30 p.m. April 2.

A store official said the set valued at $180 had been in the window of Eaton's earlier in the day but had been removed for window cleaning purposes.

A merchant said he observed a man with a television set sprawled on the sidewalk in front of his shop at the corner of Broad and Yates. The man got up, picked up the set, walked across the street, fell again and was helped to his feet by passers-by.

The merchant said he watched the man carry the set into the hotel on Broad further down the block.

Police said Johnson had been drinking when they talked to him at the hotel.

Bruce F. Hamilton, 19, address unkown, was fined $300 when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Police said he was driving a motorcycle in the 1600-block Esquimalt Raod about 10:40 April 6 when he skidded into a double gate across the roadway.

He admitted he had had nine glasses of beer and gave a breathalyzer reading of .16 per cent blood-alcohol content.

Stephen O. Okongwu, 31, of 1665 McKenzie, was fined $100 for dangerous driving and prohibited from driving for four months.

Police said he pinned two pedestrians against a guard rail while trying to park his car on Mayfair Drive about 4:20 p.m. Feb. 4.

Both pedestrians suffered injuries as a result of the incident, court was told.

Tax White Paper Called Reckless

By BRYDEN WINSBY

The white paper on taxation is "a reckless social experiment" which should be turned over to the Economic Council of Canada for re-examination, Robert Bonner, a senior vice-president with MacMillan Bloedel, said here Tuesday.

Speaking to a Kiwanis Club luncheon, Bonner said he knows of no other subject that has caused so much concern and outcry.

Parliament should "take the paper away for six months" and gauge its impact on savings, the rise of provincial and municipal taxes and foreign investment. Then, he said, thinking could be directed in an objective way.

Bonner said that if Canada is to grow economically and become truly competitive internationally, she will need all the foreign and domestic capital she can muster.

"If we are to ensure the private sector providing jobs, expanding world markets and meeting the desperate need for capital, then we must ensure that we take no steps to interfere with Canadian capital or savings."

He said that Canada's peace time economy has emphasized taxation at the provincial and municipal levels more than at the federal, and it is at these levels where progress in taxation must be made.

"With provincial and municipal tax regulations, you have something which will add to the problems caused by the white paper by more than 40 per cent."

Bonner rapped Canada's already timid domestic and international attitude and said that things which are of domestic importance to Canadians are "quite pale" compared with the major issues facing other countries over the past 25 years.

"Korea, the 14-year Malaysian struggle, Suez, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Cuba, Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, the six-day war in the Middle East, South African and Rhodesian withdrawal from the Commonwealth, the India-China dispute, racial strife in the United States . . . quite a catalogue for 25 years of peace."

He cited steps other countries have taken to improve their economic lots since the Second World War: the European Common Market, Latin American and Caribbean free trade areas, the emergence of Russia as a trading power and the growth of Pacific area countries, especially Japan.

Japan's gross national product, he said, now surpasses that of West Germany and her average national income is on a par with that of Canada's Maritime Provinces.

Bonner said events in Canada must be geared to these external developments and he accused Canadians of being too introspective, too dependent on formulas like the white paper, rather than closely examining all the facts.

"Last fall, the Economic Council of Canada said that given reasonable price and wage stability and the productivity of the population, they estimated Canada's GNP would rise (from last year's $75 billion) to $100 billion by 1975 based on the present value of the dollar." Using 1967 as a base year, he said it is well within Canada's capacity for her GNP to grow at a rate of 5.5 per cent per annum.

But since 1967, he said, conditions have come about which seriously jeopardize such growth. "Dollar erosion is reducing purchasing power by 4 to 5 per cent per annum."

He said that in future Canadians must be more farsighted, and forget controls which work only by creating unemployment.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Judy and Bruce Rollick, a husband-and-wife team from Vancouver, won their opening game in the mixed doubles event of the Canadian closed badminton championship Tuesday as they set out to defend the title they won last year.

The Rollicks defeated Debbie Ott and Gerald Richardson of Nova Scotia, 15-1 and 15-2, in preliminaries of the three-day event.

Mrs. Rollick also began defence of her singles title with an 11-4, 11-5 win over newly-crowned junior champion, Susan Cutmore of Calgary. Allison Ridgway, also of Vancouver, won her opening match against Bev McDougall of Calgary, 11-0, 11-0.

FOUR OF FIVE

Calgary players took four of the five junior finals with the only other championship going to Toronto as Jamie McKee and Pay Dale grabbed the men's doubles event with wins of 15-11 and 15-10 over Pradip Basu and David Gibson of Vancouver.

McGillivray, 18, won the men's singles 11-5, 15-10 and 15-10 over McKee while Miss Cutmore, 16, took the women's singles 11-2, 3-11 and 11-1 over Jennifer Dakin of Toronto.

McGillivray and Lorraine Thorne of Calgary teamed up in the mixed doubles to handle McKee and Miss Dakin 15-11, 13-18 and 15-12. Miss Cutmore and Miss Thorne won the women's doubles 15-7 and 15-1 over Miss Dakin and Barb Muhlig of Toronto.

MAURICE STOKES BATTLED COURAGEOULSY

Hoop Star Succumbs

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Maurice Stokes died Monday and thousands aware of his basketball prowess were joined in grief by countless others who had heard of Stokes' courageous battle against a crippling brain disease.

Doctors attributed the immediate cause of his death, at 36, to a heart attack, but the former professional basketball star had been bedridden for 12 years with a form of encephalitis believed related to a brain injury suffered while playing basketball.

Jack Twyman, a teammate on the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association expressed the sentiment of Stokes' friends and fans, saying: "We're all very much broken up."

"We did not expect this," said Twyman, who was Stokes legal guardian. "The doctors have given no indication at the time of the heart attack (March 30) that it would be fatal."

It was Twyman, now a broadcaster and business man, who took over the massive task of raising and handling the money needed to assure the best medical attention and care for Stokes.

Stokes collapsed March 15, 1958 aboard a plane en route from Detroit to Cincinnati following a loss to the Pistons in a playoff game. Earlier in the season Stokes had hit his head on the floor in a game at Minneapolis, and this was believed by some doctors to have triggered his difficulties.

Stokes was in a coma for the first two months, and when he came out of it he was unable to talk and had little muscular control.

His physical rehabilitation was slow and limited but he maintained his sense of humor until the end despite the fact his speech never returned to normal.

On one occasion Stokes was asked "how old are you?" one syllable at a time Stokes replied "Old enough to know better but too young to resist,"—an old chestnut but indicative of his spirit.

Stokes will be buried Thursday in the Franciscan Cemetery on the Loretto, Pa., campus of St. Francis College where he starred before turning pro.

Stunning Defeat For Nixon Choice

CARSWELL
. . . back to Florida

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The Senate rejected today the Supreme Court nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell, handing President Nixon a stunning second defeat in his efforts to name a Southern judge to the United States' highest court.

The vote was 51 to 45. The outcome of the long fight over the nomination of the 50-year-old Tallahassee, Fla., judge, now on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, remained in doubt to the last.

Nixon made it known two weeks ago, as opposition to Carswell mounted, that he considered the issue of the Carswell nomination as transcending "this or any other appointment."

In a letter to a wavering Republican senator who subsequently supported Carswell, Sen. William B. Saxbe of Ohio, Nixon said criticism of Carswell was baseless.

RELATIONSHIP

What was at stake, Nixon said, was "the preservation of the traditional constitutional relationship of the president and the Congress."

Centrally at issue, the president contended, was the constitutional presidential responsibility to appoint members of the Supreme Court—"and whether this responsibility can be frustrated by those who wish to substitute their own philosophy or their own subjective judgment for that of the one person entrusted by the constitution with the power of appointment."

Nixon nominated Carswell Jan. 19, after the Senate's rejection by a 55-to-45 vote last November of his first choice for the court post, Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of Greenville, S.C.

Today's vote was a dramatic reversal of the Senate's 52 to 44 vote two days ago rejecting a motion to return Carswell's nomination to the Senate judiciary committee.

CHARGES REJECTED

As the time for voting approached, two of those who had been publicly uncommitted—Senators Quentin N. Buddick (Dem.—N.D.) and Charles McC. Mathias (Rep.—Md.) announced they would vote against confirmation.

Four senators were absent, two through illness and two on an official trip to the Far East.

The vote against the Florida judge was higher than even the most optimistic anti-Carswell forces had predicted.

The opponents needed 49 votes to win.

88 Killed In Osaka Explosion

OSAKA, Japan (CP) — At least 88 persons were killed and 154 injured, many of them severely, when a series of explosions ripped through a subway construction site in a densely populated area of Osaka today, police reported.

The blast touched off a fire which swept through some 30 private homes before firemen brought it under control.

Osaka's pride, the Expo 70 world's fair, was not damaged. Police said the explosion site was 10 miles from the fair grounds.

Many of the injured were in serious condition.

The explosions, blamed on leaking gas, occurred beneath a roadway where construction men were working on the subway. They hurled heavy steel plates covering the roadway into the air, lifted parked cars feet off the ground, shatttered windowns over a wide area and flattened people on sidwalks.

Flames shot 100 feet into the air as the gas fumes caught fire, spreading quickly to the closely-packed wooden homes lining the street.

RESIDENTS MOVE

Police said a gas leak in the construction area was repoted late today and evacuation of residents in the area had started.

The subway extension was being built beneath a busy street. Japanese subway builders often use an open cut system, digging down from the roadway and then covering the open cut with steel plates.

ISRAEL BOMBS ARAB SCHOOL

CAIRO (Reuters) — Thirty school children and an adult civilian were killed today when Israeli Phantom jet aircraft bombed a primary school in Egypt, an official source at the interior ministry here reported.

The source said 46 civilians, including 36 school children, were wounded in the raid on Bahr al Bakr school in Sharkia province, about 50 miles north of Cairo.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli military spokesman, replying to correspondents' questions following the Cairo report, said: "Our air attacks were aimed strictly at military objectives."

The school was a primary level co-educational school, meaning the children were in the six-to-12-year-old bracket.

It was the biggest reported Egyptian civilian casualty toll from an Israeli air raid since Feb. 12, when more than 80 workers were killed and 90 wounded in the bombing of a scrap metal factory an accident.

Cambodians Lose 4 Districts to Reds

Times News Services

PHNOM PENH — The advance of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong communist forces into Cambodia is continuing, despite reports of armed collaboration between Cambodian and South Vietnamese authorities to halt the incursions.

The Cambodian government lost military control Tuesday of four districts on the eastern border as the front shrank seven miles toward the capital under communist pressure.

Official sources in Saigon report that South Vietnamese troops, fighter-bombers and gunships have been engaging communist forces inside Cambodia with full approval of the Cambodian authorities.

MAJOR BASE CAMPS

The area of fighting is in Svay Rieng province, due west of Saigon, along Highway 1, where the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong have major base camps.

Sources in the field said South Vietnamese paratroops swept several miles into Svay Rieng province and pulled out today after two days of clashes with the North Vietnamese.

One source said South Vietnamese infantry fought the North Vietnamese in the same area Saturday and killed 62 of them.

The dramatic collapse of government authority in the face of the newly-intensified communist attacks suggests that North Vietnamese military objectives in Cambodia may be larger than anyone in Phnom Penh had anticipated.

B.C. Civil Servants To Vote on Pay Offer

Victoria-based provincial government employees will vote Monday on acceptance or rejection of salary increases, averaging 7½ per cent, awarded Tuesday by the cabinet.

Ratification meetings for 35 locals of the entire 14,000 B.C. Government Employees Union membership will be held next week, said union general secretary John L. Fryer.

It will be the first time government employees have been given the opportunity to express their opinion on a wage offer.

But the BCGEU executive will make no recommendation to guide the membership, Fryer said. The offer will be presented as is and each member will make his own choice, said the secretary.

Raises recommended by the Civil Service Commission apply to all civil servants, of which there are 26,000 in B.C. government jobs.

They are retroactive to April 1 and instead of representing a flat percentage increase applicable to all categories, the raises favor those in low-paid jobs.

Fryer said the "consideration shown by the government to its lower-paid employees is a response to special representations made by the union earlier in the year."

WELFARE BETTER

He recalled a survey made public a few months ago that showed some government employees would be netting more income by being on welfare—tax-free—than by drawing a government salary and paying income tax, medical bills and other necessaries.

"A few of them now are a little closer to a decent standard of living."

But while commending the government, Fryer also drew attention to the fact that the increases still leave salaries short of what is needed to bring civil service pay to parity with equivalent jobs in municipal government, large private firms and the federal civil strvice.

Fryer noted that there are many increments of 11 per cent, reflecting the favor shown to lower categories.

Should union members accept the increases, the wage isue will be closed for this year, he said, but should they reject it, "then the union's negoting committee will seek to reopen salary discussions with the Civil Service Commission."

He said members will not be asked to consider strike

New Violence Flares In Postal Dispute

MONTREAL (CP) — Three trucks were damaged and one driver injured today in violence connected with the Montreal postal dispute. About 95 rented vehicles continued to transport mail to the city's postal substations.

A post office spokesman said the driver was struck in the eye by glass when the windshield of his mail truck was smashed. He was taken to hospital but his condition was not immediately known.

The spokesman said two other trucks, not involved in mail transportation but belonging to companies renting vehicles to the post office, had windshields broken when bricks and bottles thrown from an overpass struck them while they were parked in a downtown parking lot.

138 WAILS A MINUTE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The world's population is growing at a rate of 8,292 an hour and 138 a minute and by the middle of this year will reach 3,632,000,000 people.

These statistics were announced Tuesday by the Population Reference Bureau, a private non-profit organization which issues an annual world population data sheet among other publications.

Royal Fright For Hunter

MELBOURNE (AP) — A 21-year-old Australian who went hunting Tuesday fainted when he encountered a posse of policemen instead of a warren-load of rabbits.

No one told Terry Reilly the quiet spot seven miles south of the country town of Mansfield was off-limits because Prince Charles and Princess Anne would be riding there.

Rifle in hand, he stepped from his car. Then, he said later, "from under the ground, down from the trees and from behind bushes" swooped the law.

Reilly, a Melbourne apprentice, said the police ordered: "One move and we shoot. Just hand over the gun and tell us what you are doing."

POLICE SAY NO IN MONTREAL

The city had offered a 5.1-per-cent pay increase in a one year contract.

CUSTOMERS TAKEN FOR A RIDE . . . . . . IN A SHOPPING CART

By JACK SCOTT

It's no longer enough for Milady to hippity hop to the market secure in the knowledge that the ancient philosophy of caveat emptor — "let the buyer beware"—will keep intact the shrivelling family budget.

Now, in a day of unprecedented soaring food costs, the market must be viewed as an enemy-occupied jungle full of snares to trap the unwary, a place where only an expert's knowledge of guerrilla infighting can ensure survival.

This is the grim estimate of the president and executive of the Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada who have committed their 400-member organization to a frontal attack on the continuing spiral of prices.

Tonight at eight o'clock at the Institute of Adult Studies they'll join with the Greater Victoria School Board in telling it the way it is to a public consumers' forum dealing with marketing gimmicks, legislation and enforcement of grades and standards and allied purchasing perils that, in the words of Mrs. Helen Forrest, president of the local branch, have left consumers "just about absolutely helpless."

Direct target is the operation of the chain-owned supermarkets — described by nutritionist Mrs. Norma Morriss, a member of tonight's panel, as terribly wrong in their set-up, taking their customers for a ride in a shopping cart" — and the lack of activist involvement by the silent majority of Victoria's housewives.

Evidence from studies conducted by the CAC's headquarters as well as surveys and comparative shopping expeditions provincially and in Greater Victoria demonstrate in the opinion of the local members, that supermarkets systematically exploit a gullible, unquestioning clientele.

Item: Victoria surveys confirm the results of a study conducted by a University of Alberta research team that different prices are charged in different stores of the same chain for the same items at the same time, but that prices are uniformly higher in low-income areas where shoppers without cars are unlikely to patronize alternative, distant markets.

Item: A cost check of supermarkets demonstrated that prices are higher on the first and 15th pay days of each month and on the date (usually the 19th) when Family Allowance cheques reach recipients.

'Gullible, Unquestioning Clientele'

Item: Advertising of "loss-leaders" persists. Sample shopping at certain stores advertising the largest number of "price specials," in some cases, resulted in higher costs when an entire grocery list was purchased.

Item: The supermarket price structure employs psychological means to increase sales and profits. Bargain-hunting shoppers readily rise to the deceptive bait, for example, when a 20-cent product is offered at five for 99 cents rather than two for 39 cents.

Item: "Hypnotic packaging" and the adroit placement of articles at check-out counters for impulse-buyers cause shoppers to purchase unwanted goods. Supermarkets are confirmed in their estimate of the compulsive fascination of "the impulse item" by statistics indicating that some 80 per cent of sales in frozen items is impulse-motivated.

Item: Confusing weight-price structures create a "credibility gap" that bewilders even careful, knowledgeable shoppers. One lynx-eyed shopper asks, with a shrug: "How are you supposed to compare a 10-and-a-half ounce can of peaches at 37 cents with a 15-ounce can at 46 cents?"

The women of the Victoria branch of the CAC take the position that such anomalies can only be corrected by government legislation and that legislation comes only through organized public pressure.

Mrs. Barbara Rolls, formerly provincial president, cites a typical "small victory" in recent regulations that the weight must be stamped on bars of soap.

"You could never tell whether you were getting the best buy for, let's say, three toilet-size for 45 cents or two bath-size for 43," she says. "That's the kind of thing, all down the line, that means we're not able to fight on equal terms with the markets."

One answer for the dedicated shopper is the Econo-Meter, a patented, Victoria-produced disc for computing prices by the ounce, supplied by the local branch of the CAC for members and non-members at 50 cents each. More than 1,000 have been sold locally.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Ban Extended on Seaway

Ban on short selling in the shares and warrants of Seaway Multi Corp., which has moved sharply higher in recent weeks as Argus Inc. and the Levy family of Toronto fought for control of the conglomerate in the open market, was extended to the Canadian Stock Exchange today.

In Montreal, exchange officials said that beginning Friday Seaway issues will be on a cash-only basis until further notice. The Toronto exchange imposed similar restrictions earlier this week.

Trading in Seaway common was light today both at Montreal and Toronto.

AT TORONTO, oil refiners led the industrial decline. Gulf lost ¾ to 17⅝, Imperial Oil ⅜ to 21½ and Shell ¼. Texaco gained ⅛ to 22½.

Seaway dropped 1 to 18.

Fraser was up ¼ to 30½ after reporting first-quarter earnings of 42 cents a share compared with 23 cents in the similar period last year.

AT NEW YORK, losers held an edge of about 150 over gainers among issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Airlines, motors, and oils declined. The glamor group was mixed.

AT MONTREAL Gulf Oil Canada led senior oils and pipe lines lower, off ¾ to 17¾. Imperial Oil was down ½ to 21¼, Texaco Canada ¼ to 22¾, Aquitaine ⅛ to 21½, Central Del Rio ⅛ to 12⅛, Trans-Canada Pipe Line ¼ to 27½ and Trans-Mountain Pipe Lines to 15¾.

Petrofina Canada gained ⅞ to 16⅜ on a block of 1,100 shares.

B.C. Telephone fell 1 to 66 after losing 1 point Tuesday. The utility expects a slower rate of growth this year and does not plan a rate increase.

AT LONDON the stock market was dull in the absence of buyers today.

Dollar stocks generally were lower after a mixed start. A sharp mid-morning drop in the dollar premium saw most early gains lost or reversed.

In Canadians, Canadian Pacific, Consolidated Bathgate, Inco and Gulf moved down, although Pacific Pete was a small gainer against the trend. Banks were quietly easier.

Ultramar led the decline in home oils, after some small selling. Golds and diamonds were easier on profit-taking.

AT VANCOUVER, prices were mixed in moderate trading during the morning session on the stock exchange today. Volume to 11:20 a.m. was 1,053,806 shares.

In the industrials, North West Life Finance traded 29,400 shares and was down .25 to $5.50. Driver Development was down .01 to .86 and Alcan Aluminum was trading at $29.

United Bata traded 10,125 shares in the oils section and was up .01 at $2.86. Dover Silver was up .05 at .69 and Allied Roxanna was unchanged at .72.

In the mines, Brenmac traded 63,050 shares and was up .03 at $1.20. Alice Lake was up .10 at $1.10, and Norcan was down .03 at .41.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

Flax was steady most of the day with exporters absorbing all offers.

Rye had some inter-month and inter-market spreading with exported interest in May and June futures.

Barley had some demand for malting grades while oats was mostly inactive.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat were all unchanged.

CP Sees Big Future In Coal Development

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian Pacific says major progress was made in the development of Western Canada's vast coal resources in the last year.

"It has been estimated that the sale of coal and its transportation could inject about $4,000,000,000 into the Western Canadian economy during the next 15 years," the company said in its annual report.

CP Rail was spending about $35,000,000 on new coal cars, diesel locomotives, robot equipment and new servicing facilities to handle this traffic.

At the end of 1969, Canadians held 63.89 per cent of the voting rights of Canadian Pacific ordinary and preference stocks, 16.03 per cent was held in the United States, 13.52 per cent in Britian and other British countries and 6.56 per cent elsewhere.

"Among the most promising activities in which Canadian Pacific is participating are those involving the development of Western Canada's vast resources of coal," the report said.

In 1968, CP Rail signed a contract with Kaiser Resources Ltd. for movement during a 15-year period of 45,700,000 long tons—a long ton is 2,240 pounds—of coal from southeastern B.C. to Vancouver.

During 1969 a second contract was signed with Kaiser for the movement of an additional 6,000,000 tons in a three-year period. Shipments of the coal were contracted to begin April 1, 1970.

"In view of the possibilities of future expansion of both domestic and export markets for Canadian coal," said the report, "a wholly-owened subsidiary, Cascade Pipe Line Ltd., has applied for a permit to build a 490-mile pipeline to carry coal in slurry form from the Kootenay area of B.C. to the coast."

It said the results of most Canadian Pacific activities in 1969 were affected favorably by the sharp rise in the rate of economic growth in Canada in the early months of the year, and adversely by the subsequent slowing of the pace.

Canadian Phosphorus Contracted by Japan

LONDON (CP) — Albright and Wilson Ltd. has announced an agreement to supply up to 20,000 tons of bulk phosphorus to a Japan company from a plant operating by an Albright subsidiary in Newfoundland.

First deliveries to Nippon Chemical Industrial Co. will be made towards the end of this year or the beginning of next.

"Subsequent deliveries will take place about twice a year," the London based Albright firm says.

Exports Fail To Maintain World Share

OTTAWA (CP) — While Canadian exports have been growing by leaps and bounds, they failed last year to maintain their share of both the world export market and the exports of the principal industrials countries.

Figures compiled by the International Monetary Fund, quoted in U.S. dollars as a standard basis of international comparison, show that Canadian exports last year rose by 9.4 per cent to $14,390,000,000 from $13,158,000,000 in 1968.

The world total of export trade, however, rose by 14 per cent and exports of the industrial countries as a whole rose by 15.4 per cent.

The IMF figures cover exports of the non-Communist world, but include Yugoslav exports. The industrial countries include the United States, United Kingdom, Canada, Japan and all of Western Europe except Ireland, Portugal and Spain.

The 1969 export figures show that Canada supplied 5.9 per cent of the world market and eight per cent of the exports shipped by the industrial countries last year.

This, however, was down from a 1968 peak when Canada's exports were 6.1 per cent of world exports and 8.4 per cent of industrial country shipments.

The 1969 figures for Canada's role in export trade were about equal to 1967, when Canada went though a mild economic slump though not technically a recession.

EXPORTS DOUBLED

Since 1963, Canadian exports have more than doubled, to $14,390,000,000 from $6,779,000,000, an increase of 116 per cent. World exports in this period increased by 78 per cent, and exports by the 15 industrial countries rose by 88 per cent.

Canada's performance in the final quarter of last year showed some improvement as a share of total world exports, but slight further deterioration as a share of exports by the industrial countries.

Preliminary figures on export trade in January and February this year, released b y the show a jump in the first month, Dominion Bureau of Statistic, followed by a fractional decline.

In the final debate before the Senate vote, Senator Robert J. Dole (Rep. Kan.) a Carswell supporter, said that if the nomination was rejected, he hoped Nixon would wait until after the next election to submit another appointment.

Gasps echoed through the Senate chamber when three key senators answered "no" to the rollcall.

The chamber broke into applause when Senator Mike Mansfield, the majority leader, announced final voting figures. The vote was the climax of an uphill fight against the judge by liberal and moderate Senate opposition over the last three months.

Carswell came under increasing attack for what was called anti-black bias, a mediocre legal record and lack of candor in testifying before the Senate judiciary committee after his nomination.

Carswell, who served 11 years as a federal district judge for northern Florida before the Nixon administration elevated him to the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, was nominated to fill the high court seat vacated nearly a year ago by the resignation of Justice Abe Fortas, a liberal.

Thirteen Republicans voted against Carswell, two more than had been predicted by Senator Edward W. Brooke (Rep. Mass.) the Senate's only Negro and one of the leaders of the anti-Carswell campaign.

GATES GUARDED

In Tallahassee, Carswell could not be reached immediately for comment. He watched the voting at his lakeside compound eight miles north of Tallahassee. Private police at the two entrances to the heavily wooded home kept reporters out.

The party breakdown showed 28 Republicans and 17 Democrats for confirmation and 13 Republicans and 38 Democrats against.

Washington Bribery Admitted

Dowdy, reached by telephone at his Capitol Hill office, refused to comment on Clark's action but repeated his earlier assertions that he is "absolutely not guilty of any wrongdoing."

Dowdy was indicted with Clark last week on charges the congressmen took the $25,000 to intervene in a federal investigation of the Monarch Construction Co., where Clark was sales manager.

U.S. Attorney Stephen H. Sachs said he had made an agreement with Clark in return for pledges to testify fully at Dowdy's trail.

'Anti-Hate Bill Disguises Ills'

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's anti-hate bill wouldn't have stopped the Nazi slaughter of Jews during the Second World War and can only disguise the uglier symptons of real social ills, Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) said in the Commons Tuesday.

Mr. Saltsman, his party's financial critic, is a Jew and, as a Canadian air force corporal, visited the German concentration camp at Belsen shortly after the end of the Second World War.

He spoke as the bill, which would outlaw advocacy of genocide and promotion of hatred against groups, faltered through the report stage against stiff but scattered opposition.

Under debate is an amendment by Eldon Woolliams (PC—Calgary North) that would delete from the bill provisions to make it a crime to incite hatred of identifiable groups. The amendment would leave only the anti-genocide section intact.

Preferring the amendment Monday, he said the bill is crisis legislation that duplicates law in the Criminal Code and may boomerang against minority groups with legitimate grievances.

The debate continues today.

Mr. Saltsman, 48, said that bigotry in Canada has moderated since he was a boy in Toronto. He felt that better living standards are responsible for the improvement.

He didn't feel hate propaganda should be banned. It was a thermometer of underlying social ills that should be treated. Refusing to take the temperature wouldn't solve the illness.

Meanwhile, a government back-bencher, John Roberts (York-Simcoe), attacked the bill. He said it is contrary to the principles of liberalism.

The moment a government suppressed the views of one group, others would be endangered. Mr. Roberts said that Socrates, Christ and Galileo were among those killed because of their views.

Among those supporting the bill was Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West), Canada's first Negro MP.

DIGNITY FIRST

The dignity of man had to transcend freedom of speech, he said, speaking as one who knew how it felt to be a member of a minority group.

What does a mother tell a child who comes home in tears after a racial slur? "Does she say to him 'Freedom of speech is paramount?' "

Mr. Alexander said he has experienced rejection and hate but is fortunate compared with others.

"I don't want to point to any particular province but it doesn't take me long to point east," he said. The majority of Canada's Negroes live in Nova Scotia.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood), James E. Walker (York Centre), parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Trudeau, and Mark MacGuigan (L—Windsor-Walkerville) were among those supporting the bill also.

Mr. MacGuigan was, with Mr. Trudeau, a member of the Maxwell Cohen committee that four years ago recommended legislation to make hate propaganda a crime.

Railways Facing Tax Boost

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan government will bring in legislation within a few days increasing "substantially" the tax for those holding mineral rights on big tracts of land in the province, Premier Ross Thatcher said Tuesday.

The proposed measure will be aimed particularly at the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways, he told the Legislature. The province has suffered for too long from "unfair and discriminatory" freight rates.

The premier told reporters outside the Legislature the move would sharply increase the 10-cent-an-acre paid now by any company holding mineral rights on more than 1,000,000 acres in Saskatchewan.

The government had tried in vain to get the railway companies to grant the province "reasonable" freight rates. "If they're going to take it out of our people in freight rates, we're going to take it out of them in mineral rates."

The legislature gave unanimous approval to a resolution, introduced by Liberal backbencher J. J. Charlebois, calling on the federal government to bring about more favorable freight rates for Saskatchewan.

The government defeated an amendment introduced by Opposition Leader Woodrow Lloyd, proposing that freight rate boosts put into effect March 1 be rescinded, and that the Canadian Pacific Railway be put under public ownership.

action, at least at the ratification stage.

The commission said special adjustments had been recommended in the cases of positions at the lowest salary levels — including clerks, typists, stenographers, ward assistants and nurses' aids in hospitals and security and correctional offficers in provincial jails.

Under the new agrement, a junior clerk would have his salary range increased to $292 psychiatric nurse's pay range $353 from $262-$317 and a psychiatric nurse's pay range would be increased to $553-rates, a carpenter's salary will be increased to $730 from $680, a plumber's to $755 from $705. and a practical nurse to $430 from $390.

FOOD GIANTS 'MAUL' PUBLIC INTEREST

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has permitted itself to be shackled to a chemical and genetic time bomb by the food industry, a report by investigators working under consumer advocate Ralph Nader said today.

"Nader's Raiders" charged the agency with wasting time on senseless campaigns of harassment while the food industry develops techniques "for manipulating the content of food products as dictated by corporate greed and irresponsibility."

"Until the FDA recognizes the food business for the profit-making giant that it is, this public agency will continue to be the vessel of an industry which through callousness, ignorance, or greed routinely mauls the public interest," the report said.

More Talks Slated On Cost Sharing

A $3,000 review of Victoria's service charges to other municipalities needs another vetting before being translated into action.

The report, prepared by Thorne, Gunn, Helliwell and Christenson, was blasted by Ald. Cecil Parrott as being "misleading . . . as I read it it looks as though the city is chiselling other municipalities."

J. N. Bond, representing the firm of chartered accountants, said his company possibly failed in not publishing background for the findings and he admitted that possibly they had not taken into full account the cost of expert special services such as the use of city experts for advice and guidance on many issues.

City Treasurer James Bramley bluntly told the committee that the report had not provided a solution to charges that the city's service billing is too high.

"This report has not given us a solution," Bramley said. "It just poses the problem. I want somebody to tell me just what special services are as a matter of policy. And I want somebody to tell me what the costs of those special services should be."

Bramley stressed that if all the time spent by city department heads on intermunicipal business was added up the total would be surprising.

For years other municipalities have hinted that they were unhappy with the city's service charges. But none of them have volunteered to take over the job as accountant, comptroller and provider of expertise.

In the five-page report the accounting firm lists 1969 costs and suggests what more accurate charges should be in 1970. The proposed rates are more than 50 per cent below the figure now charged by the city.

Bond said a direct comparison between the figures should not be made.

"We overlooked services such as those provided by the comptroller and the city manager," he said. "They were in our mind but they were not brought out as they should have been."

Bramley said he was complaining more about the specific lack of direction than anything else.

Cambodians Release Arms Ship

PHNOM PENH (Reuters) — The commandeered American munitions ship Columbia Eagle was released today after 25 days of detention in Cambodian waters.

Foreign Minister Yem Sambaur handed the ship over to U.S. Charge d'Affaires Lloyd Rives in a ceremony at Ream port near Sihanoukville.

The craft, carrying munitions en route to Thailand, had been held in Cambodian waters since March 14. It was hijacked as an anti-war protest the previous day by two crew members from California.

Diplomatic sources said the United States gave Cambodia assurances the boat would not take the cargo to Thailand or Vietnam.

The ship was seized at gunpoint by Clyde McKay, 25, of Escondido, Calif., and Alvin Golatowski, 20 of Long Beach, Calif., who were granted asylum in Cambodia.

Hope Boy, 16, Charged in Death

HOPE (CP) — Clinton Brian Ash, 16, of this community 100 miles east of Vancouver, Tuesday was raised to provincial court on a non-capital murder charge.

Ash was charged after Roland Kamimura, 9, was found hanged by a belt tied to a tree near his home in Hope early in February.

PEPPER'S PRIDE POOPED

NANAIMO (CP) — Fire Chief Ronald Pepper's fire engine pooped out March 7 and on Tuesday he lost an appeal against conviction for driving too slowly.

The Pepper machine was ticketed for doing 35 miles an hour in a 60-mile-an-hour zone. The chief, head man of a rural department here, said he was getting bad vibrations.

The vibrations, he explained, kept cropping up every time he drove the fire engine faster than 50, and they were wrecking a front-mounted pump.

Chief Pepper, who lost three demerits on his driver's licence, wasn't on his way to a fire.

A Marathon Realty spokesman Tuesday admitted the company erred in its fifth submission to the city for a CPR harbour development on Belleville Street.

General Manager J. David Mooney said Marathon still intends to put $1 million into tourist-oriented facilities on the CPR docks, but the design outline rejected by the city two weeks ago will undergo revision.

He also said CP had no intention of ending its Victoria-Seattle ferry service, upon which the concept is founded.

EARLIER START

The threat of withdrawal was made by another Marathon representative following discussion with aldermen on the so-called final submission, and apparently was voiced in the heat of the moment.

"It was most unfortunate that this comment was circulated," said Mooney.

"The service to Seattle is to start earlier this year and our steamship people are hoping their extensive promotion and advertising campaign in the U.S. will attract more tourists to Victoria than ever before."

Mooney also said he was puzzled that the controversy with city hall had resulted in reports that the scope of the original project had been reduced.

"Our original project was to cost $1 million and it hasn't decreased," Mooney said.

City hall officials and alderman expressed deep concern that what had been originally conceived for the harbor project had degenerated into a series of nondescript boxes, judging from the sumbission presented by Marathon representative Lance Jefferson.

"We were wrong," Mooney said. "The thing got off the beat."

He said architect John di Castri had re-entered the picture, commissioned to develop the original concept on a broader base.

Mooney expected a new concept would be ready for presentation within six weeks.

Marathon is prepared to create a design for the eventual development of land reaching further west, up to Bapco Paint property and inclucing some city-owned land.

MILLION-PLUS

Total expenditure in the area will be in excess of $1 million, Mooney predicted, suggesting that work may be done in phases over three years.

While new plans are being drawn, all work on the facilities other than ferry requirements has been stopped.

A new berth for Princess Marguerite, west of her former landing point, is being constructed and is expected to be ready for the tourist season. Other construction may not meet the start of the summer trade, but Marathon does not intend to rush a design that is not compatible with Victoria, Mooney said.

Part of the new dock will be geared to float plane service into the Inner Harbor, which allows for Air West, and may eventually include Victoria Flying Services, it was suggested.

Man Found Guilty Of Illegal Possession

A Victoria man was found guilty Tuesday of illegal possession of seven $1,000 B.C. Hydro bonds stolen from the Vancouver firm of King and Scarfe Ltd.

Rene Talon, 36, of 110 Government Street, was convicted by a jury of seven women and five men at the conclusion of a two-day trial in county court. He will be sentenced Thursday at 10 a.m.

The jury took only 35 minutes to consider its verdict.

Crown counsel Cecil Branson said Talon cashed the stolen bonds at four Victoria banks on Jan. 13 and called various bank employees who testified to this effect.

Early in the proceedings, defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood conceded that Talon was in possession of the bonds. But he argued that Talon did not know the bonds had been stolen whn he cashed them.

"He had no criminal intent," counsel said.

Owen-Flood said the crown had failed to submit evidence proving just who did own the bonds at the time of the offence on Jan. 13.

Branson said the bonds were stolen between Jan. 9 and 12—just before Talon cashed them in Victoria.

BEARER BONDS

They were bearer bonds, he said, and could circulate freely "like dollar bills." Talon's statements to two bank employees, when he cashed the bonds, indicated they had been in his possession for some time.

"Furthermore, his method of cashing them was unusual," Branson said. "If the bonds were truly his, he would have proudly taken them to one bank, submitted them, received the $7,000 and left.

"Instead, he took them in lots of $2,000 each to three banks and the remaining $1,000 bond to a fourth. What other inference could be drawn than that this man knew he was dealing in stolen bonds?" Branson asked.

At one bank, counsel said, an accountant called Talon's attention to the fact one of the bonds submitted was way past maturity.

NOT NEEDED

Talon said he knew that, but didn't cash the bond on maturity because he didn't need the money at the time.

Tuesday's hearing opened with argument before Judge Montague Drake as to the admissibility of certain evidence. The jury was excluded, but returned after Drake made his ruling.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Benjamin Franklin was greatly disappointed back in 1743 on the night of Oct. 21. He was waiting in Philadelphia for the eclipse of the moon, which for many months he had been planning to observe. He had hoped the weather would be clear, but when the time arrived, clouds gathered and a storm blew up, Franklin could see neither the moon nor the stars.

Some weeks later, he read an account of the eclipse as it was observed in Boston, about 300 miles to the north. Until then Franklin had thought that the storm must have blanked out the eclipse in Boston, too, before it swept on south. His curiosity prompted him to write letters to acquaintances up and down the coast.

The correspondence informed him that while the surface winds were from the northwest on Oct. 21, 1743, the storm on that day had actually drifted to the northeast from the southwest, thus reaching Boston after the eclipse. Franklin had charted the prevailing drift of Atlantic coastal storms.

These Kids Are Aware Of Dangers!

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

There are many weapons that can be used in the fight against environmental pollution. One of the mightiest is an educated knowledge and an understanding that physical pollution of air, water and the human scene generally is increasing, not diminishing.

This knowledge should not be confined only to our adult population. It should be inculcated in our young during those formative years when, we are told, children are most receptive.

I've always believed this to be true just as I believe that the child is the citizen of the future and no asset is more important to a country or a community.

Therefore I'm quite in favor of teachers in public schools (and in colleges and universities for that matter) fostering in young people, an awareness of the dangers of pollution at all levels and the right of everyone to a liveable environment just as much as the right of free speech, freedom of the press freedom of religion.

That belief has grown even stronger since a copy of the Doncaster Dateline reached my desk.

It's a mimeographed newspaper published by Grade 7 pupils of Doncaster Elementary School. The pages are neatly columned. There's a cover cartoon, age of Aquarius editorial, a "dear horiscope" column and "suggestions for improvement of the school" section.

Thing that impresses me most however, is the number of pieces that show a good knowledge of the different forms of pollution and the battles that must be waged against them.

For instance, this bit of poetry by Grade 3 Cathy Denson.

"Pollution is ugly

Aand much, much worse
Than an evil spell
Or a wicked curse.
It's something that smells
It's something that stinks
It's all over parks
And skating rinks.
It isn't fit
For man or beast.
And so let's help
And do what we can.

Also this in more sophisticated vien from Gary Stride in Grade 7:

"Shortly ago the skies were blue,
The water from streams were drinkable too.
But now all life will be extremely short
For species of every size and sort.

"Too many people, too much waste,
Not enough brains and so much haste.
We need the answeres, we need the solution,
In order to save our world from pollution."

Janice Duckitt points out . . . "as for pollution that is a problem within a problem. It may never end, but one thing is sure it would never have started without us."

And Kym Clarke gets into print with "astronauts have already polluted the moon, and other planets very soon. So solve the problem we'll have to give to ensure more time in which to live."

This Grade 7 pupil takes a serious look at "our street". The article points to the air as being "so dirty you can hardly see" and blames it all "on industry". It speaks of water pollution . . . "the fish are dying," of pollution on land "the ground is a fright" and then suggests the "only safe moment is asleep at night."

The paper includes stories about pets, the Easter season, jokes and riddles and school sports.

Last article is headed "Age of Aquarius." In part it reads: "What about the world we're living in today? If the so called peace movers would stop fighting and rioting about peace and just take the time to see what they are accomplishing. I think they would then hold their tongues.

"Much more could be done if the young would help the older generation to create a new world. Too much is said about peace and not enough is done about it. Who cares about the color race or background of a man as long as he is trying to help the world."

What do you think of that . . . and from an elemtary school pupil?

Don't tell me these youngsters do not understand what they are talking about. Nor that they should not be given a chance to speak and to write about what they know. What they learn today may lead them to solutions. of continuing problems such as pollution —tomorrow.

Workmen Just Missed Cave-In

Did Earthquake Trigger Construction Site Wall?

Construction of a $4,000,000 apartment block for Victoria's low-income senior citizens at View and Quadra is proceeding despite the collapse of a 20-foot-high wall Tuesday afternoon.

A spokesman for Westpark Construction Ltd. said the collapse was due to recent heavy rain, but it could also be due to blue clay on the site.

EARTHQUAKE?

"We are repairing the damage as fast as possible, the spokesman said, "and we're taking precautions against a repetition of what happened Tuesday."

City engineer James Garnett said it was difficult to tell what caused the sudden collapse of the well-braced excavation wall.

"It could be that the earthquake tremor we had a few days ago caused a shift and increase in pressure, but it's very difficult to tell."

Garnett, who was called to the site shortly after the collapse, said the excavation was causing no problems as far as the city is concerned.

"We shall be keeping an eye on things, of course," he said. "And we shall want to make sure there is adequate bracing on the Quadra Street side of the excavation."

BIG PROBLEM

Garnett said he didn't envy the problem facing project engineers.

"They have a problem in cleaning up the mess and then a very technical problem in replacing the piles. I'm sure they'll solve it, but it will be quite a headache."

Westpark is constructing an 18-storey building — the highest in Victoria. Seventeen storeys will be apartments for low-income senior citizens. The ground floor will be occupied by commercial firms.

No estimate of the damage is yet available.

Youth Caught Stealing 26 Jackets

A 20-year-old youth pleaded guilty this morning to stealing nearly $1,400 in clothing from The Men's Room, a boutique at 613 Johnson early today.

Judge William Ostler remanded John E. Lauria, who gave police a Toronto address, to April 16 for a presentence report. Lauria also pleaded guilty to attempting to break into Bill's Smoke Shop, 609 Johnson.

Police testified that the accused climbed up on the roof of the smoke shop about 12:30 a.m., smashed the skylight but couldn't gain entry because of a ceiling below.

About 12:50 a.m., Lauria smashed the front door window of the boutique and stole 26 men's jackets, valued at $1,390, placing them in a car driven by a 14-year-old girl.

The car, police said, circled the block several times and Lauria ran out with a load of clothing each time it passed the boutique.

Car Park Approved

Downtown property owners Tuesday voted solidly in favor of a $1.5 million parking building.

The cash will provide a 400-space parking building on Johnson Street plus extra floors on the View and Yates Street parking buildings to bring the total of new parking spots to 646.

Of the 165 eligible to vote only 81 cast ballots 73 voting in favor of the project, four against and four whose ballots were rejected.

Total percentage voting was 49.09 per cent of which 90.12 per cent cast affirmative votes.

Mayor Stricken

ANALYSIS
BY DON VIPOND

The chorus of anguish rising from B.C.'s hospitals this week is an old melody played by a new band.

Conductor of the orchestra, to music he composed himself, is Finance Minister W. A. C. Bennett. He has already made the province's school boards play the same sad song.

Bennett's problem: there is not enough tax money to do all the things people say need doing.

Bennett's, or any other government's solution: a list of priorities.

In B.C., the list reads, basically, this way: hydro development, education and health care.

So, as hospital boards meet in the next few weeks to try to make a dollar out of 15 cents, certainly some of their problems can be traced to the Peace and Columbia rivers. There's something around a billion dollars tied up in power development there.

That enormous commitment is load enough. But compounding financial woes of government (and others) is an interest rate which has reached the point of usury.

The government, understandably, does not like being grilled for being tight-fisted with schools and hospitals. Those are establishments close to motherhood.

Two logical steps in strategy have followed.

The first is a clarion and oft-repeated call for economy, better utilization of schools, teachers, hospitals and staffing. It's a sound appeal because whatever the agency, it can be made more efficient.

Not surprisingly, the call for economy hasn't been enough, at least according to the government. So the next step has followed logically — arbitrary spending limits — with the clearly-implied message to the school and hospital systems:

"You haven't co-operated by cutting your costs enough. So now we'll make you. It's your fault."

The government case is helped by the enormous complexity of both hospital and school systems. How do you measure how much better they could be?

The measure of the pressure on Bennett becomes apparent when you examine some of the ludicrous prohibitions which have followed.

School libraries have been branded as not essential, for example, when the whole philosophy of learning is being shifted to using libraries as a base for instruction.

And now, with an announcement Friday by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, hospitals have been told they can't have all of the money needed to meet their current staff salaries.

The bizarre aspect of this policy is that the provincial government, for all practical purposes, is the sole source of funds to operate the hospitals. These institutions simply have no place else to turn.

The choice for hospitals is painful but simple. Cut services to the amount of money available.

There's irony in the timing because local hospitals at least have carefully-prepared, detailed plans for making themselves more efficient. But to save money in the long haul requires spending some now.

Loffmark has told the hospitals that how they save is up to them. But maybe, he suggested, the chopping should come first with staff who got the biggest pay gains.

The implication is clear—they are overpaid and some of them are redundant. But a great many hospital employees are paid about $450 a month. Overpaid? If you think they are underworked, ask them, or patients, or hospital administrators—and stand back.

The government has developed a fascinating talent for coping with its money woes—a talent for delaying, postponing and otherwise putting off projects which require money being spent.

At times it is able to enmesh other levels of government and sometimes apparently shift the blame for delays to them. The hassle over developing St. Joseph's Hospital on the St. Ann's Academy site is a classic example.

The jungle of red tape surrounding hospital construction approvals lets the government control the timing of spending, divorced entirely from need, to the day.

An example of the two faces of politics:

For less than $10,000, 22 beds could be added to the capacity of Royal Jubilee Hospital. They would be in the recently-vacated Bay Pavilion.

The hospital sought approval for the money Feb. 24. No approval yet. When it comes, the beds can be in use in a week.

Doctors Join Outcry Against Cutbacks

Victoria's doctors added their voices Tuesday to growing criticism of government policy on hospitals.

In a meeting of the Victoria Medical Society, which continued until 12:30 a.m., about 60 doctors heard a review of the local situation and then unanimously passed motions:

Deploring Health Minister Ralph Loffmark's recently announced cut in hospital spending which could only result in a reduced standard of patient care;

GET ON WITH JOB

The doctors went on record as imploring politicians and the regional hospital board to overcome their difficulties and get on with the job.

The provincial government and the hospital board are currently stalemated on how best to develop the St. Joseph's Hospital site.

"We really are all very distressed to see the lack of progress," society president Dr. John Higgins said today.

MOVING BACK

And in progress to supplying needed acute care beds, "we're moving rapidly backwards, it seems," he said.

The society's executive was asked to establish a series of press releases to help put physicians' views on local developments before the public.

Citizens Start Protests Over High Wire Through Park

Citizen groups today strongly opposed a suggestion that B.C. Hydro run its proposed lines though a part of Francis Park as an alternative to expropriating the homes of five Munn Road families.

The suggestion was made by John Tisdalle, MLA for Saanich and the Islands, who received a letter from Hydro officials.

He said Hydro may take a slice of Francis Park between Thetis and Prospect Lakes instead of running the overhead line though the five properties.

Hydro plans to establish a 400-foot right-of-way for a 138,000-volt line. This, strung on 75-foot poles, would run from Jordan River to Munn Road to Interurban and along Burnside to a substation in the 2900 block Douglas Street.

John Harris, president of the Victoria Outdoor Club, said he deplored the B.C. Hydro policy of running their transmission lines through parks wherever possible.

He said Hydro had already sliced off the southern part of Goldstream Park for the line.

"Hydro is also using 104 acres of former Thetis Lake property which was acquired from the city in 1960," he said. "And now they are thinking of Francis Park."

Harris said the trouble is that Hydro operates under an expropriation policy which is not in "keeping with this age."

"When you ask them why they don't take an alternate route, they said they haven't got the money," he said. "That is they don't budget — they don't set aside any funds for acquiring property."

Harris point out that, according to a foresty report, park acreage in B.C. had decreased since 1952. The population, on the other hand, had doubled.

(In 1952 the park acreage was 9,015,867, while as of Jan. 1, 1970 it was 6,479,659.)

Robert Kennedy, president of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, said the line should be placed underground.

"We should find some other alternative" he said. "Public parks are not set aside for this purpose."

Shrum 'Missed Point'

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today B.C. Hydro Chairman Gordon Shrum has "missed the main point" of the long-standing debate over underground versus overhead hydro transmission lines.

He was commenting on Shrum's remarks to petition organizers opposed to the Interurban-Burnside overhead electrical line, which B.C. Hydro plans to carry on 75-foot-high steel poles.

Shrum said if local residents are prepared to pay the added costs of underground wiring the problem would be solved immediately, but that preference couldn't be granted to one area over another for underground service.

Curtis said the Interurban-Burnside line is not a specific case of "put this line underground and everyone else pay." It is an example of the general municipal attitude in British Columbia about installation of underground electrical services in urban and developing areas.

Curtis said if residents of a city in the interior, for example, were distressed about a proposed overhead transmission line "my attitude would be the same. Again, B.C. Hydro should have such standards as to place that line underground.

Arthur Mayse . . .

ON MONDAY EVENING I listened at the back on an Institute of Adult Studies classroom while a Canada Manpower team shook up whatever notions a job-hungry audience held about job-hunting procedures.

But Doug Yearwood and Ed Hudson did much more than dispel illusions. In a slambang 90-minute session, they dished out a brand of instruction that has helped many a Victorian find work.

What we absorbed was the first half of a two-session course titled Creative Job Search Technique.

The title chosen by Oregon state employment officer Ray Ziegler for his brainstorm of seven years ago may strike you as high-flown. However, the content is very much down to earth, and the results have proved impressive.

The course, sponsored locally by Kiwanis, Greater Victoria School Board and Manpower, was launched last September. By the end of March, 73 per cent of the workless who enrolled had found employment.

I said as much to Bill Rapanos, assistant manager in Victoria for Canada Manpower.

"There's no magic involved," Rapanos assured me. "Just what you might call applied common sense." He then suggested that I sit in on this week's go-round.

The 36 who turned up tapered in age from boys and girls in their high teens to a well-dressed man who looked to be in the low fifties. It was a quiet, watchful audience—not the sort to be impressed by a Polyanna approach.

Question: Had anyone present helped anyone else find employment in the last week?

Hesitantly, one woman raised her hand.

Lesson, pointed out by one of the instructors: The chances are slim that anybody's going to find you a job. This you must do by yourself.

Canada Manpower had no jobs to hand out, he said. It was merely a referral agency, its commission to put applicant in touch with prospective employer. From that point, the job-seeker must rely on his own powers of persuasion.

Also, it's a waste of time merely to ask an employer for work. He is everlastingly being asked for things. Instead, put the shoe on the other foot. Offer him something, which is to say, such skills and abilities as you possess.

Statement: If employed, you expect to be working a 40-hour week.

Snapper: The job-seeker should put in the same workweek on his own account. He can do so by making eight job applications a day, Monday through Friday.

Plainly, this was a new concept to many present. The two women who had been carrying on a whispered conversation of their own hushed up and began to listen.

"If you keep making your calls, you're bound to run into something," said Yearwood. "Use all the resources available to you, but most of all, use yourself."

Hudson, pointer in hand, took over.

What resources are open when a job needs finding? He listed various audience suggestions in a blackboard scorebox. Then, with survey results for his authority, he put the guessers right.

In all job classifications from professional to unskilled labor, he announced, the "walk-in" application is by a wide margin the most effective producer.

But you don't simply walk in cold. In pocket or handbag, you carry an aid emphasized in the course. This is a one-page resume, or job qualification sheet.

It lays you on the line . . . name, approximate age, previous jobs held, special abilities, references, and even a brief breakdown on the kind of work you believe you'd be good at.

Course-takers are also bolstered by confidence-building information.

Item (to me, an eye-opener): About 2,100 jobs, new on the market or old ones vacated, come up for grabs in the Victoria area each month.

There's also that success-percentage I mentioned at the start.

At the end of the evening, we gathered up a generous issue of specimen resumes, also a guide to be used in preparing such a form, and a six-question sheet headed "My Personal Inventory."

That one calls for stern self-sifting—about 20 hours of it, we were told.

As we left the classroom, students who had advanced to the second phase of the course were filing in. For them, personal counselling based on their answers to those questions.

A useful course, and one that deals in blunt and positive fashion with a basic problem. It will take time out at the end of April so that results and findings to date can be closely analyzed. Then, in September, it will resume on a continuous basis.

As Rapanos points out, there's no closed season on job-hunting.

Stuffy Masters Has Aloofness, Also Greatness

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A couple of weeks ago, a reporter-photographer team, bent on doing advance coverage on the Masters golf touranment, phoned to advise the Augusta National Club of their plans.

"Do you have authorization?" a woman's voice asked icily.

The visitors were stunned. Authorization for what? They were not going to probe for atomic secrets. They didn't intend to check the files or rip up the 10th green. They only wanted to look at a now virtually idle golf course that in a few days would be the sports spotlight.

"You still need authorization," came the firm reply.

After penetrating the Green Curtain, where security is tighter than that of the CIA, the uninvited guests were ushered into the inner sanctum to be received with cordiality and warmth.

"Have a slice of cake," offered Clifford Roberts, the bespectacled New York financier who runs the tournament with an iron hand.

"I'll give you a tour in my car," said Col. Horace Shields, the executive director who nurtures the Masters as he would a spoiled child for 12 months of the year.

Such is the dual, contradictory personality of the Masters, which tees off for the 34th time Thursday with the whole golfing world watching.

Stiff, Stuffy, Haughty and Cold

It is stiff and stuffy. It is haughty and cold. As a tournament test, it is over-rated, perhaps the weakest event on the pro tour. Yet it is golf's greatest, most glamorous spectacle —watched, talked about and envied as no other tournament.

It is more than just a sports event. It is a carnival, a sports extravaganza comparable to the Kentucky Derby and the Indianapolis 500.

Golfers criticize it because of its exclusiveness and call it an unfair test, yet all of them would bust a blood vessel to get in. The green jacket of the Masters champion is said to be worth $1,000,000 in endorsements and side benefits.

Fans from all over the world seek tickets—limited and meticulously rationed to an estimated 30,000. Masters officials scrupulously refrain from disclosing either the size of the galleries or the gate receipts—"It's nobody's business," they say.

People swarm into the little Georgia mill and military community—population 75,100. They choke the roads, overtax the hotel and motel space and queue up for meals at the limited number of top eating places. It's a week of push, shove and bustle—but they always come back.

Attraction Traced Back to Bobby

What is the Masters appeal?

"It's the mecca of the golf world," says Gene Sarazen, who has been a regular on the scene since the tournament began in 1934.

"Every important figure in the game—player, official, manufacturer and devotee—can be found there."

"Much of the attraction can be traced to Bob Jones," says Fred Corcoran, executive director of the International Golf Association. "Bob is a great name in golf—everybody loves him."

It was Jones, Atlanta's Grand Slam immortal, who conceived the tournament, helped lay out the course and, with his good friend Roberts, built it into an imposing giant.

Despite its rapid growth, the tournament has remained aloof from big time pressures. It has spurned electronic scoreboards and Madison Avenue publicity techniques.

Negroes bustle around the place, serving as waiters and other help, and Negroes, in green-and-white overalls, do all the caddying, yet this is the only tournament in which a black man has never played.

Roberts says the Masters is not segregationist, that he would welcome a Negro who qualified under any one of the 14 qualifying requirements.

Padding Irritates Tour Players

It's the padding of the Masters field with old champions, foreigners and amateurs that irritates tour players. In the projected 83-man field this year, there will be 17 foreign players and 13 amateurs.

"I doubt that half the Masters field could qualify for one of our tour tournaments," says former PGA champion Lionel Hebert.

Another ex-winner, Byron Nelson, supports the format.

"It is strictly an invitation," he says. "That's the way Mr. Roberts wants it—he doesn't want it to be just another tournament."

Roberts, who rigidly controls every facet of the event, says preference in ticket reservations is given those who have been attending the tournament for years.

"We have 365 acres out there. We could accommodate 100,000 comfortably but it would choke the hotels and the city of Augusta," he says.

Many wonder why people are so anxious to attend the event. Although the tickets are reasonable, $20 for the season, and the tournament is superbly organized, the spectator is not allowed freedoms granted at other tournaments.

Rules for Spectators Stringent

It's against the law to carry a periscope or stand on a portable seat for better vision. Swarms of uniformed guards enforce the restrictions. Most fans bring a lunch and park on one of the hillsides for the entire day. It's almost impossible to follow one golfer and see many shots.

The Masters is the only tournament in the world in which reporters and cameramen are not allowed inside the ropes. As a result, it must be the poorest covered of all tournaments.

Roberts and his Masters staff are sensitive to criticism. A few years ago a nationally syndicated writer was barred for making uncomplimentary remarks about the event at a press party.

Then there's the umbrella room—a niche in which 89 umbrellas and foot-lockers are lined side by side.

"Every official who works on the tournament is given an umbrella, a rain coat and a pair of overshoes," explained Roberts.

Green Started Ill-Fated Fight

OTTAWA (CP)—Boston Bruins defenceman Ted Green struck winger Wayne Maki of St. Louis Blues first in a a high-sticking duel in an exhibition game here last Sept. 21, Ron Finn, a linesman at the game, said Tuesday.

Finn was testifying in the trial of Green, 25, on a charge of common assault arising from the stick fight in the National Hockey League exhibition game. The trial resumes today.

Green pleaded not guilty.

Maki, now playing with Buffalo of the American Hockey League, was acquitted Feb. 5 on a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Maki and Green were charged by Ottawa police after the fight. Green suffered head injuries in the fracas and underwent three operations. A plate has been inserted in his skull.

DELAYED PENALTY

Finn said he saw Maki and Green in the corner with the puck to the left side of the Boston net. Referee Ken Bodendistel had raised his hand to indicate a delayed penalty.

Then Maki and Green skated out level with the goal and raised their sticks.

"Before I got to the players I saw Green's stick come down and it looked as if it hit Maki to the left side of the face," Finn said.

Maki moved back and the two men waved their sticks back and forth in the air.

"Then all of a sudden Maki's stick came down and hit Green."

Referee Bodendistel, 30, of Guelph, Ont., testified the incident began with a pushing match behind the Boston net. Green shoved his glove into Maki's face.

Earlier, defence counsel Edward Houston had attempted to have the charge quashed because of a technicality in the wording.

But Judge M. J. Fitzpatrick of Cornwall, Ont., ruled the charge was worded correctly.

Judge Carter withdrew from the Green case because he had heard the evidence in the Maki trial.

Clubhouse Design Sought for Course

Saanich council will be asked to take the first steps towards a municipally-owned golf course and a new club house at Cedar Hill.

The parks and outdoor recreation committee agreed Tuesday night to recommend that:

1. An architect be hired to prepare preliminary drawings for either the first phase or a complete club house at a cost of about $70,000;
2. That the Barnes family who operate the golf course be notified they can continue until the end of this year.

No location was set for the new clubhouse, but it is expected to be on Derby Road.

Committee chairman Ald. William Noel said a location at this site would lead to a renumbering of the holes, so play would start and finish at the new club house. Redesigning of the golf course could come later.

The present club house is an old house on Finlayson Street which stands in the way of Victoria city planned extension of the road.

No decision was made of the golf couse operation after the end of this year, but it is expected that the municipality itself will become the operator.

The golf course covers 110 acres of the 134-acre Cedar Hill Park, formerly known as the McRae Estate, which Saanich purchased at the end of 1967 for 1.2 million.

Comptroller-treasurer John Tribe said an earlier recommendation that a temporary clubhouse be erected just north of Derby Road should be dropped because the planning department's report on Cedar Hill Park says this site is the most suitable for a permanent club house.

Instead of a temporary building, that should be planned is the first stage of a permanent one, he said.

LIGHT LUNCH

"The type of facility we have in mind is not the somewhat elaborate clubhouse that is located in a private golf club but rather a functional building with facilities for serving light lunches, some lockers, showers and change room," he said.

"It should perhaps also be borne in mind that such a building should be designed to take advantage later on of a liquor licence."

Tribe presented details on operation of public golf courses on the mainland as well as Cedar Hill and said he is "quite sure" that if Saanich takes over operation of Cedar Hill it can do so at a profit.

BEWARE THE VENGEANCE OF WHITE KILLER WHALE!

Beware the vengeance of the white whale, warns Jonathon Hunt, the 93-year-old father of local carver Henry Hunt.

A member of the Kwakuitl tribe at Fort Rupert on the northern tip of Vancouver Island, the venerable Indian reaches back into his childhood for evidence of the white whale's power.

His daughter-in-law, Mrs. Helen Hunt of Victoria, recites the story.

"He tells me that ordinary killer whales are called Makihnuk but not the white one. She is the dihtlekihnuk (Indian for strange one).

"When my father-in-law was about 12 he says the cove at Fort Rupert was filled with whales. They were led by a white whale and the waters churned, there were so many of them."

The Indians weren't sure whether the white whale's presence as she led the whales in their frolickings was to be taken as a sign of blessing—or an ill omen.

They were soon to find out.

"Not too long afterwards a large party of Kwakuitl canoes were returning home. About 40 of them capsized in the waters of the cove and few survived."

Mrs. Hunt reports that the late Mungo Martin shared her father-in-law's awe of the white whale.

"He always used to tell us never to harass the killer whale. To do so meant to bring something bad back to your family.

"He told us we must respect them. That, though we may not understand, they can think as well as we do."

* * *

What of the white killer whale, captured near Race Rocks March 1, and now at Sealand?

Mrs. Hunt doesn't share her elders' misgivings.

"I've become modernized. Things change as the years go by. I can see no harm—or danger."

Chief Edwin Underwood last month related a similar Salish legend regarding the white whale. Like the Kwakuitls, his people were taught to respect the mammal. If ill-treated bad luck was sure to follow.

Council Rejects Sewer Extension

Possible extension of Saanich's sewerage enterprise boundary in one location was ruled out at Saanich council Tuesday night.

A vote to refer the matter to the planning department for a study of land use was defeated 7-to-2. The municipal planning committee had earlier recommended that the planning department investigate the extension in the Arrow-Bow-Cedar Hill area.

Municipal planner Tom Loney said developers have indicated an interest in the area, which lies outside the boundary of the sewered and to-be-sewered-land, although parts of the properties jut into the area while others do not.

He said it "may be justifiable" to relocate the sewerage enterprise boundary to a "more reasonable line."

However, Ald. Frank Waring said he didn't think council should follow developers around and that the primary concern should be planning and he supported a study of land use.

Ald. William Campbell asked why a second look at previously-set boundaries should be taken in one area any more than the other areas.

"We must be flexible," said Ald. Edith Gunning.

Loney, asked to identify the developers, said they are Sherwood Villas, G. H. Wheaton and the company which was involved in townhouses on McKenzie Avenue.

Ald. Foster Isherwood asked if council is going to "bend every time for a developer. We should look at all boundaries if we do this. We are making flesh of one and fish of the other."

Municipal comptroller-treasurer John Tribe said that to be equitable, those already in the sewer enterprise area should be served first. They were already paying for sewers in advance of the service arriving.

Council is committed to sewering 3,400 acres in the coming four years. A contract has already been let in one area and others are following this year and next.

DETENTION HOME EXPANSION URGED

The move followed a report by Ald. William Noel, who said his recommendation will also require the consent of Victoria, Esquimalt and Oak Bay.

The architectural study, if approved by the four participating municipalities, would be of structural re-arrangements to the detention home to permit expansion of services and separation of first offenders from habituals.

Noel said recent legislative changes have put additional responsibilities on the detention home, its staff and the board.

He said the major problem areas are:

- Housing facilities at present provide no separation of first offenders from the "incorrigible" when not confined to their respective cells;
- Several hours each day, those detained gather in a common recreation room or courtyard;
- Those detained are frequently held for extensive periods placing "an undue burden" on accommodation facilities and staff. One case was nine days ago when two persons were remanded for 28 days on drug trafficking charges.

Noel said the home is frequently used to detain problem cases from the Children's Aid Society pending ultimate dispersal.

"This no doubt is providing a useful service to the society but is beyond the original municipal intent for such a home," he said.

One Month For Taking TV Set

George C. Johnson, 55, of 1319 Broad, was sentenced to one month in jail Tuesday when he was found guilty of stealing a television set.

Johnson, will begin to serve the sentence at the completion of 1968 convictions for theft over $50 and impaired driving. He had been unable to pay the fines for earlier convictions.

Police testified they found a portable television set, the property of the T. Eaton Co. Ltd., in a hall outside the accused's hotel room about 1:30 p.m. April 2.

A store official said the set valued at $180 had been in the window of Eaton's earlier in the day but had been removed for window cleaning purposes.

A merchant said he observed a man with a television set sprawled on the sidewalk in front of his shop at the corner of Broad and Yates. The man got up, picked up the set, walked across the street, fell again and was helped to his feet by passers-by.

The merchant said he watched the man carry the set into the hotel on Broad further down the block.

Police said Johnson had been drinking when they talked to him at the hotel.

Bruce F. Hamilton, 19, address unkown, was fined $300 when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Police said he was driving a motorcycle in the 1600-block Esquimalt Raod about 10:40 April 6 when he skidded into a double gate across the roadway.

He admitted he had had nine glasses of beer and gave a breathalyzer reading of .16 per cent blood-alcohol content.

Stephen O. Okongwu, 31, of 1665 McKenzie, was fined $100 for dangerous driving and prohibited from driving for four months.

Police said he pinned two pedestrians against a guard rail while trying to park his car on Mayfair Drive about 4:20 p.m. Feb. 4.

Both pedestrians suffered injuries as a result of the incident, court was told.

Tax White Paper Called Reckless

By BRYDEN WINSBY

The white paper on taxation is "a reckless social experiment" which should be turned over to the Economic Council of Canada for re-examination, Robert Bonner, a senior vice-president with MacMillan Bloedel, said here Tuesday.

Speaking to a Kiwanis Club luncheon, Bonner said he knows of no other subject that has caused so much concern and outcry.

"Confrontation on this issue will make bilingualism and biculturalism look like a very simple game indeed."

Parliament should "take the paper away for six months" and gauge its impact on savings, the rise of provincial and municipal taxes and foreign investment. Then, he said, thinking could be directed in an objective way.

Bonner said that if Canada is to grow economically and become truly competitive internationally, she will need all the foreign and domestic capital she can muster.

"If we are to ensure the private sector providing jobs, expanding world markets and meeting the desperate need for capital, then we must ensure that we take no steps to interfere with Canadian capital or savings."

He said that Canada's peace time economy has emphasized taxation at the provincial and municipal levels more than at the federal, and it is at these levels where progress in taxation must be made.

"With provincial and municipal tax regulations, you have something which will add to the problems caused by the white paper by more than 40 per cent."

Bonner rapped Canada's already timid domestic and international attitude and said that things which are of domestic importance to Canadians are "quite pale" compared with the major issues facing other countries over the past 25 years.

"Korea, the 14-year Malaysian struggle, Suez, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Cuba, Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia, the six-day war in the Middle East, South African and Rhodesian withdrawal from the Commonwealth, the India-China dispute, racial strife in the United States . . . quite a catalogue for 25 years of peace."

He cited steps other countries have taken to improve their economic lots since the Second World War: the European Common Market, Latin American and Caribbean free trade areas, the emergence of Russia as a trading power and the growth of Pacific area countries, especially Japan.

Japan's gross national product, he said, now surpasses that of West Germany and her average national income is on a par with that of Canada's Maritime Provinces.

Bonner said events in Canada must be geared to these external developments and he accused Canadians of being too introspective, too dependent on formulas like the white paper, rather than closely examining all the facts.

"Last fall, the Economic Council of Canada said that given reasonable price and wage stability and the productivity of the population, they estimated Canada's GNP would rise (from last year's $75 billion) to $100 billion by 1975 based on the present value of the dollar." Using 1967 as a base year, he said it is well within Canada's capacity for her GNP to grow at a rate of 5.5 per cent per annum.

But since 1967, he said, conditions have come about which seriously jeopardize such growth. "Dollar erosion is reducing purchasing power by 4 to 5 per cent per annum."

He said that in future Canadians must be more farsighted, and forget controls which work only by creating unemployment.

Science Policy Topic

Dr. William M. Armstrong, 54, a professor of metallurgy and deputy president at the University of British Columbia, will speak Thursday at the University of Victoria on how national policy on science is made.

He will speak at 8:30 p.m. in room 060 of the Elliott Building.

Armstrong was first appointed to UBC in 1946. He served as head of the metallurgy department during 1964-65.

He was appointed deputy president in 1968.

88 Killed In Osaka Explosion

OSAKA, Japan (CP) — At least 88 persons were killed and 154 injured, many of them severely, when a series of explosions ripped through a subway construction site in a densely populated area of Osaka today, police reported.

The blast touched off a fire which swept through some 30 private homes before firemen brought it under control.

Osaka's pride, the Expo 70 world's fair, was not damaged. Police said the explosion site was 10 miles from the fair grounds.

Many of the injured were in serious condition.

The explosions, blamed on leaking gas, occurred beneath a roadway where construction men were working on the subway. They hurled heavy steel plates covering the roadway into the air, lifted parked cars feet off the ground, shattered windows over a wide area and flattened people on sidwalks.

Flames shot 100 feet into the air as the gas fumes caught fire, spreading quickly to the closely-packed wooden homes lining the street.

Police said a gas leak in the construction area was repoted late today and evacuation of residents in the area had started.

CARSWELL
. . . back to Florida

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The Senate rejected today the Supreme Court nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell, handing President Nixon a stunning second defeat in his efforts to name a Southern judge to the United States' highest court.

The vote was 51 to 45. The outcome of the long fight over the nomination of the 50-year-old Tallahassee, Fla., judge, now on the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, remained in doubt to the last.

Nixon became the first president in this century—and only the fourth in U.S. history — to have more than one Supreme Court nominee voted down by the Senate.

President Nixon was "disappointed" by the senate's rejection of the Carswell nomination and will select another candidate for the supreme court in due course, the White House said today.

"The president said he will submit a new nomination to the senate in due course and there are, of course, no candidates in mind at this time."

Nixon made it known two weeks ago, as opposition to Carswell mounted, that he considered the issue of the Carswell nomination as transcending "this or any other appointment."

In a letter to a wavering Republican senator who subsequently supported Carswell, Sen. William B. Saxbe of Ohio, Nixon said criticism of Carswell was baseless.

RELATIONSHIP

What was at stake, Nixon said, was "the preservation of the traditional constitutional relationship of the president and the Congress."

Centrally at issue, the president contended, was the constitutional presidential responsibility to appoint members of the Supreme Court—"and whether this responsibility can be frustrated by those who wish to substitute their own philosophy or their own subjective judgment for that of the one person entrusted by the constitution with the power of appointment."

Nixon nominated Carswell Jan. 19, after the Senate's rejection by a 55-to-45 vote last November of his first choice for the court post, Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. of Greenville, S.C.

Today's vote was a dramatic reversal of the Senate's 52 to 44 vote two days ago rejecting a motion to return Carswell's nomination to the Senate judiciary committee.

CHARGES REJECTED

ISRAEL BOMBS ARAB SCHOOL

CAIRO (Reuters) — Thirty school children and an adult civilian were killed today when Israeli Phantom jet aircraft bombed a primary school in Egypt, an official source at the interior ministry here reported.

The source said 46 civilians, including 36 school children, were wounded in the raid on Bahr al Bakr school in Sharkia province, about 50 miles north of Cairo.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli military spokesman, replying to correspondents' questions following the Cairo report, said: "Our air attacks were aimed strictly at military objectives."

The school was a primary level co-educational school, meaning the children were in the six-to-12-year-old bracket.

It was the biggest reported Egyptian civilian casualty toll from an Israeli air raid since Feb. 12, when more than 80 workers were killed and 90 wounded in the bombing of a scrap metal factory northeast of Cairo. The Israelis said that raid was an accident.

B.C. Civil Servants To Vote on Pay Offer

Victoria-based provincial government employees will vote Monday on acceptance or rejection of salary increases, averaging 7½ per cent, awarded Tuesday by the cabinet.

Ratification meetings for 35 locals of the entire 14,000 B.C. Government Employees Union membership will be held next week, said union general secretary John L. Fryer.

It will be the first time government employees have been given the opportunity to express their opinion on a wage offer.

But the BCGEU executive will make no recommendation to guide the membership, Fryer said. The offer will be presented as is and each member will make his own choice, said the secretary.

Raises recommended by the Civil Service Commission apply to all civil servants, of which there are 26,000 in B.C. government jobs.

They are retroactive to April 1 and instead of representing a flat percentage increase applicable to all categories, the raises favor those in low-paid jobs.

Fryer said the "consideration shown by the government to its lower-paid employees is a response to special representations made by the union earlier in the year."

WELFARE BETTER

He recalled a survey made public a few months ago that showed some government employees would be netting more income by being on welfare—tax-free—than by drawing a government salary and paying income tax, medical bills and other necessaries.

"A few of them now are a little closer to a decent standard of living."

But while commending the government, Fryer also drew attention to the fact that the increases still leave salaries short of what is needed to bring civil service pay to parity with equivalent jobs in municipal government, large private firms and the federal civil strvice.

Fryer noted that there are many increments of 11 per cent, reflecting the favor shown to lower categories.

Should union members accept the increases, the wage isue will be closed for this year, he said, but should they reject it, "then the union's negoting committee will seek to reopen salary discussions with the Civil Service Commission."

He said members will not be asked to consider strike

PARLIAMENT FIRE BOMB FIZZLES OUT

OTTAWA (CP) — A small bottle of oil, wrapped in rags, was dropped down a stairwell in the Centre Block of the Parliament Buildings this afternoon, but the resulting fire did not cause any damage or injuries.

The House of Commons security officers called in the RCMP and city police. There were no immediate arrests.

A police spokesman said the soya sauce bottle contained a low-explosive type of oil, perhaps kerosene or fuel oil. It was dropped from a third-floor stairway used by visitors going to the Peace Tower.

Don Blais, a 40-year-old maintenance worker in the building, said he was standing five or six feet away when the bottle struck the marble floor and burst into flames. "It went out in two or three minutes," he said.

Apart from two old tables about six feet away there was nothing in the area that could be ignited.

Arctic Protection Bills Introduced

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave first reading today to government bills aimed at preventing pollution of waters adjacent to the mainland and islands of the Canadian Arctic and to extend Canada's territorial sea to 12 miles from the present three.

Before the bills were introduced, Prime Minister Trudeau announced that Canada has entered a new reservation against the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice as it applies to the pollution legislation.

The prime minister said there is no existing international law to protect coastal states against pollution. Existing law favored oil-exporting and oil-shipping states, he said.

There was an urgent need for the development of international law establishing "that coastal states are entitled . . . to protect their marine environment and the living resources of the sea adjacent to their coasts."

Meanwhile, scattered fields of ice chunks about 50 feet wide were encountered by the U.S. tanker Manhattan and a Canadian icebreaker Tuesday as they headed through the Labrador Sea en-route to the Northwest Passage.

The ships were sailing east of the ice pack off Labrador and planned to avoid ice as far as possible.

CUSTOMERS TAKEN FOR A RIDE . . . . . . IN A SHOPPING CART

By JACK SCOTT

It's no longer enough for Milady to hippity hop to the market secure in the knowledge that the ancient philosophy of caveat emptor — "let the buyer beware"—will keep intact the shrivelling family budget.

Now, in a day of unprecedented soaring food costs, the market must be viewed as an enemy-occupied jungle full of snares to trap the unwary, a place where only an expert's knowledge of guerrilla infighting can ensure survival.

This is the grim estimate of the president and executive of the Victoria branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada who have committed their 400-member organization to a frontal attack on the continuing spiral of prices.

Tonight at eight o'clock at the Institute of Adult Studies they'll join with the Greater Victoria School Board in telling it the way it is to a public consumers' forum dealing with marketing gimmicks, legislation and enforcement of grades and standards and allied purchasing perils that, in the words of Mrs. Helen Forrest, president of the local branch, have left consumers "just about absolutely helpless."

Direct target is the operation of the chain-owned supermarkets — described by nutritionist Mrs. Norma Morriss, a member of tonight's panel, as terribly wrong in their set-up, taking their customers for a ride in "a shopping cart" — and the lack of activist involvement by the silent majority of Victoria's housewives.

Evidence from studies conducted by the CAC's headquarters as well as surveys and comparative shopping expeditions provincially and in Greater Victoria demonstrate in the opinion of the local members, that supermarkets systematically exploit a gullible, unquestioning clientele.

Item: Victoria surveys confirm the results of a study conducted by a University of Alberta research team that different prices are charged in different stores of the same chain for the same items at the same time, but that prices are uniformly higher in low-income areas where shoppers without cars are unlikely to patronize alternative, distant markets.

Item: A cost check of supermarkets demonstrated that prices are higher on the first and 15th pay days of each month and on the date (usually the 19th) when Family Allowance cheques reach recipients.

'Gullible, Unquestioning Clientele'

Item: Advertising of "loss-leaders" persists. Sample shopping at certain stores advertising the largest number of "price specials," in some cases, resulted in higher costs when an entire grocery list was purchased.

Item: The supermarket price structure employs psychological means to increase sales and profits. Bargain-hunting shoppers readily rise to the deceptive bait, for example, when a 20-cent product is offered at five for 99 cents rather than two for 39 cents.

Item: "Hypnotic packaging" and the adroit placement of articles at check-out counters for impulse-buyers cause shoppers to purchase unwanted goods. Supermarkets are confirmed in their estimate of the compulsive fascination of "the impulse item" by statistics indicating that some 80 per cent of sales in frozen items is impulse-motivated.

Item: Confusing weight-price structures create a "credibility gap" that bewilders even careful, knowledgeable shoppers. One lynx-eyed shopper asks, with a shrug: "How are you supposed to compare a 10-and-a-half ounce can of peaches at 37 cents with a 15-ounce can at 46 cents?"

The women of the Victoria branch of the CAC take the position that such anomalies can only be corrected by government legislation and that legislation comes only through organized public pressure.

Mrs. Barbara Rolls, formerly provincial president, cites a typical "small victory" in recent regulations that the weight must be stamped on bars of soap.

"You could never tell whether you were getting the best buy for, let's say, three toilet-size for 45 cents or two bath-size for 43," she says. "That's the kind of thing, all down the line, that means we're not able to fight on equal terms with the markets."

One answer for the dedicated shopper is the Econo-Meter, a patented, Victoria-produced disc for computing prices by the ounce, supplied by the local branch of the CAC for members and non-members at 50 cents each. More than 1,000 have been sold locally.

Impressive Start By Defending Duo

WINNIPEG (CP)—Judy and Bruce Rollick, a husband-and-wife team from Vancouver, won their opening game in the mixed doubles event of the Canadian closed badminton championship Tuesday as they set out to defend the title they won last year.

The Rollicks defeated Debbie Ott and Gerald Richardson of Nova Scotia, 15-1 and 15-2, in preliminaries of the three-day event.

Mrs. Rollick also began defence of her singles title with an 11-4, 11-5 win over newly-crowned junior champion, Susan Cutmore of Calgary. Allison Ridgway, also of Vancouver, won her opening match against Bev McDougall of Calgary, 11-0, 11-0.

FOUR OF FIVE

Calgary players took four of the five junior finals with the only other championship going to Toronto as Jamie McKee and Pay Dale grabbed the men's doubles event with wins of 15-11 and 15-10 over Pradip Basu and David Gibson of Vancouver.

McGillivray, 18, won the men's singles 11-5, 15-10 and 15-10 over McKee while Miss Cutmore, 16, took the women's singles 11-2, 3-11 and 11-1 over Jennifer Dakin of Toronto.

McGillivray and Lorraine Thorne of Calgary teamed up in the mixed doubles to handle McKee and Miss Dakin 15-11, 13-18 and 15-12. Miss Cutmore and Miss Thorne won the women's doubles 15-7 and 15-1 over Miss Dakin and Barb Muhlig of Toronto.

BASKETBALL MEETING

Vancouver Island Amateur Basketball Association will hold its annual general meeting at 1:30 p.m. Sunday in the Tally-Hc Hotel in Nanaimo.

MAURICE STOKES BATTLED COURAGEOUSLY

Hoop Star Succumbs

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Maurice Stokes died Monday and thousands aware of his basketball prowess were joined in grief by countless others who had heard of Stokes' courageous battle against a crippling brain disease.

Doctors attributed the immediate cause of his death, at 36, to a heart attack, but the former professional basketball star had been bedridden for 12 years with a form of encephalitis believed related to a brain injury suffered while playing basketball.

Jack Twyman, a teammate on the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association expressed the sentiment of Stokes' friends and fans, saying: "We're all very much broken up."

"We did not expect this," said Twyman, who was Stokes legal guardian. "The doctors have given no indication at the time of the heart attack (March 30) that it would be fatal."

It was Twyman, now a broadcaster and business man, who took over the massive task of raising and handling the money needed to assure the best medical attention and care for Stokes.

Stokes collapsed March 15, 1958 aboard a plane en route from Detroit to Cincinnati following a loss to the Pistons in a playoff game. Earlier in the season Stokes had hit his head on the floor in a game at Minneapolis, and this was believed by some doctors to have triggered his difficulties.

Stokes was in a coma for the first two months, and when he came out of it he was unable to talk and had little muscular control.

His physical rehabilitation was slow and limited but he maintained his sense of humor until the end despite the fact his speech never returned to normal.

On one occasion Stokes was asked "how old are you?" one syllable at a time Stokes replied "Old enough to know better but too young to resist,"—an old chestnut but indicative of his spirit.

Stokes will be buried Thursday in the Franciscan Cemetery on the Loretto, Pa., campus of St. Francis College where he starred before turning pro.
